ETRUSCAN BOOK OF LISTS

Hey Boy, you are a really great person. It was fun putting to go out with you this year. I also making you welcome, in glad I helped you passed. I'm not going to say all, cause that I'm sure you won't, but in also sure that we see you over the summer! Dad loved always, you Ya, see Traged!

Dad Scott
 Haha Haha Haha
 I think you're real Sweet. Let's get together some day. I'll go over the summer. Come here Ya!

Scott,
 even though you get too drunk sometimes you're still very nice.
 Give so sorry to remember when you & Joel Brown were best friends. See you in the summer!

Dear Scott,
 I've known you for such a long time, and yet, each year we seem to get closer. My future in science doesn't look good, and I would never have even made it this year in Biology if it weren't for you! Thank you for being such a great friend to me and I'm glad that I got to know as well as I did. People like you don't come along every day!
 Have a great summer. I'm sure that I'll see you!
 Love Always,
 Nick Told

Dear Scott,

Well I have to say that this year has been really fun. You're really a sweet kid. I am really glad we got to be such good friends. I hope we can stay good friends for the next 2 thrilling years of High School. It was fun having you in gym the first semester. Golf was just peachy and swimming well it was different, it's too bad we didn't have gym together Second semester. You could have been in my Square dance class. How thrilling right. Well maybe we can be in as many classes next year as ~~now~~ we were this year. See ya this summer (hopefully)

Love always.

WITH THE EFFORTS of Mark Paolucci and other teammates, the 1980 Junior Class "pulled off" the tug of war game very well.

GBS'ers seek solitude

n between the class periods and the peers, the people at GBS like to be alone to gather their thoughts, study, work on a project or even write a letter.

Most of school life is spent in classes, with the other major part being spent with friends, but GBS'ers definitely need that little part of the day to be alone.

Students aren't the only people at GBS who need time alone to replenish themselves. Teachers do also. Some create lesson plans, others have a cup of coffee and some just sit back and relax for a few minutes during a hectic day.

In the fall and spring, one could find most students in the courtyard sitting on a stone bench or lying on the grass hoping to get some sun.

During the winter, one can find an occasional student sitting in the pit doing homework or even sleeping.

Wherever GBSers decide to take a break alone, they don't do it for long. They are soon with their friends or in a class back into the normal routine.

SITTING ON A stone bench in the courtyard at the beginning of the year, senior Nancy Ford writes a note to a friend.

WHILE OTHER AFS members have a discussion, Valerie Ruddle works on a poster.

SOMETIMES TEACHERS RELAX or work on a lesson plan during out of class time. Mr. Hans Dahl records test scores during his free time.

FRESHMAN MONICA WELZEL sits in the courtyard during her free time looking over the material of an upcoming test.

FINDING A QUIET corner in GBS is very rare, but Evi Haage, junior, finds it in the Old Pit and takes advantage of it by doing her Advanced Algebra homework.

Registration brings on school routine

As summer fans were off, the school routine wore on. Registration (obtaining of books, supplies, schedules and ID's) in late August brought on thought to remind students at GBS that it was again time for 6 a.m. alarm clocks, cold cereal breakfasts (if breakfast at all), mad dashes for the few remaining parking spots and confusion in the attendance office for one reason or another.

There weren't that many changes as far as registration itself went. Dr. William Schreiner, principal, said that the big impact was on immunizations, dental checkups, etc. "The state legislature was threatening us (to get the students to get all checkups and immunizations needed)," Schreiner said. Registration can always be somewhat difficult however, Schreiner said, "We don't like to complicate registration more than already."

When it came to getting the books, supplies and other miscellaneous materials it was the same as the last couple of years. The price of books has gone up along with everything else, however. "There's always people who are astounded by the prices of books, and there are some that are surprised that they even have to get books," Schreiner said.

As far as school starting goes, Schreiner felt it was "unique." "It seemed to me after the departure of last year's senior class we might have been left with a void," Schreiner said, "but the juniors started their work early in the summer. It (school starting) was a general affair of warmth and concern for others," Schreiner continued. "There was more of a reception for one another. For the last decade it's been 'me' but this year there was a closeness. It was heartwarming."

Schreiner concluded, "I have a very positive feeling about this school year. The young men and women are going to give us a very solid and rich year, and that's what it's all about."

LAURA NESBITT, PATTI Johnson and Jean Gilbertson help students to obtain books, supplies and other miscellaneous materials.

IN GETTING READY for the new school year, B. Monaghan starts his cleaning early before school starts.

MIKE POLARA AND Nadine Sohr receive their ID's, schedules and books in preparation for school.

CHERRY AMEND, PRISONER, expresses her feelings about her situation.

RUSSE HARRIS ATTEMPTS to put spirit into school registration by selling CBS hats and jackets.

'Etruscan' members create 'The Book of Lists'

Things to do, what to buy, holiday presents, favorites, least favorites. What don't Americans list? Whether they realize it or not, everything they do or say is part of a list, mental or written.

In school, when a boy walks down a hall, he lists mentally the pretty girls walking by him, what he will do on Friday night and even what car he would like to buy. The list of lists is endless.

Even a yearbook is a list — a list of sports, activities and people.

We on the Etruscan thought we'd bring it together and really see what the students at Glenbrook South like to list.

Throughout the book, there will be lists of favorite excuses for tardies; students with the most personality, most spirit, best body and most freckles; best television shows; best movies; best looking cars in the parking lot; most embarrassing moment for seniors; best locker decorations; and best place to hang out.

Of course, the list is endless.

AS PART OF the GBS tradition, Charlene Brod, junior, gets ready to paint a face during Halloween. The Art Department sponsors this event.

TURNABOUT SOPHOMORE ATTENDANT Dick Taylor, stands before the stands in recognition of the junior's play.

NURSE DEBBIE GREENBERG gives the hourly pill to patient James Barrow while Nan Kuczek records the broadcast. This is the play "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

AFTER PERFORMING DURING halftime, Donna Smith, Joany Lacy and Dolly Pilman march to the sidelines to view the rest of the game.

Students Judge events

The Webster's New Ideal Dictionary describes social as "of or relating to human society, the interaction of that group and its members and the welfare of these members."

Glenbrook South students describe social as "football games, Homecoming, dances, Variety Show, musicals, plays and many other events."

Every year the Student Activities Office conducts a survey to estimate the involvement and popularity of the events and activities at GRS.

Listed at right is an excerpt from this survey.

THE SENIOR CLASS demonstrated interest in involvement in school spirit. Among the cheering crowd are Lisa Meyer, John Davis, Pat McCarthy, Eric Sandoz, Michele Krizer and Ben Collins.

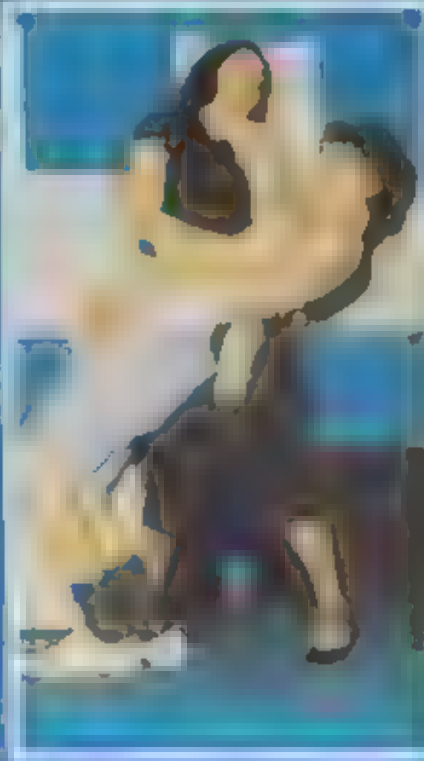

Ten most involved events (in order)

1. Homecoming football game
2. Football games
3. Variety Show
4. Basketball games (boys)
5. Pep rallies
6. Homecoming parade
7. Homecoming float construction
8. Holiday concert assembly

CHARLOTTE LAYSTROM AND Eric Gilliland rehearsed their parts to win 1997 North-South Musical, "Anything Goes."

Ihere would railroad engineers, a pair of Turkish Soldiers, Cinderella, and six mice get together for a night of entertainment?

At the GBS Synchronized Swim Club's show, "Imagination," all these were present.

The more experienced members entertained the audience with a fast-moving advanced stroking number, "Pardon Me Boy." And later, Michelle Kostik and Jim Fabrie performed a boy-girl number, "A Brand New Key," with Michelle on roller skates.

Nan Kuczek and Eric Gilliland linked the show together through their portrayal of a record store clerk and an inquisitive customer who requested various types of music.

The Synchronized Swim Club choreographed, directed and performed the show itself.

In September, it began working on the over 500 stunts needed for the show. And in January, the club started rehearsing individual numbers.

Miss Laura LaCursia, synchronized swim club's sponsor, felt that, "The girls are becoming more efficient, and improving the quality (of the show)." She also felt that, "We (the club) work hard and play hard."

Olympics end in tie

Titan Olympics' participants play hard also! The Olympics provide an outlet for the rivalry between classes, as each competes against the other in pie eating and arm-wrestling contests, tug-of-war, caterpillar roll, and relay races.

The contest ended in a surprising tie between the Sophomore and Senior Classes. Junior Bob Prihoda, arm-wrestling champ, felt "good times were had (at the Olympics) and sophomore Steve Hagedorn emphatically stated that the caterpillar roll was, "a total riot!"

Before and after the Olympics rivalry, the school clubs united to present the Titan Carnival. Here, students could try their skills at the various booths or send messages to their friends via Calope's messenger service.

Professional comes to direct play

Action, cut, try it again these are some of the terms that were heard during the Winter and Spring plays. "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Cowboy." "Cowboy" was performed on May 18, 19, 1979. "Cowboy" was set in the late 1800's in the Wild West. The play portrayed the lives of such Wild West villains as Billy the Kid, Butch Cassidy, Wyatt Earp, and Jessie James.

"Cowboy" was written and directed by Kent Monken, a professional from Old Orchard Country Club Theatre; the assistant director was Michael O'Brien. The stage manager was Justin Synnestvedt and the technical director was Dave Kasten.

The cast in "Cowboy" consisted of Dan Gathercoal, Pete Kowalczyk, and James Berner.

Monken said "Cowboy" was his major accomplishment in directing. "Kids who have never been on a stage before an audience really enjoyed acting out their parts and being a part of the play."

"Cuckoo's Nest" was directed by Mr. Douglas Kornelly. The technical director was Steven Janicki and the stage manager was Andrew J. Burke, who was assisted by Mary Strategos.

The cast included Susan Schreiner, Nanette Kuczek and many other GBS Students.

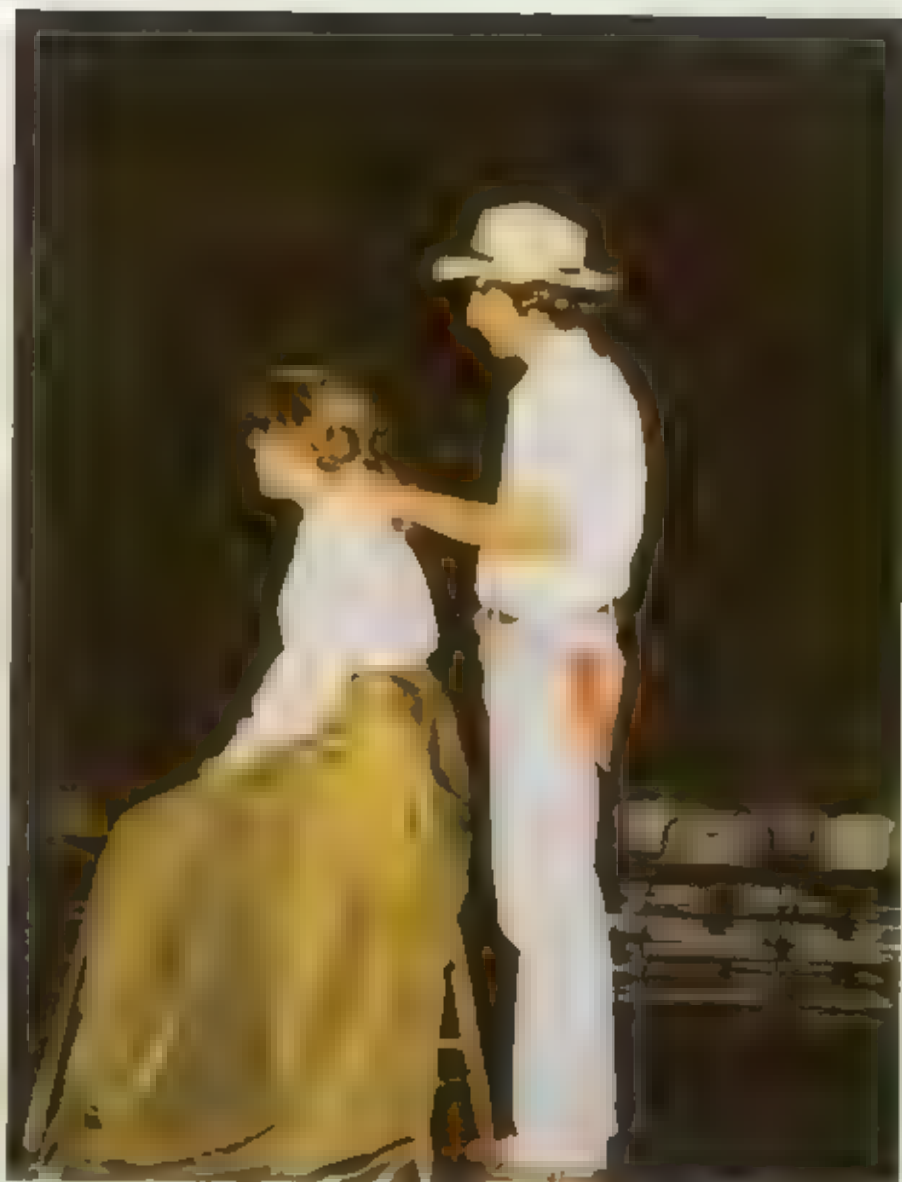

Paul Kapustka, the house manager, said, "I felt the play was very original, extremely interesting, and a lot of fun to be involved with."

"Cuckoo's Nest" portrayed the lives of some of the patients in a mental institution.

Action, cut, try it again finally turned into the spring and winter plays.

The Glenbrook South girls got their chance at role reversal in March at the Turnabout dance. "We've Got Tonight."

The GBS girls apparently like the turnabout idea. Jane Heidenreich, junior, said she thinks the Turnabout idea is good because "the girl gets to choose which guy she wants to go with and all the other times the guy gets to pick."

The dance is also a popular event in the guys' opinions. Brian Bartosh remarked that he saw Turnabout as "a kind of equalizer for Homecoming."

The attendants and Turnabout king were elected by the girls of GBS. The king was Bill Knapp, the senior attendant was Mark Kamin; the junior attendant was Tom Nelson; the sophomore attendants were Jeff Steinhorn and Dick Taylor (due to a tie), and the freshman attendant was John Spehlmann.

The Turnabout dance was sponsored by the Girls' Letter Club.

Students discarded their blue jeans and tennies for tuxedos and long gowns on Saturday June 2, from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. The occasion? PROM '79.

Prom '79, "Always and Forever," was held at the Orrington Hotel in Evanston. A total of 217 couples participated. According to Mr. Smith:

COUPLES SLOW DANCE to the music of Copperhead at Turnabout.

QUEEN MAREN WALKER removes her prom necklace and waits to be crowned.

"It was the largest prom in four years; the only complaint was it was a little too hot because the Orrington isn't air conditioned."

The Prom '79 queen was Maren Walker, and her court attendants were Brigit Carr and Kerri Carter.

"Always and Forever" was sponsored by the Class of 1980, which selected the band SHOW BIZ and provided necklaces as prom favors for the girls.

AFTER RECEIVING THE crown and flowers, Bright Carr and escort are joined by everyone for a dance to the music of "Blitz."

When North, South combine, for musical, 'Anything Goes'

North and South an allied force? This doesn't seem possible, but one of the few events that both Glenbrook schools work on as a team is the North/South musical "Anything Goes," performed from Thursday, May 2, through Saturday, May 5, proved that it could be done.

The play involved approximately 200 students from the two schools, ranging from the backstage crews to the lead parts. The division of the parts and responsibilities was almost evenly divided between students from GBS and GBN.

"There is no effort to balance the participation between the two schools," said Dr. William Schnell, music director of the show. "We judge on talent only, and it just turns out to be almost exactly even each year."

The play was successful and had very good attendance, according to South's director of student activities, Mr. David H. Smith. "Financially, we did very well. We made a good profit, and that is very rare. We usually lose money or break even. The attendance was consistent with those of other years. 4,067 people attended the show."

The production staff, though, was all from South. Mr. Walter Lambie was the executive director, Mr. Douglas Kornelily was the director, Mr. Steve Janicki was the technical director and Mr. Smith was the producer.

Graduation: The final memory of high school

In September a senior says, "Hey, do you believe it? I am finally a senior."

In January a senior says, "Why does this year have to take so long? I can't last till the end of the year!"

In April a senior says, "I don't care if I don't do my homework, or anything!"

At graduation a senior says, sentimentally and sometimes tearfully, "Why did the four years have to go so fast?"

The 15th Commencement ceremonies took place on June 17, 1979, and 536 seniors received their diplomas. Besides diplomas, 90 received honors and awards. "It took longer than I thought, but the ceremony was really nice," said Steve Horvat, a graduated senior.

As Mr. Don Allen, Senior Class coordinator, said, "The graduation was very successful. Everything went smoothly." Mr. Allen commented, "The last year's commencement was the best ever!"

Even though each of the students of the Class of '79 has graduated and gone his separate way, each will never forget the memories he has of his years at Glenbrook South High School.

Seniors come out on top at Homecoming

Pomps, paint and preparation are just the beginnings of a Glenbrook South homecoming, and 1979 was no different. Homecoming activities began this year on Oct. 16 with the start of float construction and ended with the homecoming dance on Oct. 20.

Float construction took place in the Autos courtyard until Friday, Oct. 19. The winning float for this year was the Class of 1980, with the theme of "Bolt the Bulldogs" on one side and "Titan Lightning" on the other. Senior Julie Krueger, Student Council member, stated, "It was hard to get people out to help build, but many worked on pomps during lunch."

Also on the agenda was window painting in downtown Glenview Wednesday, Oct. 17 and Thursday, Oct. 18. Many clubs came out to paint the various windows, but the Class of 1980 came in first again with "Canine Destruction." The Marching Band and Cinema Club placed second and third respectively.

The Class of 1980 won the spirit stick in the auditorium on Friday, Oct. 19. The pep rally was moved from the East Gym because, according to Krueger, "The spirit is changing, and we had to adjust to the students. It was more of a show, but it brought more people."

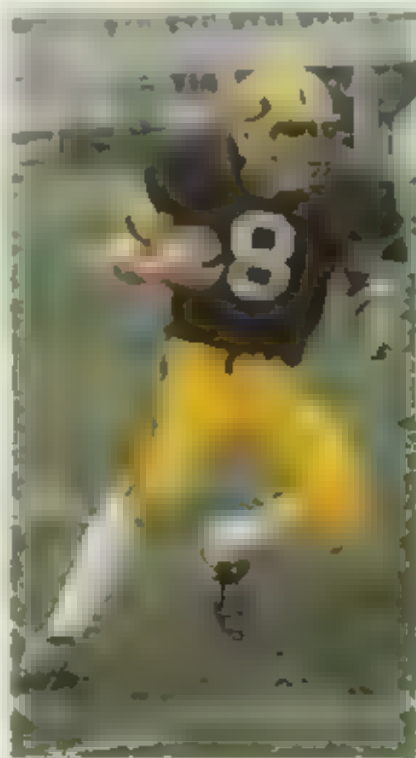

The big events came on Saturday, Oct. 20, first with the parade down Glenview Road at 10 a.m. from Shermer to the parking lot of Our Lady of Perpetual Help. The parade was made up of 30 units consisting of floats, club entries, clowns, the homecoming queen and her court and the Titan Marching Band. The first place entry was the Drama Club, while second place was a tie between Boosters and DCL club.

At 10:30 a.m., the Parents Association sponsored the homecoming brunch, which included pancakes, scrambled eggs, sausage, orange juice, milk and coffee for $2.50.

The varsity football team defeated the Waukegan East Bulldogs that afternoon. On Saturday evening, the homecoming dance, "Dance the Night Away," began at 8 p.m. and continued to 11 p.m. Homecoming Queen Michelle Kosik was crowned at this time, and her court included senior Debbie Hresja, junior Dorrine Tompary, sophomore Vicki Bold and freshman Kelley Anderson. "Best Seller" performed at the dance.

As a final note on homecoming activities this year, Krueger stated, "It went great, especially for seniors."

Homecoming '79 lets the good times roll!

After float construction, window painting, the pep rally, the street dance, the parade, the football game and the other Homecoming Week events, comes the popular Homecoming dance

Two hundred and forty couples attended the Student Council-sponsored Homecoming formal, "Dance the Night Away," Oct 20 in the Half Moon (East) Gym.

The band, Best Seller, provided the music, of which 75-80 per cent was slow. According to Mr David Smith, director of student activities, the choosing of the band "was probably the most difficult decision the Student Council had to make because tastes in music have changed from fast music to slow music." Smith added he was "surprised students would make that kind of a choice."

Eighteenth-century play emerges at GBS

Eighteenth century England came to GBS in the form of the 1979 fall play, "She Stoops To Conquer." The play was performed on Nov. 8, 9, & 10, under the direction of Mr. Douglas T. Kornelly, an English teacher on sabbatical.

Kornelly said he chose the play because it's a funny play and it's been around 200 years. He also notes, "I have a responsibility to present a wide variety of styles."

Members of the cast included Eric Gilliland as Mr. Hardcastle, Debbie Greenberg as Kate Hardcastle, Doug Sanders as Young Marlow, Steve Levitan as Tony Lumpkin, and Bill Green as Hastings.

Also in the cast was Vic Osmolak, who played the part of Patch. He remarked, "It was interesting, exciting and an experience."

Some students found the Eighteenth century dialog hard to comprehend. "I thought it was good," said sophomore Bridget Schneider, "but some parts were kind of hard to understand."

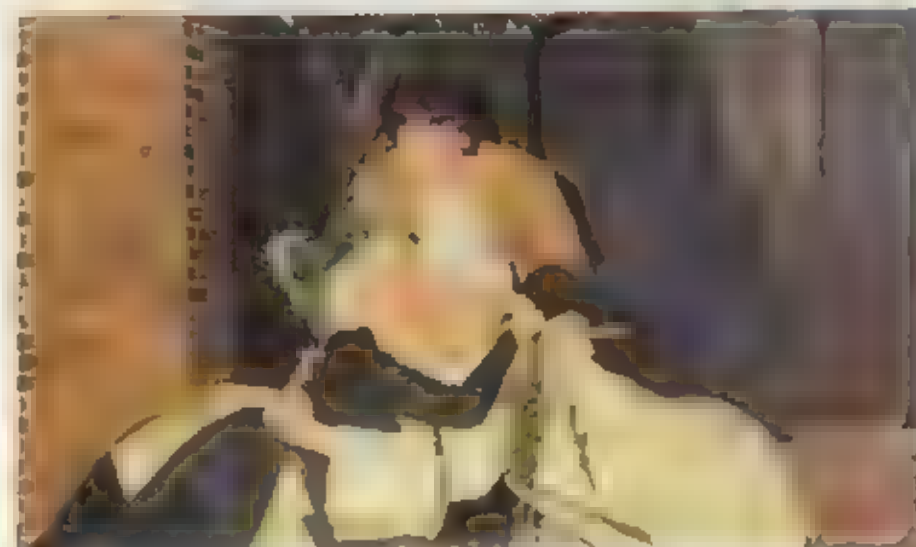

Kornelly admitted, "It was the most difficult play I ever directed."

ERIC GILLILAND SHOWS the school how a night club act should really be performed

'Saturday Night Live' overwhelms GBS'ers

The Winter Sports Assembly had a special "twist" added to it. It was combined with various skits from the show "Saturday Night Live."

Instead of having a 50's Day assembly, the Student Council, Special Events Committee and Mr. David H. Smith, head of student activities, decided to have a "Saturday Night Live" assembly because of the decline in attendance at the annual 50's Day assembly. Last June the annual survey taken of assemblies proved that the attendance at the 50's Day assembly has been declining each year.

"I was most impressed by the cooperation needed by the athletic and drama departments to put on the assembly and the positive response by the student body to their efforts," commented Smith.

Along with many skits from "Saturday Night Live," such as "Samurai," the "Point-counter Point" news segment, with senior Steve Levitan, junior Leslie McKenzie and senior Jay Geistlinger, the Lisa and Todd sketch, and the restaurant scene, the winter sports athletes were introduced.

"I thought it was good, and I especially liked the news segment," commented sophomore Dariene Mikeska.

Halloween brings out variety of characters

Boo! There were several strange types last Halloween wandering the halls of GBS. A pregnant nun, alias John Geroulis, senior Jodi Berman as a Supergirl, Junior Charlene Brod as a rag doll, Junior Marie Kornak as a green-faced witch, junior Ed Lees as Kunta Kinte, and Richard Arnold as a large headed green martian. There were also many students that roamed the school with painted faces.

Teachers also got into the act of dressing up on Halloween. English teacher Alan Ruter dressed up as a boys' physical education student in a gym shirt, gym shorts, and gym shoes. Mr. Tom Valentin, also an English teacher, dressed up as a black caped, silver-faced mortician.

Many students had their faces painted on Halloween. For a small fee, one could have had a star, stripes, or any design he wished put on his face. Some students were more daring and had their whole faces painted, some green, some silver, some white.

Art teacher Lynn Staudacher said, "Face-painting is a chance to change your identity without a mask."

Masters change banquet theme Traditionally, the Master Singers have presented an Elizabethan Banquet every other year. The banquet consisted of a feast interspersed with skits and songs performed by the Master Singers.

Master Singers their director, Dr. William Schnell, and Mr. Walter Lambie decided, "It'd be fun to put on another type of banquet during the odd years and Appalachian banquet was launched."

The Singers kept the same basic format for the banquet which was held on Oct. 26, but the meal consisted of southern fried chicken, black-eyed peas and apple pie rather than Wassail punch and beef. And the Musical selections included, "16 Tons",

"O Sinner Man," "Mountain Dew," "He's Gone Away," and "Comin' 'Round the Mountain."

The banquet did not attract as many people as the singers had hoped for, but as Lambie stated "We need to build an audience for a different type of banquet." Lambie felt the banquet was really well done musically and had terrific food.

Lambie said Masters would probably continue having another type of banquet during the "odd" years, but whether it would be Appalachian or not, he didn't know. Senior Karen Nelson said, "I enjoyed it [the banquet] very much. It was different from Elizabethan banquet, but in a good way."

MEMORIZING THE GEOGRAPHY of South America, freshman Julie Walker wears a stylish green velour top over a plaid shirt

Styles echo 50's era

The 1979-80 fashions were a collage of many different styles from previous years and eras. Many modes were borrowed from the 50's, such as sweaters tied around the neck, plaid skirts, pleated skirts and straight skirts.

"There were many different styles of tops worn this year," stated freshman Julie Walker. Although they were big in past years, sweaters made an even bigger splash this year, worn alone, over another sweater, dickie or blouse, sweaters were seen constantly in the halls. Velours were popular, too. They came in all colors and styles, from boatneck to V-neck. Very few shirts had collars; the ones that did, had very small ones.

Fabrics were more into the natural cottons and wool, eliminating the need for as many synthetics as there had been.

Shoes were equally varied in styles. New and popular on the fashion scene were docksiders and "spikes" with ankle straps. Clogs, cowboy boots and saddle shoes were, again, big this year.

Prevailing colors were burgundy, plum and teal blue. The team of red and black was almost everywhere.

No single style was predominant. The only "law" was "do whatever you want to."

Spirits prevail during snowless holidays

Even though Glenview had a snowless Christmas, the holiday spirit was very alive at Glenbrook South.

Besides traditions such as the holiday assembly, the Kirk Center visit and the can drive, Student Council sponsored a pizza dinner.

The Council sold 533 "all you can eat" pizza dinner tickets for $1 per person. "The objective of the pizza dinner was not to raise money. We actually lost over $500. It was to raise the school spirit, which I believe we accomplished," claimed Student Council treasurer Bob Prihoda.

The can drive was not as successful as previous year, but the students collected 999 cans for the needy children. The Freshman Class won the can drive by bringing in more cans than any other class.

The Sophomore Class won the decoration contest. Each class had the opportunity to display its creative abilities in the form of decorating the cafeterias and the pits.

Two days before students were dismissed for winter break, an all-school assembly was held in the auditorium. The assembly consisted of singing and dancing by both the students and the teachers. "It was wild to see the teachers on the stage," commented senior Steve Silverman.

Key Club and Student Council played an important role in the holiday festivities. They went to the Kirk Center to give gifts and spend time with the children. Senior Todd Atkinson played Santa Claus.

The start of the varsity basketball game against New Trier West signalled an end to the pizza dinner. It was a close game, but GBS lost. "It was a good game, even though we lost. New Trier West was tough, and the refs were partial," concluded Silverman.

DECORATING THE CAFETERIAS and the new and old pits was part of Holiday Week. The Junior Class shows its creativity by putting each class member's name on a snowflake.

South graduates 19 in mid-year ceremony

Sineteen seniors graduated at Glenbrook South's mid-year graduation, which was held in the IMC on Friday, Jan. 25, from 2:00 p.m. to 2:45 p.m.

The ceremony opened with the invocation presented by the treasurer for the Class of 1980, Doug Sanders. Included in the commencement were speeches by Student Council senior representatives Cindy Alspaugh and Eric Gilliland and vice-president for the Class of 1980, Steve Plunkett.

Dr. William Schreiner presented the diplomas to the graduating students. The final address was given by senior Kim Bielat.

The early graduates finished at this point for many reasons. However, the biggest reason was to work. Karen Olenick, one of the early graduates, proceeded to get a job "to get a taste of the real world before college. I can learn to take care of finances, and I get a break from school." Karen will go on to college next fall to either Drake, Indiana or the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Other students, like Andrea Callas and Marcia Swanson, plan to pursue a career through their current jobs. Linda Peterson and Fran Sutz are already attending college, Linda at Oklahoma University and Fran at Mills College in Oakland, Ca.

Still, one other reason for graduating early came from Lisa Shineflug, who decided to go skiing in Aspen, Colo.

Other students who graduated early were Kelly Adams, Mark Danner, Paula Gauer, Barbara Loew, Richard Nugent, Joseph Papa, Paul Pappageorge, Cynthia Rouse, Kimberly Speck, Marilyn Sterner, Lori Tector, Silvia Vergara and Kathleen Wro-

Karen concluded by saying "I feel like I'm on vacation, like I'll be going back. I will keep in contact with teachers and friends, but it was to my advantage to do it (graduate) early, I'm eager to go to college."

AFTER RETURNING HER cap and gown to Student Activities, Lori Tector receives her diploma from Mr. Eleanor Holmes.

Following the tradition of "All That Jazz," "Magic to Do," "Comedy Tonight," and "Out of This World," "Hit The Road" hit the stage on February 21, 22 and 23, drawing record crowds on Thursday and Friday nights.

The theme of the show was travel, but it didn't restrict the diversification of the numbers. There were numbers ranging from Disney to disco, and from show tunes to "Good Ol' Rock n-Roll." The show was "more diversified with more variety than past years," said Liz Ventura.

Some of the more popular numbers were "Coney Island Babe," "Neat to be a Newsboy," "I'm wishing," "Jenny Take a Ride," and "Moon dance."

"Coney Island Babe" was performed barbershop quartet style by four guys, Tim Cullitan, Jim Figiel, Doug Sanders and Rick Warskow.

"Neat to be a Newsboy" was a solo act of Rick Warskow, and he captured the audience's heart by throwing newspapers into bushes and watching the bushes go "booinnnngg."

"I'm Wishing" featured Patti Johnson as Snow White with teachers dressed up as dwarfs.

"Jenny Take a Ride" added some rock to the show. It featured Steve Levitan, Lori Lindebaum, Cara Lukin and the Cosmic Interlude band.

"Moondance" featured Steve Levitan's singing and Jake Daab's skills on piano.

Backing up most of the numbers were the jazz band and the singers. The jazz band was directed by GBS students Marilyn Berdick and David Kaiser.

The show would not have been the same without the flexible set. "Rick Daniels and his stage crew did a great job on the set," according to Kim Kelley, student director.

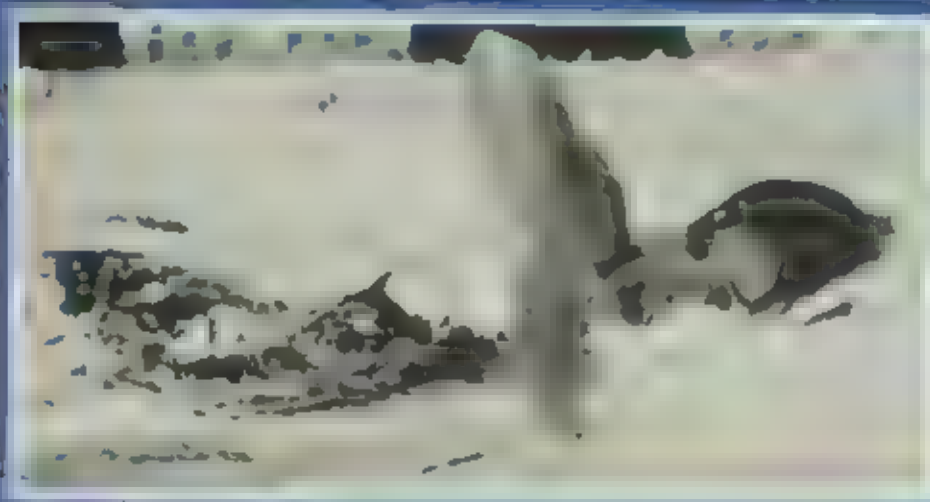

CLAIRE SENTE as Audrey Hepburn, Steve Levitan as Dracula, the football players as the Keystone Cops, Doug Sanders as Rhett Butler and a host of other characters surround Eric Gililand playing Charlie Chaplin, in "Movies Were Movies."

GBS places 8th in state competition

Many people thing of swim ming as a recreational sport, but for the girls' swim team it is a more serious matter

The girls' swim team finished the season with a winning record of 6-3. They placed 4th in Dis tricts and 8th in State

The state qualifiers this year were senior Jody Stetson for the 100 and 200-yard freestyles, senior Brooke Bauer and sopho more Marla Pearlstein for div ing, Nancy Mockros, senior, for the 100-yard butterfly, and the 400-yard freestyle relay team, consisting of Stetson, senior Ni cole Suerth, sophomore Stacey Aschenbrener and senior Tracee

Hoffmeyer. In the state meet Stetson placed 4th in the 200 yard freestyle and 6th in the 100-yard freestyle

The relay team of Stetson, Suerth, Aschenbrener and Hoff meyer placed 8th in the 400 yard relay in State

This year Stetson broke the school records in the 200-frees tyle, 50-freestyle and 100-frees tyle. Bauer broke the diving re cord with a score of 413.45

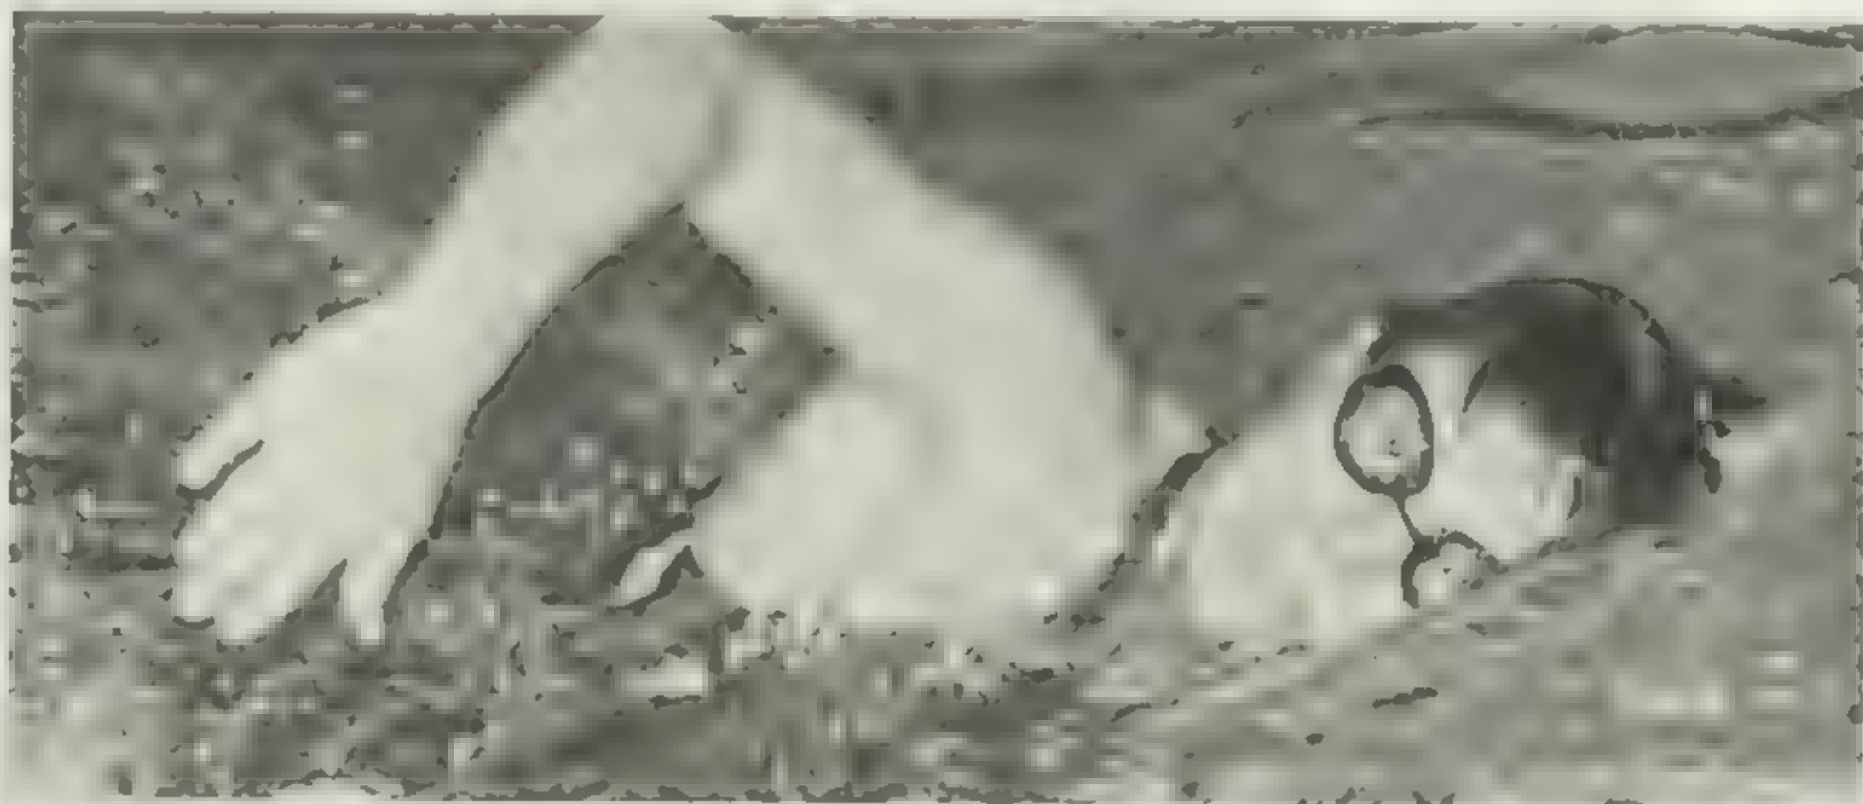

In diving, the girls took 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place in 6 of 10 meets. In conference, Bauer placed 1st, Marla Pearlstein placed 2nd and Jane Heiden reich placed 3rd

In district competition, Bauer took 4th place and Pearlstein took 6th. In State, Bauer placed 5th and Pearlstein placed 11th

The most valuable award went to Stetson, the most im proved went to Mockros, and the Titan spirit award went to Hoffmeyer

"It was an outstanding season regardless of the team record," commented Coach William Stet son, "the 8th place finish in State shows this. The team worked hard and had a good mental and emotional attitude, which really showed at the end of the season with their finish "

Girls finish undefeated; new coach leads boys

People may not find running to be a fun way to pass the time, but the girls' cross country team sure enjoys it.

The girls, under the direction of Mr. Tom Neville, had a record of seven wins and no losses. They also placed second to Evanston in the district meet, which qualified them for the state meet.

The team worked out two hours each day. Their workout included sprints twice a week and running three to seven mile three times a week.

Carol Mockros and Anne Attea shared the honor of most valuable runner.

Neville said, "The team had an outstanding year all year long. They just kept believing they could win and did."

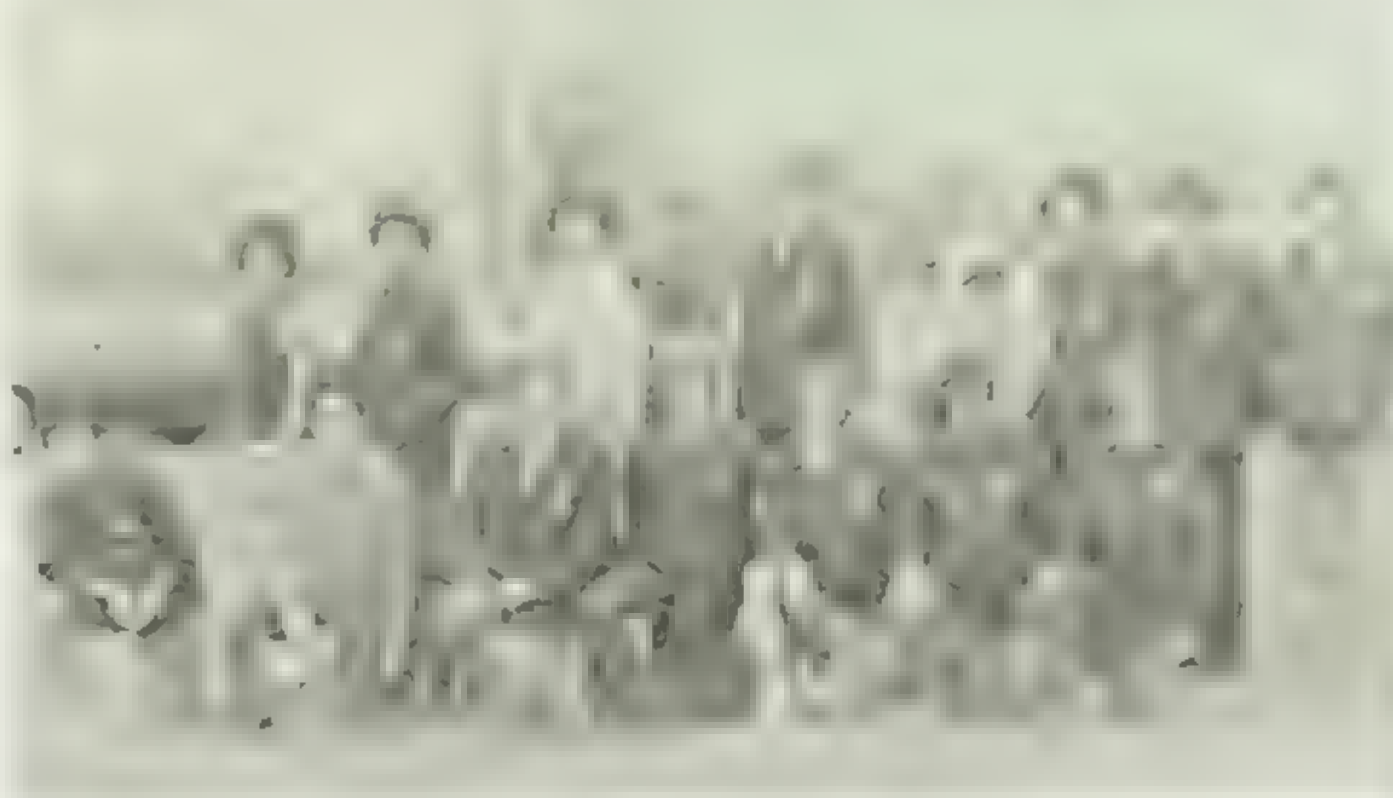

South's boys' cross country team was under the direction of a new coach this year, Mr. Dave Pasquini, social studies teacher. Pasquini came to GBS from East Leyden, where he developed a successful cross country program.

Hampered by a lack of depth, the Titans won only one dual meet this year, a forfeit from Niles North.

Junior Mike Emmons was voted most valuable runner by the team members. Most improved honors went to freshman Sammy Lee and sophomore Dan Schnell won the iron man award.

Graduation hurts team

The 1979-1980 varsity football season was a disappointment for the Titans, who finished 4-5. To begin with, GBS lost 23 seniors who were big factors in South's conference title victory in 1978.

"At the start of the season," remarked Head Coach Bob Schoenwetter, "I felt it would be a struggle." The team dropped the season opener, 28-7, to Mt Prospect. South's only score came on a pitchout from relief quarterback Mike McPhilliamy to John Marcquenski, who skipped across the goal line in the final minutes of the fourth quarter.

The second game was more promising. The Titans scored one touchdown in the first quarter and came up with a win of 7-0 over Evanston.

Lack of experience wasn't evident when GBS beat New Trier West in the team's first conference game of the year. Jim McCauley scored twice on handoffs from Jeff Cieply, and Ed Lees scored once. Todd Atkinson kicked two extra points and GBS won 20-0.

Next on the agenda was the annual grudge match against Glenbrook North. "It was decisive for us," Coach Schoenwetter said. "We could've scored early in the game." The Titans lost 7-0.

The Maine West game was another letdown. "They were the best team we played," Schoenwetter thought. GBS lost that game by a score of 22-0. The following week's game at Highland Park was also a big disappointment for South, which lost 14-0.

The homecoming game played against Waukegan East was a much needed victory, 14-2. Schoenwetter felt that, "the blocking improved. We came up with big plays."

He also commended players Jim Klausner, John Marcquenski, and Scott Dickau for their play, although he added, "I'm satisfied with the majority of players."

Sophomore quarterback Mike McPhilliamy noted, "We had the talent. We just didn't put it together."

Frosh B's compile best underclass mark

The sophomore team ended its season with a 2-5-2 record, with the highlight being the last game of the year against sophomore conference champion Maine East. The sophomores set Maine East by four points.

Sophomore Coach Ron Fearn said, "We had a successful season with getting more people to play, and we showed improvement. We had a team effort this year."

The freshman A team, coached by Mr. Tom McIntyre, came up with a 3-5 record for the season. With the help of full back Dan McCann, who led the team in rushing, Jim Blondell, who led the team in tackles, and the hard work of the whole team, the freshmen "came a long way" according to McIntyre.

The "turning point" of the season came with the victory over Highland Park, which was the team's first win after three losses.

The Freshman B team compiled a record of 5-3, with two of the victories being forfeits. A victory over New Trier West by a score of 28-8 turned out to be the high point of the season. According to freshman B Coach Steve Von Boeckman, in this game the team executed its assignments well, with only one penalty.

Steve Day, Tim Kelly, Matt Ferraro and Paul Pyle were elected honorary captains by their teammates.

"They were an excellent group of individuals. We had a rewarding season for team members and coaches," said Von Boeckman of his team.

Titan golfers capture key tournament

South's varsity boys' golf team finished its season with an overall record of 9-4 and 4-2 in conference.

The boys on the team were "hard-working, enthusiastic, highly competitive and extremely fine players of the game," said Coach Ralph Ganzer of the team which placed first of 26 teams at the Champaign Invitational.

In addition to top placement in meets, the team "is as fine a group of young men as I've ever had since I've been coaching," said Ganzer. Ganzer acknowledged Tom Nelson as most valuable senior. He placed first among 49 boys in the conference tournament and placed first among 70 boys at the Wheeling Invitational Tournament.

Also recognized as one of the better members of the team is Walt Suberg, recipient of the Gary Linhart Memorial Trophy which is awarded to the most valuable junior. Suberg tied for third among 70 boys at Chevy Chase Invitational and placed sixth among 84 boys in the district tournament.

The boys' JV team ended the 1979 season with a dual meet record of 11-2 and 5-1 in the conference as co-champs. The team placed first among 21 teams at the Conant Invitational and second among 21 teams at the Lake Forest Invitational. Although Coach Richard Gregory commended Rick Blest as most valuable player, "there was a good team effort where it takes seven good players," Gregory said. "A lot of people did an awful lot to dedicate themselves to a winning golf program," he added.

South's girls' golf team completed its season with an overall mark of 12-3.

The girls placed second in the Northern Intersuburban Golf Conference and finished fourth at sectionals. "This was the best girls' golf team we've had in six years," said Coach Jan Fuller.

The team also placed first at the IHSA Districts. "All six varsity players were medalist at one time or another," said Coach Fuller. "The team will come back strong next year because we are only graduating one senior, Laura Whitcomb."

BOYS' SWIMMING

Tankers take 2nd; two qualify for state

The Glenbrook South boys' ~~swims~~ team finished its season with a 5-3 record. They placed third in the Deerfield Invitational and fifth in the Evanston Invitational. They took second place in both the Titan Relays and in the IHSA district meet.

In the district meet senior Tom Weingartner placed first in the 100-breaststroke and second in the 200-individual medley, senior Gary Hannigan placed second in Diving, and seniors Jerry Scully and Ed Bohn and juniors Dave Heidenreich and Paul Braeseke placed second in the 400-freestyle relay.

Along with their team of 5-3 record, the swimmers broke two swimming records. Tom Weingartner broke the 200-individual medley with a time of 2:06.8 and Adam Domecq, Scott Unice, John Carlson, and Rob Stonis, the freshman 200 yard medley relay team, broke the record with a time of 1:54.3.

The most valuable swimmer was Tom Weingartner and the most improved swimmer was Jerry Scully. The most valuable diver was Gary Hannigan and "Slippery Suit Award" was given to Adam Domecq.

"We had a young team this year and time was needed for improvement. We used the time and gave our best efforts in districts," commented Coach Bill Stetson.

GIRLS TENNIS

COMPETITION TAKES TOLL ON NETTERS

The girls' tennis team finished its season with an overall record of 3 wins, 7 losses and a 1-5 conference record.

In the conference meet, the Titans placed sixth out of seven teams, with top Titan finisher Susie Buckingham placing in the finals at third singles.

The team finished seventh out of nine in the district meet. "It was a frustrating year with many illnesses and injuries, but it provided a lot of opportunity for other members of the team to play," commented Coach Larry Faulkner.

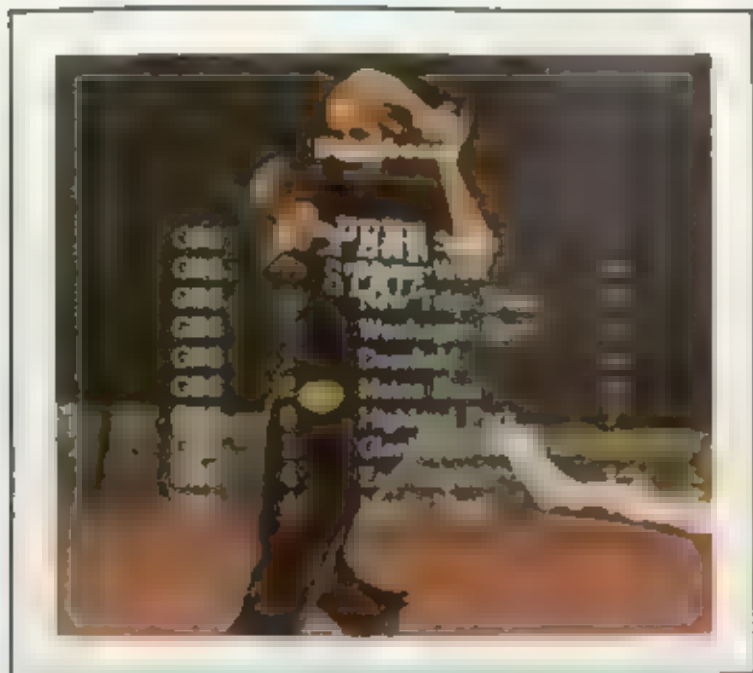

The first singles player this year was Laurie Frenzel, the most valuable varsity player was Lauren Mogensen, the most improved varsity player was Cindy Weiss, and the most improved JV player was Julie Walker. This year the team will be losing the following seniors: Julie Jennings, Wendy Wagner, Mogensen, Marlene Fenster, and Tracy Kolba.

Positive attitude keeps team strong

South's girls' volleyball team finished the season with a 5-8 record. It had a conference record of 0-6.

In Districts, the girls played against New Trier West and lost 18-20, 22-20 and 12-20.

"That was the best they played all season," stated Coach Tony Calabrese. "Even though they didn't have as good a record as last year, 14-2, the team was just as strong."

Next year's team will be without the help of seniors Terry Haberkorn, Linda Niemann, Ricki Gaynor, Karen Nelson and Karen Baumann.

Most valuable players for South were Terry Haberkorn and Linda Niemann, the most improved player was Karen Baumann and the most consistent player was Anne Boscamp.

"The attitude of the team this year was super!" concluded Calabrese.

Booters finish 9-2-3

Like any other year, the soccer team this year had its ups and downs. Usually it has had too many downs and not enough ups, but this year things were different.

Glenbrook South's soccer team had its best season ever, with a final record of 9-2-3. By the end of the season, the team acquired 28 goals. The defense was strong, earning seven shutouts. Besides being its best season, it was also South's first winning season, as the team finished second in conference and made it to the playoffs.

Some students at Glenbrook South may wonder why the team did so well. After all, it won but one game last season. According to John Sullivan, senior, "The team did play well last year. We lost our games by just a point or two. We had the potential, we just couldn't win. This team has been together for the last four years. Always getting better, always learning more. We even played spring and summer soccer together."

When the team beat top-ranked Evanston in its fourth game, "It was the spark that got our season going," according to Sullivan.

The booters won many awards, and there were several great individual performances. Four players earned all-conference recognition: Ernie Burkholder, Dave Schrauth, Stuart Conger and John Sullivan.

Sullivan was also voted the most valuable player of the team. He was awarded the Sportsmanship Award from the Optimist Club of Glenview. Sullivan was also recognized as one of the top 50 high school soccer players in the state.

Dave Schrauth led the booters in scoring with 13 goals. John Krasnodetski was awarded the school's most improved player award. Robby Suhr led the team in assists with eight. Finally, Volker Kluge was presented with the Academic Athlete award for keeping a high grade average.

The team lost a tough first playoff game. When asked to comment on the loss, Sullivan said, "Most of the team was disappointed, but I really can't complain because we did have a great year."

Senior Torsten Kluge said it best, "All these years GBS has been a football school, but now soccer is beginning to have quite an influence."

The team was led by Head Coach Don Rabeor. The coach seems to really enjoy running the team, "The players have a great attitude toward playing and winning. I really enjoyed coaching the team. It's always more fun to coach a winning team," he states.

CAPTAIN JOHN SULLIVAN and Ernie Burkholder discuss ground rules with the referee before the game against Waukegan East.

Team wins pair; coaches hopeful

In spite of the varsity softball team's disappointing record of 2-10, its coaches, Mrs. Kay Sopocy (varsity) and Mr. Tom McIntyre (javyee), are optimistic about the future.

The varsity team's only wins were against Waukegan East, by a score of 5-4, and New Trier East, by a score of 13-3.

The team was mostly seniors and sophomores. Senior Pam Theriault was named most valuable player and sophomore Dawn Johnson was named most improved. In addition, junior Melinda Daniels was named to be on the CSL South Division all-conference team.

According to Coach Sopocy and Coach McIntyre, the year's bad season was attributed to the girls not being used to playing together as a team.

"Next year should be better in terms of team work because the girls have already had one season together," concluded Sopocy.

Team wins its second straight conference championship

Glenbrook South's varsity boys' tennis team won its second consecutive conference championship last spring by edging second place Glenbrook North with a score of 36-34. Junior Brad Pontow captured the second singles title while the team of senior Jim Rhind and junior John Albrecht won the second doubles championship.

South capped its season by placing second in the district tournament. Sophomore Eric Korita led the way by losing only four games in five matches on his way to the first singles championship.

The team began its season in the Liberty Bell Invitational held at Glenbrook South and Glenbrook North, and although South lost this tournament, the tandem of Rhind and senior Bill Podulka took second place out of 16 doubles teams. The following week South went on to take a second place trophy in the eight-team Maine North Tournament. In this particular meet, Rhind and Albrecht won the championship for second doubles, 12-5, against Wheeling while Pontow finished second in first singles against Buffalo Grove.

The varsity team earned its first dual meet victory against Hersey by a final score of 6-1 and with all six South teams winning their games. Yet the team's first big win occurred when the tennis team defeated Niles West 5-0 in the first conference match of the season. South also won its second conference meet, 3-2, as it hosted Glenbrook North. The team upped its conference record to 3-0 when it blanked Maine West 5-0.

In the Titan Invitational, South was defeated by Glenbrook North but still had champions in the doubles team of Podulka and senior Kirk Vogel, as well as Korita, who made his conference record 4-0 by winning his match at first singles. Other players contributing to the second place win were junior Steve Elliff at third singles and Rhind and Albrecht at second doubles.

Mr. Larry Faulkner, tennis coach, stated that last year's team was "one of the strongest teams as far as depth is concerned. We had two exceptional singles players and two successful doubles teams because of hard work and practice."

Sluggers win first regional championship

The 1979 baseball season was a wet one. Many of the games were rained out, and others were not played to their entirety due to the rain.

The varsity team won its first four games and then began to slip. Of the team's later play Head Coach Jim Bloch said, "The team became 'inconsistent'." However, the team won its last four games to finish strongly.

GBS' final record was 11-10, placing the Titans third in conference. They were also runner up in the IHSA regional tournament.

Most valuable player was Ron Santo, and all-conference players were Jim Powers, Dan Porter and Kevin Scherer.

In summer baseball, the team, minus graduating seniors, finished with a 14-7 record and was regional champion, sectional runner-up, and tied for fifth in state. The regional championship was the first ever won by GBS.

Bloch said one reason for the summer team's success was the willingness of the players. He also said that the summer season was the most enjoyable and fulfilling experience that he'd ever had.

The sophomore team had troubles. It finished with a 3-4-1 record. Coach Carmen Del Giudice stated, "We struggled through a learning process and started to show our skills at the end."

The freshman "A" team also finished with a record of 3-4-1. It defeated Waukegan East twice in close games. The freshman "B" team didn't do as well, finishing 2-9-1. The team was coached by Mr. Ed Young, who mentioned Mark Protus as an outstanding defensive player and Tim Thoelecke as leading pitcher. Other key players were Pete Savio, Rick Blesi and Kevin Kelly.

Girl's badminton takes fourth in conference

Swish! Smash! The GBS girls' badminton team has been working hard!

Interest in this sport is increasing at GBS: the team played on three levels for the first time.

Varsity finished fourth in conference with a 2-5 dual meet record. Jayvees finished second in conference with a 4-1 dual meet record. The team also participated in the Maine East, New Trier West and Conant Invitationals.

Outstanding varsity players included Mary Marconcini and Cathy Falasz, who won first place in the league championships in number one doubles. These two were also voted most valuable players. Maren Walker played number one singles and advanced to the district quarter finals with what Coach Jan Fuller termed, "an outstanding performance!"

Julie Gilbertson was the most improved varsity player. Heidi Lindblad and Patti Forester took second place in number two doubles in the league conference meet.

Jayvees finished second place in conference. "Jayvees were really eager and they improved a tremendous amount," said Coach Fuller. Nan Schafer and Ceci Campo finished second in number one jayvee doubles at the League championships. Ceci was voted most valuable Jayvee player, and her only comments on her success was "I love badminton" and "It was a great season!" Most improved Jayvee player was Ricki Gaynor.

Girl gymnasts capture conference title

Upon entering a girls' gymnastics team practice, one is impressed with the atmosphere of chalk dust, blisters, and concentration that coincides with the serene grace and beauty of ballet.

For the girls' gymnastics team, rigorous training paid off. The team had a conference record of 6-1, which was good enough to earn them the title of conference champions, making it the first girls' gymnastics team in the history of GBS to win the championship. In addition to winning the conference title, the team placed first at the East Leyden Invitational, second at the district meet, third at the sectional meet, and third at the state meet.

According to Coach Diane Kelley, the team's performance was good. "Particularly at the conference meet and state. All girls were 100 per cent turned on. An extra pizzazz seemed to radiate from them as never before. They all really responded to the challenge at hand."

Coach Kelley said the attitude of the team was "very strong." This attitude helped the girls because "they would make up their minds before a competition that they could win." Apparently, once the girls decided they could win, they did. The team captains, Briget Carr, Tammy Levy, and Lisa Hussey, led the team to their "best year ever," said Kelley.

Titan swimmers sweep division championship

Paced by triple first-place winners Mike McKevitt and Lynn Stetson, Glenbrook South's varsity swimming team captured its first conference swimming team championship in the school's 17-year history.

McKevitt took first place in 50 and 100-yard freestyles and teamed with Craig Stiffler, Dean Simmons and Stetson to win the 400-yard freestyle relay. Stetson's other first places came in the 200 and 500-yard freestyle races. Del Waters captured South's sixth first place trophy.

In addition to winning the conference title, the Titans splashed to a 7-2-1 dual meet record, with wins against Libertyville, Maine South, Waukegan East, Maine East, Maine West and Niles West. The lone tie was against Glenbrook North, 86-86.

The Titans also were champions in the Deerfield Invitational, and took second in the Titan Relays and the Indian Relays.

Stetson led the GBS tankers in the district meet, winning both the 200 and 500-yard freestyles. He placed sixth in both events in the state swimming meet, earning honorable mention All American honors.

Coach William Stetson felt that this team was a good one. "It was a great group," he said. "We had an extraordinary senior group—it was a large one. The juniors were an extraordinarily close group. They worked together, and I think that is what makes them good. There was no one leader."

Boys improve skills; practice brings victory

According to Varsity Track Coach John Davis it requires a special kind of athlete to be in track. An athlete must have stamina, dedication, sportsmanship, and must be willing to give his all to compete in track.

Both the boys' and girls' track teams put forth a great effort, according to varsity coaches John Davis and Jodi Gitelis.

"The team has done super," said Coach Gitelis. "I was pleased with everybody and their efforts toward winning and being a successful team, and the results showed when we came in third in the conference! Boy, were all the coaches proud!"

As well as their third place conference finish the girls' track team won two out of their three dual meets. In the three triangular meets the girls took second in two and the other one was canceled because of rain.

In fact, because of the rain, this year's track season didn't live up to its full potential. "It was a short season this year and a very rainy one," said Coach Gitelis.

The boys' varsity track team finished with a record of 3-8. The team's more notable accomplishments included winning one invitational meet and placing second and third in two other meets. The boys' track team finished fourth in the outdoor conference and fifth in the indoor conference meets.

Mr John Davis, the boys' varsity coach, feels that the team made lots of improvement. Many of the team members improved their time and distance and as a result became more competitive.

Track includes 18 events in all and because of this, needs many athletes to compete. Unfortunately, the GBS track team did not meet this "depth" and suffered as a result. Coach Davis thinks this "lack of depth" kept the team from being a winning one.

One of GBS's most outstanding track athletes, Jim Hunter, tries to attain maximum distance in the longjump

Cagers notch 18-7 mark, place second in conference

The GBS boys' varsity basketball team finished the season with an 18-7 record, placing it in second place in the Central Suburban League South Division.

While winning the GBS Thanksgiving Tournament, the Titans played their first eight games ending with an 8-0 record. Their undefeated string came to an end when they lost 55-54 in a last second loss to New Trier West, the eventual league champions.

At the York Holiday Tournament, the Titans placed fourth out of 16 teams. They lost to the eventual champions, York, in the semifinals 81-78.

During the season, the team had the help of four seniors, Jim Drimalla, George Opelka, Todd Atkinson and John Cullen. Also, juniors Dan Ivankovich and Tom Shunick and sophomore Jeff Cozad contributed to the season effort.

Ivankovich and Opelka received all-conference honors, and Drimalla received honorable mention.

Leading scorers were Ivankovich, averaging 21 points per game, Opelka, averaging 14 points per game, and Drimalla, averaging 13 points per game. Ivankovich was named most valuable player, and Opelka was chosen as most improved player.

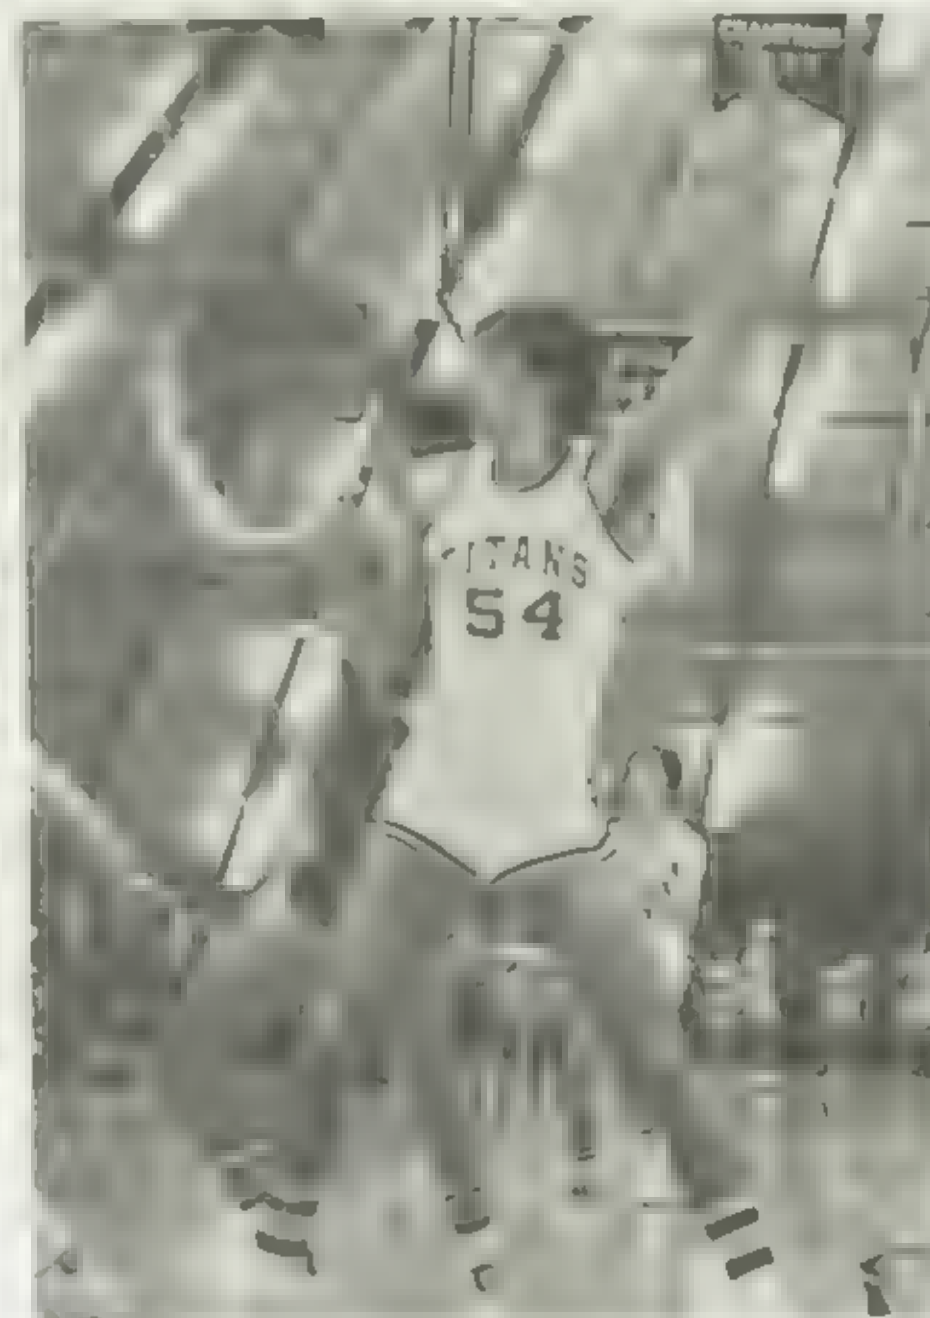

Coach Ed Young commented, "Our record this year was a good indication of our success. Even though Ivankovich, Drimalla and Opelka did most of the game scoring, we really played well as a team throughout the year."

Frosh A's win conference

little luck and some talent went a long way for the underclass boys' basketball teams this year.

The freshman "A" team finished with a 10-0 conference record. It's the first time the freshmen ever won the conference. The most important game, according to Coach Dan Sonnenberg, was the New Trier West game. At that time NTW was 7-1 and GBS was 7-0.

The most valuable freshman players, according to Coach Dan Sonnenberg, were Dave Sanders, Darren Pacholski and Eric Joost. Joost was also named most improved player. The team finished with a 12-0 overall record, best in the history of GBS frosh basketball.

The freshman "B" team finished with an 8-9 record, which is the best Frosh B record in five years. South's defeat of Ridgewood by a score of 79-32 was the highlight of the season.

Mr. Howard Romanek, head coach, mentioned that all the players showed improvement in ability towards the end of the season, and that the team worked well as a group. "They were a fine group to work with and coach," he said.

Top players on the team included Jim D'Alexander, Jim Coan, Jeff Thoelecke, Otto Shineflug, Elias Florakes, Mike Tamarkin and Tom Gilligan.

The sophomore team finished with a 12-9 record and took second place in the conference. Mr. Rich Gregory, head coach, remarked that all the games were important, but that games against Maine East, Maine West, and New Trier West were outstanding. "The first time we played Maine East we beat them by one point, and they were the eventual conference champs."

He said Scott Patterson was the most improved player, and that John Bubala and Mike McPhillamy were both good players.

"The team learned to handle things well," Gregory stated. "They played well even though there were a lot of injuries and illness. They're a close-knit group."

The Junior Varsity team finished with a 6-4 record. The most important games the team played were against Ridgewood and New Trier West. Coach Carmen DelGiudice named Rich Schanken, Jim Kelly and Mark Isensee as the team's most important players. He also remarked, "the team had probably the best JV record in the school's history."

Seniors pace matmen during 7-13 season

Wrestlers "do it" in six minutes or at least that is what their T-shirts say.

The question is, What exactly do they do in six minutes? According to team member Scott Lesser, they do half nelsons, pins, turks, takedowns, and hip tosses.

The Glenbrook South wrestling team finished the season with an overall record of 7-13, and a division record of 1-5.

One of the season's highlights, said Coach Max Farley, was the meet against New Trier East when the GBS men lost by one point to the Indians, a really strong team with a good record.

Another high point of their season came when they sent two wrestlers, seniors Jim Klausner and Dave Brody into the final rounds of South's home tournament. Klausner went on to finish the season with a personal record of 23-9.

The Titan wrestlers participated in three tournaments in addition to many dual meets. The tournaments were at Niles East, Buffalo Grove, and here at South.

The Titan matmen "suffered two key injuries," said Coach Farley. Senior Dave Brody had a knee injury that kept him out for a good part of the season, and senior Eric Brubaker had an injury that kept him from wrestling.

Skaters finish 4 - 17 under rookie coach

Unlike the victorious U.S. Olympic hockey team, the Glenbrook South Titans met with defeat. South finished with a record of 4-17. However, four players from GBS made the All Star conference team. They were Ernie Burkholder, Scott Di Gilio, Steve Plunkett and Les Frenzel. D. Gilio was also lead scorer for GBS.

One outstanding event in an otherwise frustrating season was the 3-2 victory over Deerfield late in the season. It brought South out of last place and enabled the Titans to finish seventh out of eighth teams in the Chicago Metro North division.

The team also had a new coach this year, Vee LaCroix, who, according to one player, was busy teaching the team new skills.

Senior Paul Kapustka, a right wing and center, has been playing hockey for four years at GBS. He remarked, "Our new coach taught us something in every game we played." He also noted, "All the games were important. I feel I have learned more this year than in any other year."

Gymnasts continue success

Glenbrook South's gymnastics team followed its conference championship of last year with another successful season.

The 1979-1980 gymnastics team sent four of its members, Julie Wienski, Jennifer Jacob, Julie Walker and Cathy Adams, downstate to compete. South placed second at the conference meet, which, in addition to previous meets, gave them an overall record of 121.

The junior varsity team remained undefeated throughout the season and was the champion of its conference.

The team's outstanding competitor was Cathy Adams, who worked all four events but excelled on the balance beam. At state finals she placed sixth with a score of 8.6.

With most all team members returning for next year, coaches Diane Kelley and Tony Calabrese look forward to an even more successful season.

Girl cagers win conference

Girls basketball is ponytails, sweat socks, Converse tennies, a lot of practice and fun.

The Glenbrook South girls' basketball team finished a successful season with an overall record of 18-6 and a conference record of 11-1. Their conference record proved good enough to make the team the Central Suburban League Conference champions for the first time.

The conference games were all exciting, especially the game against New Trier West, which GBS won by just one point, and the games against Glenbrook North and Evanston, which GBS won by only two baskets. Nevertheless, "Winning the conference championship had to be the highlight of the season," said

Coach Don Rabeor.

The team was led to the championship by its top scorer, junior Jackie Monckton, who averaged 16.8 points per game. The top rebounders, Hollis Hindes and Monckton, averaged 10 rebounds per game.

Coach Rabeor was pleased with the team's record, "especially because we started two sophomores, two juniors and just one senior." The team will have seven players returning next season.

Coach Rabeor summed up the season by saying, "Their record was the best they've ever had."

A club is just a club at most schools, but at GBS a club is a family.

Of course, the students in a club are together during meetings and club gatherings, but at GBS a club represents a type of family.

For instance, band members tend to stick together; they even have their own bench!

Swimmers also stick together; they even have their own table in the cafeteria. Football players tend to hang around together in the cafeteria, whereas Student Council members usually can be found in the Student Activities Office.

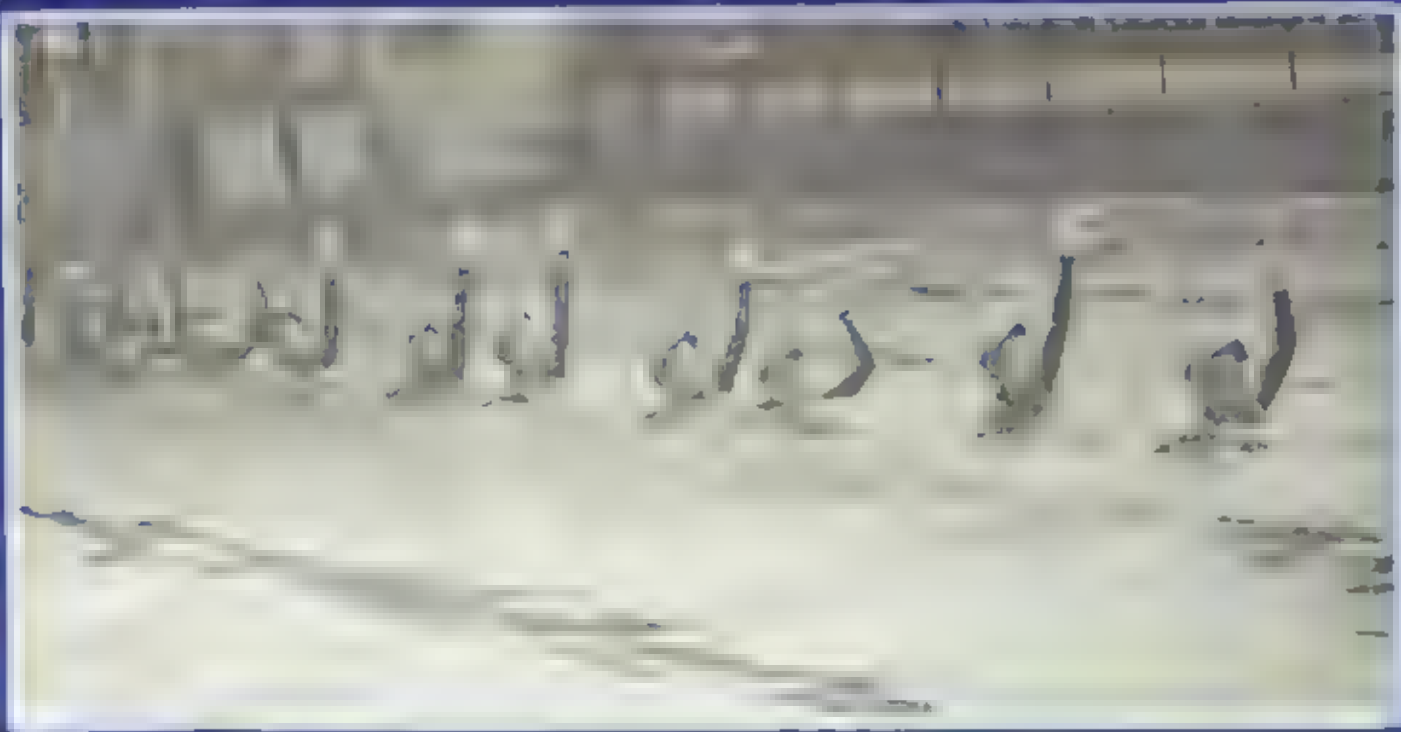

When it comes down to it, though, when GBS is competing against another school, all the clubs become one big club with the same purpose - to make GBS the best!

Etruscan compiled a list of clubs with the most students. The six clubs with the largest membership were as follows:

1. Band
2. JGC
3. Key Club
4. National Honor Society
5. Presidents' Council
6. Student Council

Deadline, copy, layout, negatives, interviews, money, and complaints are the problems that publication students have encountered throughout the year.

The yearbook especially had problems with photographs.

"We changed photographers this year, so the old photographers had to send all our negatives back to us. Well, they got lost in the mail and most of those pictures were in color. Now we couldn't develop any pictures. The worst thing that could ever happen besides missing deadlines is lost negatives," commented Bella Nicolas, Etruscan editor.

The yearbook staff made significant changes from previous years regarding content. For example, the yearbook will be 276 pages long, the longest yearbook ever at GBS, and there will be more color pictures in the sports section.

"We hope the changes will meet the students' approval," comments Mr. Ted Helser, adviser.

Etruscan has a new four-member editorial board which consists of the editor-in-chief, senior

Bella Nicolas, associate editors, senior Cheri Libby and junior Debbie Gordon; and production manager, senior Anita Shah. Along with the editorial board, were 14 other students producing the 1979-80 "Book of Lists" yearbook.

The Oracle, the student newspaper, also made changes. The third page was for news briefs, the sports section had a sports feature in every issue. "I'm hoping that this year because of such a talented staff, we really put out dynamite newspapers," said Cheri Libby. "This year's staff was really small, but due to the talent of the small staff, the paper tried to really interest the students."

The Oracle's editorial board consisted of Cheri Libby, editor in-chief; Lisa Hoey, managing editor; Debbie Gordon and Collette St. Aubin, feature editors; Brian Bartsch, Scott Bloom, and Paul Kapustka, news editors; Tom Coyle, sports editor, and seven other students.

The literary magazine, Calliope, is now entitled Atheneum. The staff changed the name because they disliked the name Calliope and have for a quite a while.

"We spent many days trying to decide on a new name, and Atheneum is it — it seemed to fit the magazine," replied Maureen O'Brien, co-editor. "Calliope, Greek muse of epic poetry, as I understand it, was picked one year. The next few years, they decided they liked it or they couldn't all agree on a name they liked more. This year we found Atheneum, an institution for the promotion of learning."

Cash prizes of $15 to first place winners, and $10 to second place winners were given to students who entered and won the poetry, art/photography, and fiction contest.

Atheneum's editorial board consists of co-editors Leslie MacKenzie and Maureen O'Brien, assistant editor, Andre Pavkovic, and six other members. Atheneum is published in February and in May.

IN ORDER TO raise money for the GBS Literary magazine members of the club sold popcorn and other snacks, junior Barry Gilbert returns the change after a student purchase.

Students experience leadership opportunities

Peer Group

Glenbrook South juniors and seniors have an opportunity to experience leadership before going out into the world. This opportunity is given by the GBS organization called Peer Group. The main object of Peer Group is to enrich communication among fellow students. Members of the Peer Group are selected by Mr. Nick DuPont, Jim Torstello and Bob Ferrantelli. In order to become a member, a junior or senior has to be recommended by a teacher or counselor.

AFS

The main purpose of the American Field Service is to sponsor students from other countries to exchange cultures for one year. This year, the AFS Chapter sponsored two students: Claudio Galvan from San Juan, Argentina, and Fehima El Agrebi from Tunisia, Africa.

The Glenbrook South AFS Club had a major change this year. Instead of the annual candy sale the club held a magazine sale. Senior Anita Shah, president, explained, "Our chapter realized that there would be a greater profit from the magazine sale and there was less work involved."

The club also participated in a short term exchange with Grand Marais, Minn. Seven students from GBS participated. One of the participants, junior Valerie Ruddle commented, "I learned how to live in different cultures and would recommend this experience to anyone."

The AFS club is a non-profit organization and the most active one as far as all school participation is concerned. Ms. Robbin Mester, sponsor of the club, said, "The year we had many events that included the whole school like the International weekend, pumpkin carving and magazine sale."

Drama Club

Many times the only exposure the basic GBS student has to Drama Club is the announcement of how their float did in the homecoming parade. For those more closely in contact with the club, its benefits have been numerous.

Drama Club's main "role" is to support and encourage student participation in the three major theatre productions at GBS. The club also sponsors a children's show every other year, and on the off year, Drama Club provides the entertainment for the Elizabethan Banquet in conjunction with the Music Department.

"The club is a real good way for me to get to know the hard core drama students in a situation beyond the classroom and beyond the director/actor relationships. I only wish that we had more time to develop club activities to greater extent," commented Mrs. Gael Routenberg, Drama Club advisor.

Another event that Drama Club, in conjunction with Key Club, provided is the entertainment for a Thanksgiving dinner for Maryhaven and Saint Anne Nursing Homes.

Drama Club, which is sponsored by Mrs. Gael Routenberg, has approximately 40-45 members. The officers are president Eric Gilliland, vice president Elizabeth Ventura, secretary Lisa Shineflug and treasurer Denise Volmer.

"Drama Club may have had a slow start this year, but we are picking up." With the children's show, banquet, spring play and theatre, the Drama Club had been busy with second semester," concludes senior Liz Ventura, vice president.

Band visits Opryland; orchestra hosts WIU

Glenbrook South's band had a productive year despite cancellation of its fall trip

ELLEN MILLER, KIM Macey, and Kathy Riley play their clarinets in a band concert

The marching band was supposed to travel to Denver, Col. to perform during the half time of a Denver Broncos football game. The trip, however, was cancelled due to a snow storm that hit Denver. The band was invited by the Broncos to play, and not being able to go disappointed everyone. "We were all ready to go, and all of a sudden we got a call saying the trip was cancelled," explained senior Grant Peters.

The band did quite well in the marching contests it entered during the year. It won the annual Sycamore, Illinois marching contest for the fourth consecutive time.

The band was also invited to play at the Daley Civic Center by the city of Chicago.

The success of the band is partly due to the strong pride of its members. "The band is the pride of the school. It is the only spirit the school has," claims sophomore Jim Waechter.

The band performs at all the home football games and other sporting events. Grant Peters adds, "The band performance during half time of the football games brings much of the spirit to the games."

The band's biggest event of the year was a trip to Nashville, Tenn. They entered a band contest at Opryland theme park. They also performed at the University of Louisville and at a Nashville high school.

Band director Peter Pappas is very proud of the band's success this year. "The band is performing well. They are better than they were a year ago (February)." "

Orchestra

The Glenbrook South orchestra performed many concerts throughout the year.

The orchestra periodically performed concerts in the auditorium and the cafeteria. The concerts were primarily for entertainment purposes. They were open to anyone who wanted to listen to the orchestra's performance, with no charge for admission.

Senior Geoff Muckenhirn had a solo at the concert held in February. Muckenhirn was the concert master of the performance. Being concert master means that he played first chair, first violin. "It was a real honor to be concert master in the performance," commented Muckenhirn.

The North and South orchestras united to perform two concerts during the year. One performance, performed in the Norman E. Watson Auditorium, included the Western Illinois orchestra, which was on tour at the time. The concert was one of the highlights of the year.

The second concert included just the North and South orchestras.

Mr. Frank Winkler completed his first year as orchestra conductor. Some students think very highly of him. "He is a very good conductor. He has done a fine job in succeeding Dan Burgess," adds Muckenhirn.

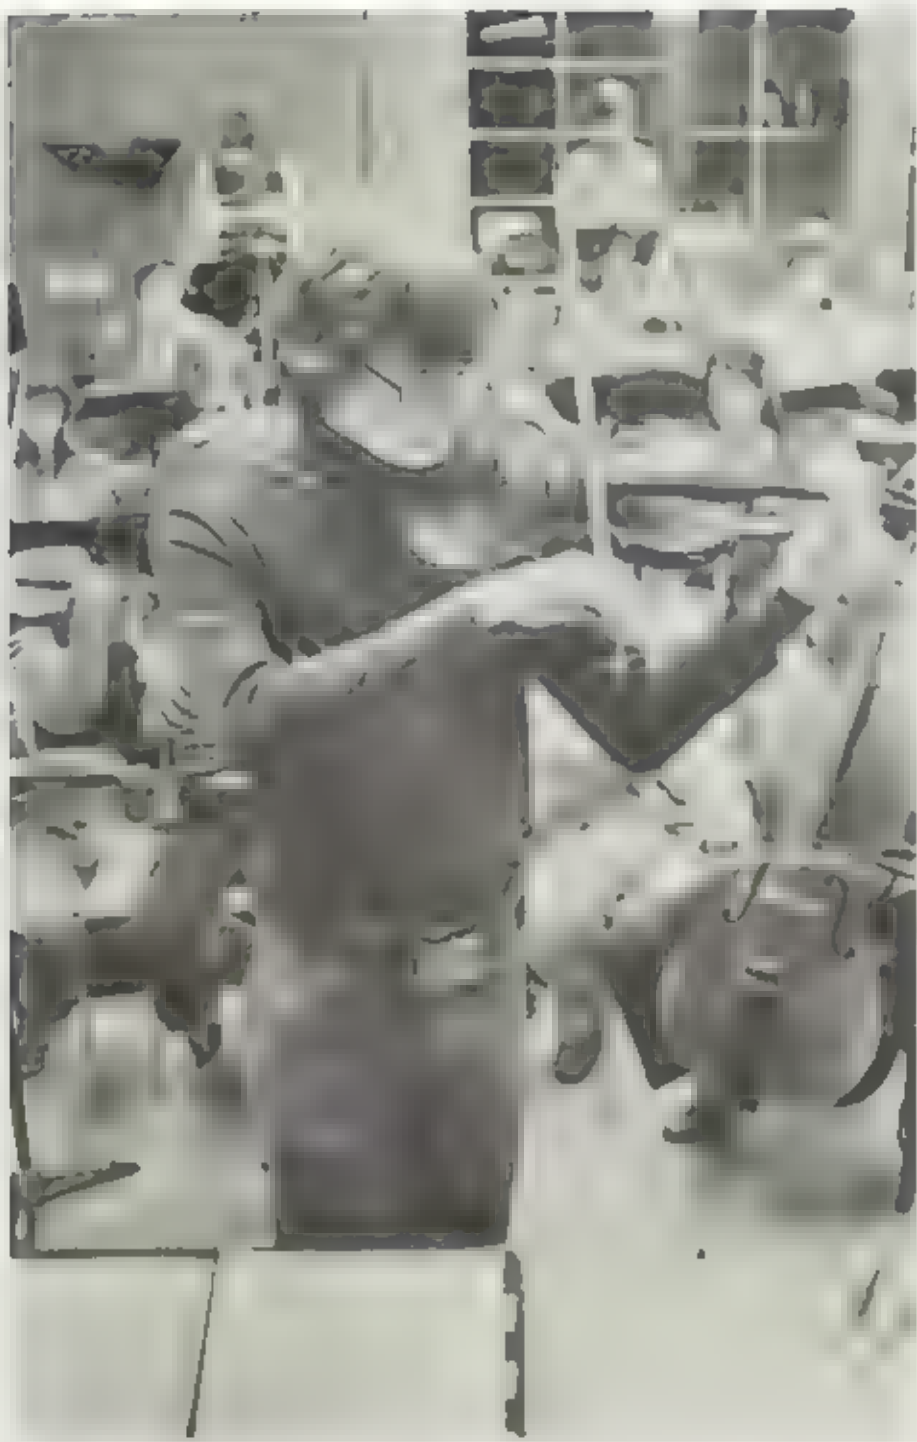

Winkler formerly was the pianist for Sammy Davis, Jr., in the performance, "Stop the World I Want to Get Off."

Musicians show variety of talents

There are several vocal groups at Glenbrook South, and there are also several instrumental groups. Daybreak, however, is the only musical group at GBS that combines both vocal and instrumental talents.

The group, consisting of 26 singers and 11 instrumentalists, sing mostly jazz, pop and folk songs. According to Mr. Walter Lamble, director of Daybreak, their favorite songs this year were a Disney medley, "Jubilation" (a Gospel-rock) and "These Foolish Things" (a 1930's ballad).

On March 6, 7, 8 and 9, the group performed at University of Iowa, Iowa City West High School, Norway High School and University of Minnesota. They also appeared at the North Shore Country Club.

Daybreak's trips are financed by fund-raisers such as selling donuts and hot chocolate during finals, working the concessions stand and receiving donations from places where they performed.

A Daybreak performance is different from performances by other GBS vocal groups, according to Lamble. "It's more of a show when they perform than a concert," he stated. "The audiences enjoy themselves, too!"

Although they were so busily preparing for the Elizabethan Banquet or a trip to a corner of the country, the Master Singers were by no means inactive. They busied themselves with many other more local events.

The Appalachian Banquet, the Master Singers' main activity, replaced the biennial Elizabethan Banquet. Held in the New Pit and the cafeteria, the banquet included the singers singing and dancing in accordance with the theme of the banquet.

Many who participated in it felt that it was a success. "It was a lot of fun because everyone got real rowdy and everything. You couldn't do that at the Elizabethan Banquet because it was so formal," declared one Glenbrook South student.

In addition to the banquet, the Masters sang at The music festival in Techny Towers Chapel, for the Lyric Opera Women's Auxiliary, and at schools, including a few concerts at GBS.

Included in their performances are show tunes, pop music, and classical. "It gives our students an understanding of music," said Dr. William Schnell, director of the singers.

Most students at Glenbrook South enjoy rock 'n roll more than any other kind of music. Thanks to variety at GBS, there is a group of students who not only enjoy jazz music but also play it.

The band competed in two local competitions, once at Mundelein High School, and once at Riverside-Brookfield. Also, they went down to Opryland, Tenn., with the symphonic bands, from April 25 to April 28.

Also included in the group's activities was their performance in the GBS variety show, "Hit the Road."

Although the students making up the band are fairly young, (mostly sophomores and juniors) Mr. Peter Pappas, band director, feels "They're the best jazz band in the six years I've been at South. They're very very hard workers, and they're very young, so they'll be even better next year."

Vocalists pool talents in variety of groups

A student has unscheduled time. He's passing the auditorium. Suddenly, the air is filled with singing. The sounds are coming from the music rooms. Depending on what time it is, he may be hearing the freshman choruses, Concert Choir or even Bel Canto.

Although they are four different groups, Titan Chorus, Glee Club, Concert Choir, and Bel Canto perform in the same shows, but they each have their own section of the show. One of the shows presented was on November 15, in which they sang Schubert's "Mass in G" and were accompanied by the school orchestra. Another one was on December 16, a holiday concert in which each group sang songs from a different holiday.

The freshman choruses, Titan

Chorus for the boys and Glee Club for the girls, meet during freshman homeroom. "Last year we changed the time to homeroom so more kids could get into it," explained Mr. Walter Lambie, director of Titan Chorus. "I'd love it if all the freshmen were in it. It would be fun!"

Bel Canto, the highest level of girls' chorus, means "singers of beautiful songs" in Italian. "Bel Canto is a very challenging class in which students can learn more about music and how it's so deeply involved," said Brigitte Belling, sophomore.

As freshman Hollee Delott put it, "The vocal groups of GBS are very beneficial for the students involved and the audience enjoys listening to them, too."

Class boards obtain student involvement

Of all the organizations in the school, class board is one of the few places where a student can walk in and immediately go to work doing something without being elected or chosen," said Mr. David Smith, director of student activities.

The class boards are responsible for the homecoming floats, holiday decorations and Titan Olympics. Junior class board must plan, fund and run prom, and Senior Class Board is responsible for the class gift and carnation sale.

The class boards must fund all their projects. Consequently, the Freshman Class Board has a jewelry sale, Senior Class Board had a flower sale and the Junior Class Board sold candy sticks.

"The class boards are responsible for the organization, seeing that responsibilities are carried out and seeing that the events are budgeted carefully," said Smith.

Class Board members felt that class board is important. "It prepares a student to be a part of the real world and gives him a chance to become involved in school bureaucracy," said Senior Class Board member Nick Giampietro. It is also beneficial because "you get to work with students and better your class," he continued. "You get things accomplished — from planning prom junior year, to the senior gift, fundraisers and carnation sales. This pulls the class together and gets it organized," said Senior Class Board treasurer Jeff Hunt.

Scholars gain honors; tutors aid kids

Cum Laude society exists at GBS whose major objective is only to recognize academic excellence. This is the Cum Laude Society. It is a prestigious society, with only seven high schools in this state as charter members.

Members of Cum Laude must have a 4.3 academic GPA during the spring of their junior year or a 4.0 in the spring of their senior year. The society may also accept two honorary members each year. Those elected in 1979 were faculty members, Russell C. Ackerman and David H. Smith, Jr.

"Cum Laude exists just for recognition. It is probably the most formal club that exists in the school," commented student president Dave Langer.

NHS

National Honor Society honors students excelling in scholarship, leadership, service and character.

In order to judge students more on this basis, Presidents'

Council has proposed changing the system by which NHS selects its members.

Presidents' Council, Student Council, the Council of Instructional Supervisors and the Administrative Council are the four groups which make changes such as this one. Presidents' Council has begun work on this new system because its members have a wide variety of interests, are experienced and have no vital stake in the final decision since most of them are seniors, said Mr. David H. Smith, director of student activities.

The present system is based on a combination of activities and grades. This combination is assigned a point score. The students with the top 10 percent of these scores are inducted into NHS in the spring of their junior year, and in the following fall the next five percent are inducted.

Under the new system members will be required to hold a 3.3 all subject GPA and to have participated in eight groups or activities divided between at least two of four possible areas.

Each student must also have completed one service project during the past year and must have one teacher sponsor him.

This new system will, hopefully, start with the Class of '83 and will work out very well, according to Smith. "It (the new system) gives an added stature to NHS and honors more than just academics," he added.

NHS members are also contributing to the new system by putting students' activities on computer to facilitate the selection process.

In addition to this, NHS members tutor students and also participate with Key Club and Student Council in various activities such as the Thanksgiving dinner for the handicapped, Kirk Center party and raising money for Onward House.

NHS president Nick Giampietro commented ironically, "I've found that students in the NHS tend to be so committed to the activities which have gotten them into the NHS that they are not able to participate in many NHS activities."

Tutors

In addition to being taught during the day at GBS, one group of GBS'ers teaches others one night each week. These students are the Onward House tutors.

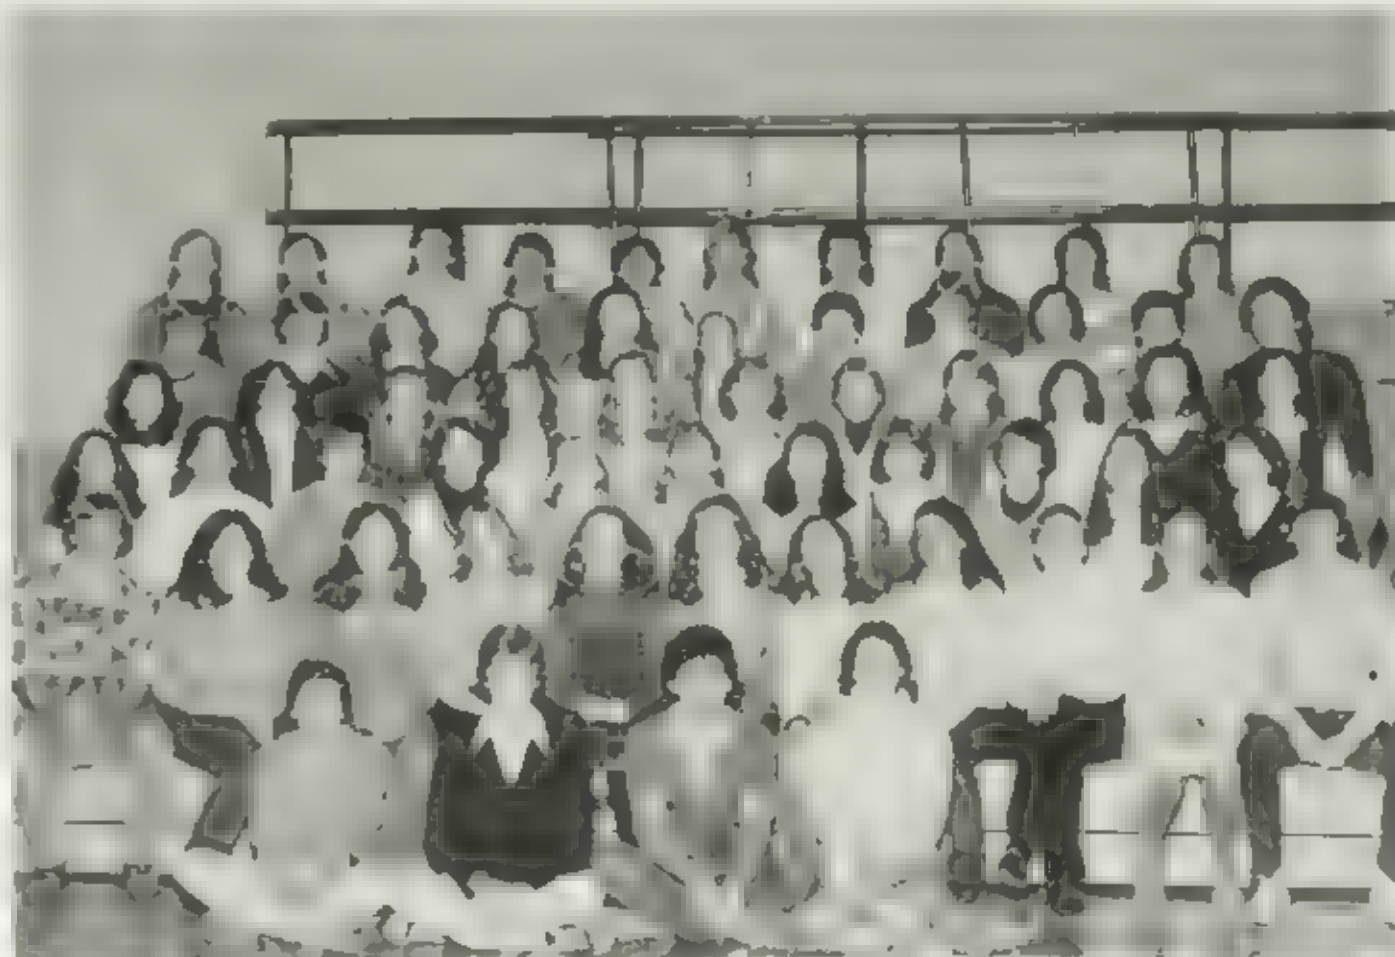

This organization, of about 30 students, tutors mainly Latino primary students whose parents do not speak English fluently.

Tutors also sponsor holiday parties and an annual field trip for their students. They also help their students make gifts for their parents.

According to the club's adviser, Mr. Howard Romanek, tutoring gives GBS'ers the chance to get in a different environment and to deal with responsibility.

It also gives them an opportunity to participate in an activity which they enjoy. As Myrna Sarrafian and Sue Daley stated, "We enjoy spreading our knowledge and helping others."

Membership grows as interest increases

How many clubs money is an important topic. However, the GBS Science Club didn't have to worry about money this year. In fact, the club hasn't had to worry about money for over 10 years.

In 1964, when GBS had dress codes, the Science Club, sponsored by Mr. Richard Goodspeed, held a "Bermuda Shorts Day." It was so successful that they had three more; they netted over $1,500, $600 of which is still around.

The reason that the club has spent so little money over the years is because the club tries to do activities that are free or inexpensive. Activities that have been done this year include walking over to the Grove, having Mr. Jerome Holser from GBN bring his owl to GBS, inviting Dr. Evelyn Tyner from Luke College for an energy conservation demonstration and conducting many experiments.

Goodspeed, along with Paul Kapustka, president, and Jim Park, vice-president, plan the activities.

Kapustka stated, "The science club did many new and interesting things this year. We were pleased by the student interest and hope it'll stay high."

Scientists plan programs

Although the Backgammon Club, one of GBS's younger clubs, started only two years ago, it has already more than doubled in membership.

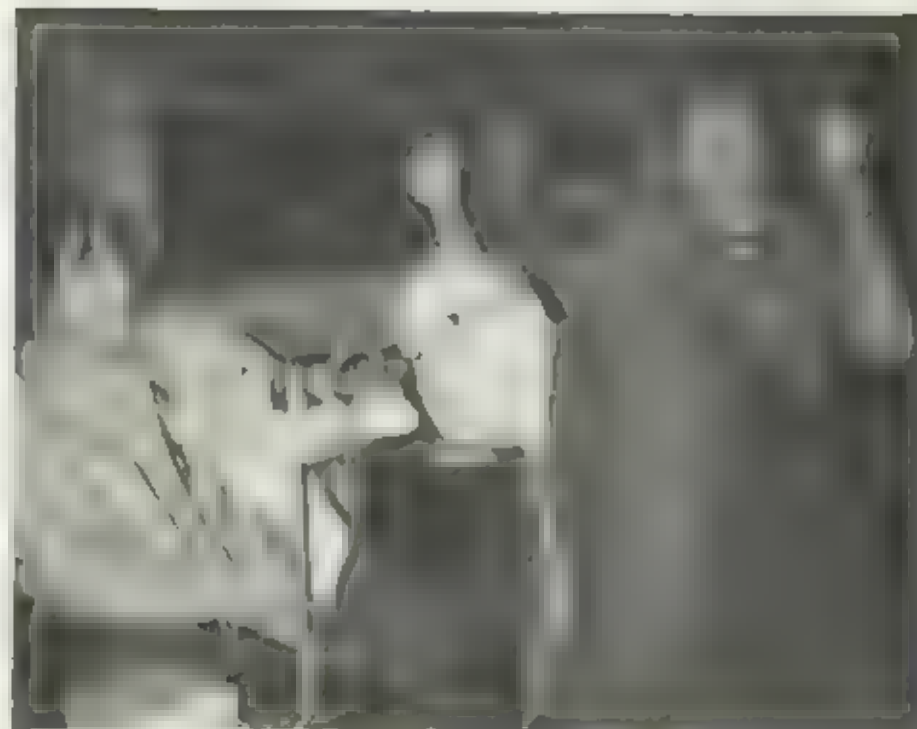

The club's main purpose is, basically, playing backgammon.

"Generally, we have intracub tournaments, and through this we challenge each other in different forms," explained senior Robert Router, president.

The sponsor is Mr. Jeff Aaron, and junior Paul Langer is the vice-president.

GBS groups assist at athletic endeavors

Matmaids, Timers and Guards are all organizations of people who are willing to work behind the scenes in order to make wrestling and swim meets happen.

Although their main task is to time and tabulate statistics and pair up the wrestlers at meets, Matmaids also do other school-related activities on the side. This year the matmaids sponsored dances and ran the concession stand to raise money. "We play an important role in the meets, but it's also a lot of fun," said sophomore Jennifer Rockford.

The GBS Guards don't do any extra activities on the side, but they still render their services to GBS and the Glenview area. "We're a community service," said guard president Jodi Stetson.

son. On Saturday mornings the guards teach kids between the ages of five and 14 how to swim. In addition, the guards also guard on Tuesday nights for family swims. When asked why she liked being a guard, Trudy Holeczy replied, "I think guarding is fun because it's fun to know that you help kids learn to swim."

Timers is an organization of swimmers who are in charge of timing and compiling statistics at swim meets. According to timer Bridget Schneider, this is a somewhat difficult task. "You always have to pay attention in case the gyroscope stops timing for some reason."

Program develops skills, leadership

One doesn't have to be a top athlete to be in the leader program. The program is designed to teach leadership skills along with improving physical skills.

The program serves two purposes: it teaches and develops skills to be used in teaching gym classes, and it also teaches skills that can be applied to summer jobs and other activities.

This is the first year that there are no sophomore leaders. The Physical Education Department agreed that it would be a repeat of the sophomore program. The skills learned in the first two years at GBS are re-emphasized and expanded in the leaders program.

When leaders are seniors, they assist a class and help the teacher. They get credit like a regular gym class, but they often have written work as well. According to Ms. Fuller, director of the leader program, "to be enrolled is an honor. They are better students."

Brooke Bauer is a successful diver and senior leader. She plans to major in physical education in college. She feels, "being a leader gives me a better perspective in the area of teaching. It gives me a chance to help others."

Playing sports doesn't just mean putting on equipment and trotting out to the playing field.

Letter Club

It involves working together as a team on the field and off.

An activity designed for off field enjoyment is a group called Letter Club. It organizes events for girls from all sports to participate in. "Members get together and do things like having an overnight in the gym," said sponsor Ms. Janet Fuller. "They also support girls' athletics, support the teams, and attend games," she added.

The club meets twice a month. First the members get together and talk about what they want to do. The next time they meet they do the activity. Among the events they planned were fund raisers for money to be used for needs not covered in the budget and for summer camp scholarships.

Any girl who is currently on a team or has completed a season with a team could be in Letter Club. Freshmen were allowed, provided they were eligible.

Members paid a dollar entry fee, which was used to get the club going. They sponsored a Jump Rope-A-Thon in March, among other things, to raise money for a heart fund. Obviously, a girl doesn't have to just play a sport, she can get together with other girls who have similar interests in sports.

Clubs provide services, jobs

After a half year of absence, WGBS came back on the air this year.

Reestablishing and rewriting its charter with South, the station continues to provide music and announcements in the morning five days a week and in January the station began after noon broadcasting of music and after school entertainment.

WGBS provides students the opportunity to get the feel of being a disc jockey. It's a definite high knowing that my voice is being broadcast to over 2,000 people," says WGBS disc jockey Paul Kapustka. "I like to share with the school my taste in music."

"It (WGBS) is run very close to a real station, compared to the shoddy management in the past," said Kapustka. "I'm blaming that past shoddy management on nobody else but on ourselves."

President of the WGBS Club is Steve Levitan.

Key Club

To know that I'm helping people and making them feel better is the best feeling that I could have. I just love it!

The feelings of Debbie Hrejsa are probably shared by just about everyone in Key Club at Glenbrook South.

The objectives of Key Club are to help the people in the North Shore communities and to become better aware of the community.

Some objectives were carried out this year through activities such as working with and having Thanksgiving dinner with the elderly at Maryhaven; having a Christmas party at the Kirk Center for which they dressed up as elves, bought presents, sang carols, and brought along their own Santa (Todd Atkinson). Shamrock Day; and Kiwanis Peanut Day in the fall on which they sold peanuts on street corners.

Key Club officers are co-presidents Tom Nelson and Eric Gilliland, vice president Nancy Gilligan, secretary Kim Kavooras, treasurer Mark Kousiogeorge, senior representative Jeff Berman, and junior representative Janet Joseph. Their adviser is Mr. Michael Lyons.

Apparently the response to Key Club is enthusiastic.

The Kirk Center kids get really excited and the older people at Maryhaven love it when we come to talk and be with them," says Hrejsa. "And I just love it when I can help them."

DCE

The Diversified Cooperative Education Club has a way of combining both job experience and classroom skills.

The DCE Club is an organization formed to help students find the type of work they would like to do for the rest of their lives, to experience different types of jobs, and to study different topics related to the general field in which they are interested.

"Under the guidance of a coordinator, representing the school, the students receive on-the-job work experience and are taught by qualified employers," explained Dr. John Reimer, a coordinator of the DCE Club.

The students in DCE sold doughnuts, candies (during Christmas time), candy, and other assorted things to raise money for the end of the year banquet where students get the chance to thank all of its supporters.

"The past performance of participating students, as well as the wide acceptance and cooperation of our communities, has made it possible for the school to provide this unique program," commented Dr. Reimer.

Clubs provide creative outlets

For a person trying out for the variety show, the GBS dance company is the perfect place to train.

The primary function of the club is to train for the V show, but not all the students in the club are in the V-show.

Although the school categorizes it as a club, anyone can go to any of the meetings, which are essentially dance lessons, according to junior Alissa Mendell, president. The "membership" is actually the people who are there on a specific day.

Mr. Brian Lynch, instructor, is a professional dancer who teaches at Rhythmics in Deerbrook Shopping Center and performs at the Candlelight Theater in Summit. "There have been a lot of improvements since the beginning of the year. I can tell from the quality of the dancing in the V-show," he stated.

Mr. David H. Smith, assistant principal of student activities, also feels that the dance company is beneficial for the students. "I think our students have been very fortunate to have the opportunity to be exposed to the outstanding artistic talent of a professional of the quality of Mr. Brian Lynch."

One of the most rewarding feelings in competition is when a team is competing and the crowd boos because they don't think that the score is high enough, according to Ms. Laura LaCursia, adviser of the GBS Synchronized Swim Team.

That is exactly what happened to the team, which placed second at the Maine East synchronized swim meet. Other meets that they competed in were the Mundelein sync meet, the Halloween Propulsion Meet, the Michigan Regional Sync Meet and many others.

Besides competing, the team, led by president Tracee Hofmeyer, vice-president Jill Schultz, treasurer Sandy Dickau, secretary Nancy Hackl, publicity chairperson Karen Urevig, design chairperson Caryl Koop and activities chairperson Sue Kuczek, put on a show at the end of the year.

To train for the competition and the show, the team members went to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., for a "workout session" during spring break.

"I think that we all had a lot of fun, I hope we can go again next year!" declared freshman Katherine Urevig.

is represented in many different areas, from the variety show to the Titanaires. The Titanaires are the GBS precision dance line, and dancing is their principle activity.

Coached by Ms. Melsa Bobrich, the Titanaires consists of 15 girls. According to Bobrich, the whole line does not always dance; only the ones who do a dance the best will perform it in a show.

Besides dancing at all the home basketball and football games, the girls co-sponsor Turnabout with the cheerleaders.

To learn to dance well, five girls went to a camp in Ohio, where they competed with other girls from other precision dance lines. "We're a group of girls that enjoys the excitement of dancing and performing," stated co-captain Alida Kargul.

Debaters sweep state

The Glenbrook South debate team, coached by Mr. George Stege, dominated the ISTA state meet by winning second place in the varsity division, first place in the junior varsity division and first place in the novice division.

The debate team had an extremely successful season, according to Stege. "The team won over seventy trophies."

One of the highlights of the debate season occurred when the varsity team of juniors Mark Koulogeorge and Jeff Wortman placed second in the Harvard tournament out of over 130 teams.

Another high point of the season was the Western Illinois University tournament, where juniors Nancy Wallace and Tim Bernardi placed first.

The junior varsity and novice teams did a good job all year, winning many speaker awards and team trophies, also, according to Stege. Mr. Hans Dahl acted as assistant coach for the team.

Forensics

Forensics gives theatrically inclined students the opportunity to compete in interscholastic speech contests.

The biggest victory of the season came when senior Liz Ventura won a second place individual trophy in impromptu speaking. Overall, there were "some high ratings, but it was difficult to do well because we just began," commented Coach Donna Kline.

Cinema Club

Although most movies now cost $4 in local theatres, students had a chance to enjoy a variety of movies at budget prices ($1) in the Norman E. Watson Auditorium at GBS, sponsored by the Cinema Club.

According to Cinema Club member James Sohn, Cinema Club not only sponsors the films but also "picks the movies, runs the projectors, assembles the sound equipment and hires security."

Cinema Club has shown many popular films this year, including "Superman," Monty Python's "Holy Grail," "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," and "Foul Play."

Bobby socks and cheers can only add up to one thing—cheerleaders.

The varsity and sophomore cheerleading squads were under the direction of Coach Carolyn Jerdan. The freshman squads were supervised and sponsored by Mr. Mike Elkins.

"Both squads worked extremely hard," said Jerdan.

Four of the cheerleaders, Nancy Ford, Mary Carlborg, Chris Heinz, and Arlene Cohen, went to a cheerleading camp at Aurora College and won the "The Spirit Stick" award.

Besides cheering and dancing at the games, the cheerleaders sponsored turn-about with the Titanettes.

Cheerleading isn't always an easy job. Sophomore cheerleader, Judy Frazer said, "It's hard work but I enjoy it."

Competition for freshman cheerleading tryouts was tight. Freshman Katie Jaques said, "I'm really happy I was picked to be a cheerleader at GBS. I tried so hard for the past two years."

Pep Club, formerly the Boosters, changed their name because Mama Glass felt it fit the group better.

They participated in many school activities. The activities consisted of selling donuts, raising people's spirit, and making posters. They are under the direction of Mama Glass.

Mama Glass said, "All of the girls are enthusiastic and hard working and made the year a banner year."

Presidents' Council revises NHS point system

If we're trying to do more what the students really want and to keep up with the times," says Steve Levitan, president of Student Council. This statement is one which many groups follow, says Levitan.

Student Council works on many things which many students are unaware of. Homecoming is a large duty of council, assemblies, games, and bulletin boards are just a small part of Homecoming done by the council. Complaints made by students have always been a problem of Student Council, says Mr. Smith, director of student activities. Late buses and cafeteria food are two concerns. Council sponsors many other events for the students' enjoyment; concession stands at sporting events, dances, and the Titan Olympics which is now an annual event.

President's Council, whose members are the presidents of all the clubs at South, contribute to Homecoming by picking queen nominees and painting a store window. President's Council also made up a new point system for all activities, which is used to become eligible for the National Honor Society and for college admissions.

President of Presidents' Council Tom Nelson said about his organization, "Council is an essential organization which gathers ideas from other clubs and spreads information throughout the school."

Students list favorite subjects

A survey of students in the district's middle schools found that the most popular subjects were English, math, science, and physical education. The survey, which was conducted by the district's research department, found that students in the middle schools were most likely to choose English as their favorite subject, followed by math, science, and physical education. The survey also found that students in the middle schools were least likely to choose history, art, and music as their favorite subjects.

Social Studies adds psych class; English develops new courses

In an attempt to keep up with the needs of Glenbrook South students, the English and Social Studies departments worked at developing new courses within their disciplines.

The Social Studies Department offered, first time, a psychology course, which, according to one member of the department, was very popular.

During the 1979-80 school year, the English Department planned two new courses which it will teach for the first time this fall. One course is a remedial reading course designed for freshmen who need to improve their reading skills. The other course is English 463, a full-year elective offered for those seniors who wish to continue their English education but do not wish to enroll in AP English.

The Social Studies Department also featured three new teachers. Mr. David Pasquini taught History of World Civilizations and United States History. Mr. Terry Benjamin taught USH and American Studies, while Ms. Nancy Edwards taught USH and Industrial Education.

Last spring, Glenbrook South underwent an all school evaluation, which was appropriately titled the North Central evaluation. A portion of this evaluation included comments about the GBS English Department. "North Central gave our (English) department a highly complimentary evaluation, which covered our teaching skills, writing plans, and courses offered in the curriculum," stated departmental supervisor Karen Kuehner.

Art students gain experience through contests

The Art Department has many classes to offer to Glenbrook South students, but the most popular are the ceramics courses. This year, 82 students are enrolled in Beginning Ceramics, Advanced Ceramics and Advanced Art Studies.

Ceramics students had a chance to participate in two events this year. The first was the Scholastic Art Contest, held in the middle of January and sponsored by Scholastic Magazine.

The contest is held at Weiboldt's in Evanston, and students who join are selected by their teachers. GBS students who won this year were Kathy Doetsch and Pete Stellas, who won first place and blue ribbons each; and Kathy Groh, David Braithwaite, Tracy Kolba and Michelle Kosik, who won third place and honorable mention.

The other annual event was entitled Youth Art III, sponsored by the Bank of the Northshore and was held in Northbrook Court in May. Only teenage artists could enter and they were juried by members of the Northshore Art League.

Miss Lynn Lipke said, "Art contests can often be a guide to aspiring art students. Contests reflect the harsh reality of being accepted or rejected as an artist. I think contests are only good when entered with an open mind. Student artists should not make art just for a contest. If a good work of art has been created in class, is entered and wins, the student gains personal confidence."

Department holds Mardi Gras, International Bake Sale

In the opinion of Mr. Albert Turner, head of the Glenbrook South Foreign Language Department, everybody should know a second language.

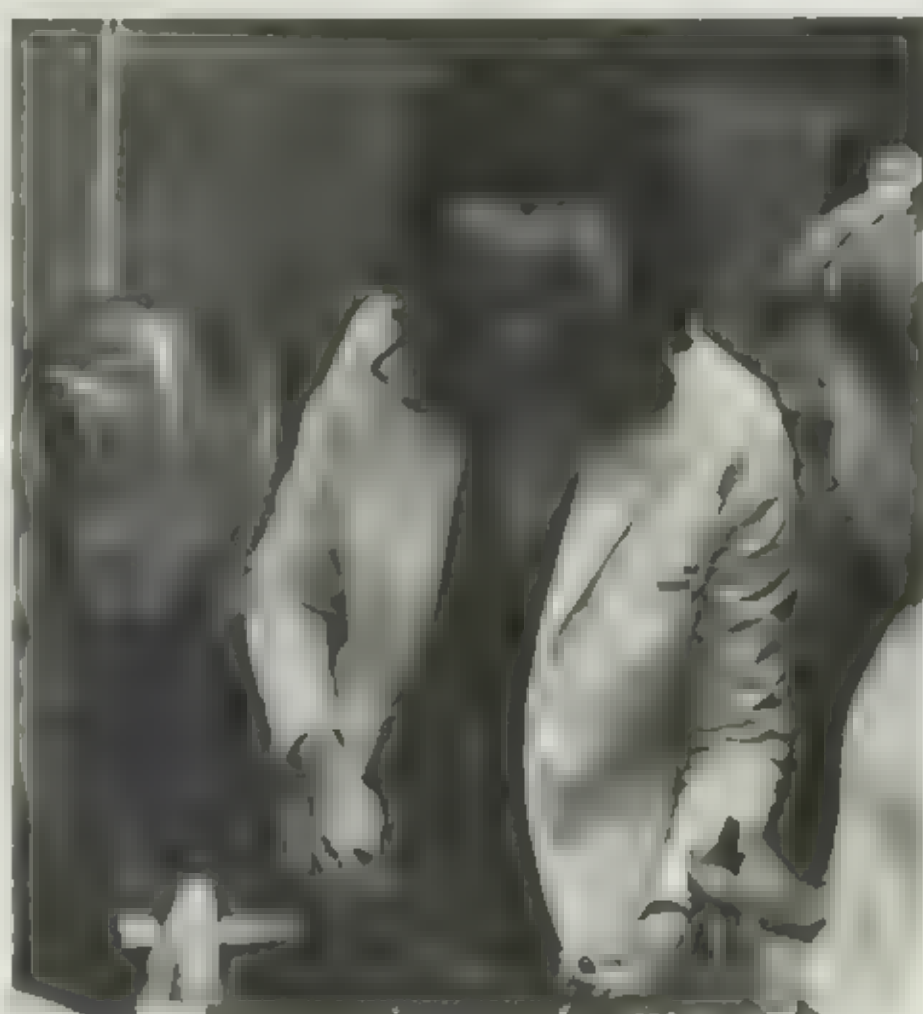

This is the purpose of the Foreign Language Department—to provide students with a second language and knowledge of other cultures as well. The department hopes to install a command of the basic skills, reading, writing, and speaking, into each foreign language student.

Approximately 45 percent of students at GBS are taking a for-ign language, with the most popular one being Spanish. "Our enrollment is pretty good compared to national statistics," commented Turner.

No changes were made in the foreign language curriculum during the 1979-80 school year. One of the things that remains constant is the foreign language awards, which are given out every year to outstanding foreign language students. Last fall the department held an international bake sale during parent conference nights to replenish the Florence Steiner Award fund. The department likes to give gifts characteristic of the languages they studied to the recipients of these awards. The bake sale was successful, according to Turner. "It inspired a positive spirit among kids. The parents were pleased as well," he added.

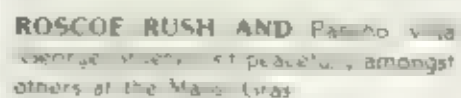

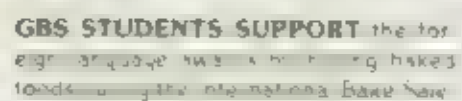

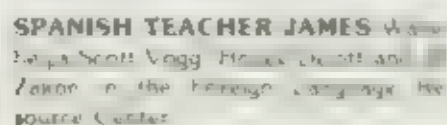

MRS. MARY FRANCES Crabtree supervises crepe-making by Elizabeth Schroeder and Missy Morgensen.

THE FIRST FOREIGN language Mardi Gras, held on Feb. 19, got everyone into the New Orleans spirit.

MADAME MARIE CREPETREE (Mary Crabtree), Mother Nature (Debbie Caras), a Spanish dancer (Yolanda Graham), Marie Antoinette (Susan Leibowitz), Louis XIV (Mary Ann Hills), Jacques Cousteau (James Waller), Captain Macho (Albert Turner), and Anastasio Somoza (Erwin Lutz) all showed up to celebrate Mardi Gras.

BESIDES HANDLING THE audio-visual material at the A-V Department also fixed the equipment. Here Chris Skopis shows Scott Goodblatt how to fix a projector.

Home Economics, Industrial Education help development of practical skills

Home Economics and Industrial Education play an important role in students' lives by developing skills, many of which are needed to perform everyday tasks in the working world.

Home economics students designed many new accessories, including individually-designed pillows and quilts, "wonderful" jogging suits and summer blazers.

Other events included entering national contests related to clothing construction. Seniors Lisa Bielick and Linda Foote qualified for the "Make It With Wool" contest, which was held at Macomb. Their backgrounds in sewing in home economics courses helped them to succeed in the contest.

New to the department this year is Miss Sue Schnackenberg, who is now teaching Child Development and Family Life. She enjoys the class and the actions of her students.

"The feedback from the students is exciting and fulfilling to me. Their interest and enthusiasm in the subject is mutually challenging and motivating," commented Schnackenberg.

Mrs. Janet Rothwell, instructional supervisor, also feels the program is special. "Child Development classes have been doing especially exciting projects and activities. The nursery school sponsored twice a year is a special event," stated Rothwell.

Rothwell concludes, "Home Economics is becoming an even more important field as individuals in our society become, out of necessity, more concerned with conserving family resources and improving family and personal relationships within their own lives."

Industrial Education

When students take all course work within a program, they develop considerable knowledge as well as technical skills relative to the area. In some situations, job entry skills are developed, and in other instances the student needs advanced training.

For the first time at Glenbrook South High School, a photography class was added to the industrial education curriculum. The course came about when the decision was made to drop the Graphic Arts course due to the lack of student interest, along with lack of a qualified teacher.

Photography, taught by Mr. Ed Baker, (I/S Driver's Education), is planning for a full program. A photography course was recommended several years ago, but it was turned down. Mr. Barry Pearson planned to include a photography unit in the Graphic Arts course for the 1979-80 school year, but his departure was one reason for dropping Graphic Arts.

This course is offered to sophomores, juniors and seniors. Freshmen can take the course if they are enrolled in Industrial Arts 163. Students taking the course are required to have an adjustable camera for use in the course due to the size of the darkroom; there is a limit of 12 students for each class.

Photography 161 was a course offered first semester and dealing with black and white photography and full lab experience. Photography 262, taught during second semester, was a continuation of the black and white photography plus introduction to color photography.

"The disadvantage of the course at this time is that we do not have adequate facilities," stated Baker. "In the future we are planning to enlarge the photo darkroom."

Due to the interest of the students in this class, the course shall be offered next year, according to Baker.

The Audio Visual Department, a branch of the Instructional Materials Center provided many conveniences for GBS teachers and students. Under the supervision of Mr. Len Sider, the A.V. Department offered photographic, photocopying and offset printing among its many services.

MICHAEL PEDERSON STUDIES his negatives on a light table in the graphic arts shop.

Math Club prepares students for contests

The Math Club is the most recent addition to Glenbrook South's long list of clubs.

In general, the Math Club works on math problems and new concepts in preparation for the many math contests throughout the year. "The club is a good idea. It helps the students greatly with the problems found frequently on math contests," claims senior Howard Chodash.

Mr. Ken Lucas, adviser of the club, issues problems and helps the club members with any questions they may have. He gives not only difficult math problems that may be found in the classes, but also he gives problems that are not familiar with most of the people.

The Math Club participates in many math contests throughout the year. Of these, there are the North Suburban Mathematics League Mathematics Field Day, The Illinois Mathematics League contests and the Atlantic, Atlantic-Pacific Mathematics League contests. GBS consistently does well in all of these contests. The school is currently one of the top math schools in Illinois. Dave Langer, the club president, is rated in the top 10 of all students who take the Atlantic-Pacific test in the United States and he ranks first in Illinois.

Because the school pays the minimal fee for entering the contests, the club does not need any fund raising activities.

This is the first year of the Math Club. "We recognized that the school was very capable of doing well in math contests, and we felt that by adding a math club it would even improve the math scores," added Chodash. "The Math Club was formed to encourage participation in various math contests at GBS."

Math contests give students interested in mathematics a chance to work difficult problems that challenge their math ability," concluded Lucas.

To keep up with the times, the Science Department purchased a new TRS-80 computer.

This year the science department purchased a micro computer to be used in the physics, the science and technology, and the chemistry classes, and it is also open for students to use after school. The computer is useful in the labs and the experiments in the classes. "We bought the computer to keep up with the times. It familiarizes the students with the world of computers, and it is a useful tool in science," stated Instructional Supervisor Mr. Richard Goodspeed.

Among other changes, the department expanded its live material collection. They have acquired such animals as guinea pigs and lizards for observation.

The Science Department introduced two new awards this year. The first is a $100 scholarship from Kraft, Inc. It is an award for outstanding achievement in science and engineering. The other award is the Leo Leathers Horticulture Award, given to the top horticulture student. The award is given in memory of Mr. Leathers, who died last year.

Finally, Mr. David DeBarr and Mr. Howard Jenewein were the most recent additions to the Science Department. Mr. DeBarr teaches biology classes, while Mr. Jenewein teaches physics.

Typewriters clicking, computers humming and adding machines totalling. This may sound like an important city office but, in actuality, it describes Glenbrook South's business education hall.

The memory typewriter, the new addition to the department, is more of a computer-typewriter than anything else, according to Mrs. Gail Alter, instructional supervisor of Business Education. The machine is for copying large amount of the same item. The operator types all the corrections in the original draft, then he pushes a button and the process is repeated.

Courses in typing, accounting, shorthand, computer programming, and consumer education are among those offered to a student at GBS. "I feel that the courses we offer and the equipment we use to train students on are very up-to-date, and we are doing a very effective job for training entry-level careers," she concluded.

Driver Education

One of the things a modern American teenager looks forward to is getting his driver's license. Before that day arrives, however, he usually takes both classroom (mandatory) and behind the wheel training.

In addition to teaching driving, the department, this year, has emphasized other things. Due to rapid increase of gas prices, fuel conservation has taken a "front seat" in the curriculum.

Also, because of inflation, Glenbrook South found itself with a driver's ed. car shortage in October. A lot of dealers had to drop out of the free-loan program because the banks that were financing the cars were charging very high interest rates. Eventually, the school found other dealers to supply the cars for them.

Mr. Ed Baker, instructional supervisor of Driver's Ed., feels that the department is accomplishing its goal. "I think we're doing a good job and turning out students who have good driving techniques."

 great summer. Love Annays,

Host people think health is not necessary, because they know everything about it already. However, when they take the state-required course, they are surprised to find out that they don't know everything about their own personal health, according to Mrs. Janet Rothwell, instructional supervisor of the Health Department.

"I can think of no more valuable information than which concerns how to improve and maintain your own personal health. Without good health, nothing else in life will be as enjoyable," says Rothwell.

The Health Department must maintain a state-mandated curriculum, which includes nine units. As a result of this, the Health Department has not found any room for new activities or changes in the curriculum this year, besides obtaining new textbooks.

Miss Michelle Harvey is the newest health teacher at Glenbrook South. Before teaching at GBS, Miss Harvey had graduated from the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, with a bachelor of arts in community health education and a minor in general science. Afterwards, she became a student teacher at Evanston Township High School and then came here. "I'm enjoying it here," says Harvey.

Being a health teacher, Harvey knows how very important health is. However, she feels that kids aren't concerned enough about their health. "We're only aware of health when we're sick. I want to make kids realize health is with them every single day," concluded Harvey.

The Physical Education Department tries to offer sports that will carry over into the rest of the students' lifetimes. Part of their program is the electives offered to sophomores, juniors and seniors. "They seem to be working well," says Mr. Don Rabeor, head of the department.

The PE Department has not made any significant changes this year, or in the last three years, for that matter. "They're aren't too many changes you can make," said Rabeor. Cross-country skiing, started only last year, had to be cancelled this year due to the lack of snow, which made skiing impossible. A new unit, aerobic conditioning, which mainly involves modern dancing to music, was added to PE offerings.

IMC, Guidance serve students' needs

According to the Webster's New World Dictionary, a library is a room or building where a collection of books are kept, but the Instructional Materials Center of GBS offers more to students. The IMC is also a place to study where students can find out facts from reference books about the world in which they live.

JUNIOR LARRY NOSBAUM makes an appointment to see his counselor

Sometimes the library isn't a study place, because for some students it's more of a meeting place. So, during the lunch periods, the librarians instituted a rule that requires students to have passes after the first 20 minutes of each of the lunch periods in order to gain entry to the IMC. The librarians feel that the IMC is a place for thought and quiet. Senior Grant Peters feels that the "pass" rule has its drawbacks. "When I'm trying to finish some last minute homework, and I don't have a pass, it's very hectic trying to finish it in the hall, where noisy students are walking around talking to each other."

For the IMC, a significant change is a great reduction in book loss. The security system has reduced the book loss by about 91 percent, resulting in a projected savings of $11,000.

FRESHMAN PAUL PYLE, a lab assistant, studiously files cards in the IMC

"The 1979-80 school year for the IMC has been distinguished by a growing collection of materials, a great reduction in book loss, and most importantly, better student use of materials and facilities," stated Mr. Carl Pasco, coordinator of Instructional Materials Services.

Counseling

In an effort to continue the growth and development of its career education program, the Glenbrook South Guidance Department instituted a job placement service to aid students in finding part-time jobs.

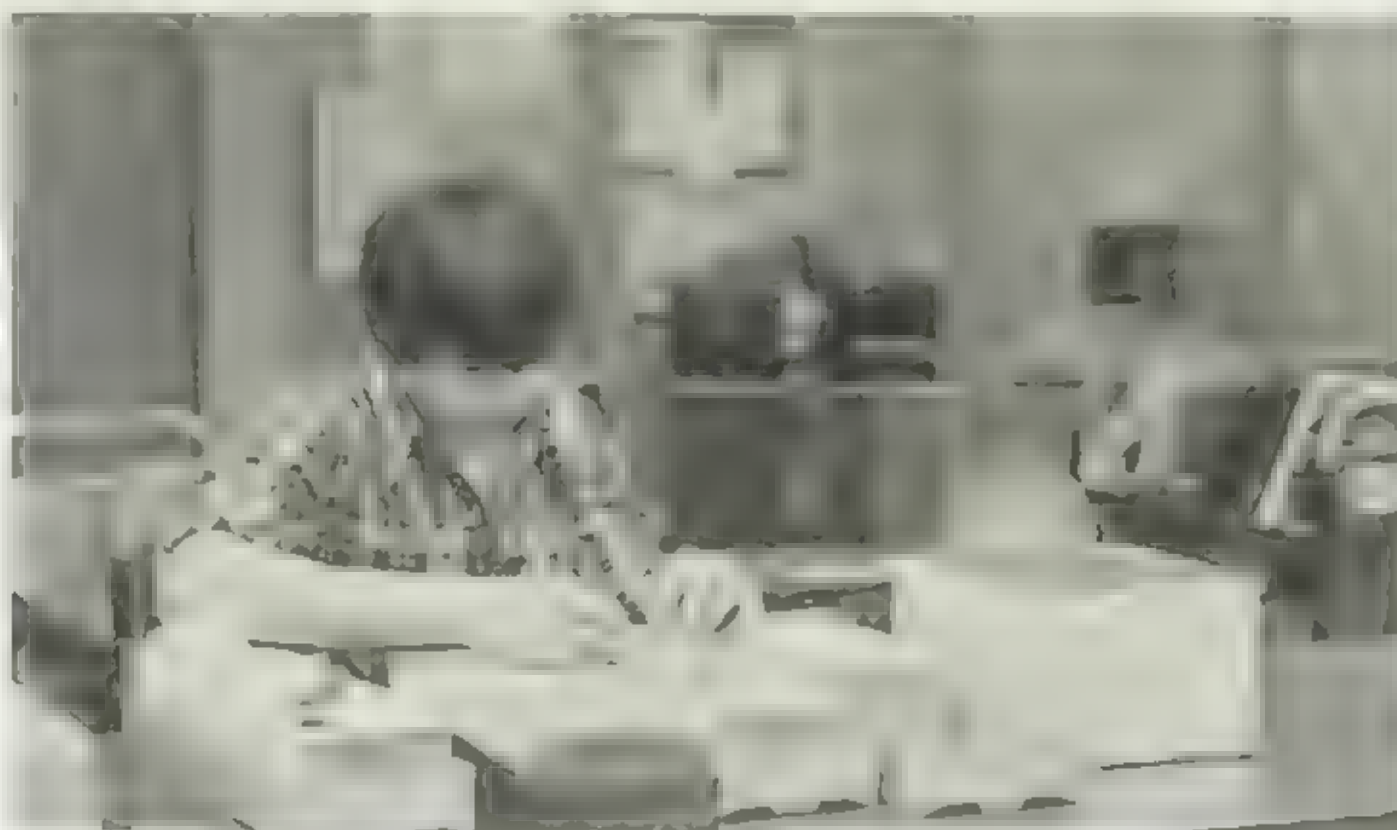

Utilizing the Illinois Job Service (IJS), which is a job placement service to help students find employment, part-time jobs are developed in the community by a worker who contacts all prospective employers in the Glenview Northbrook area. Only people who meet the employer's criteria, such as necessary basic skills, are sent out for further interviews.

"The program came about in mid-November 1979, and the students are responding to the IJS program very well," commented Mr. Ray Rukstales (career education coordinator).

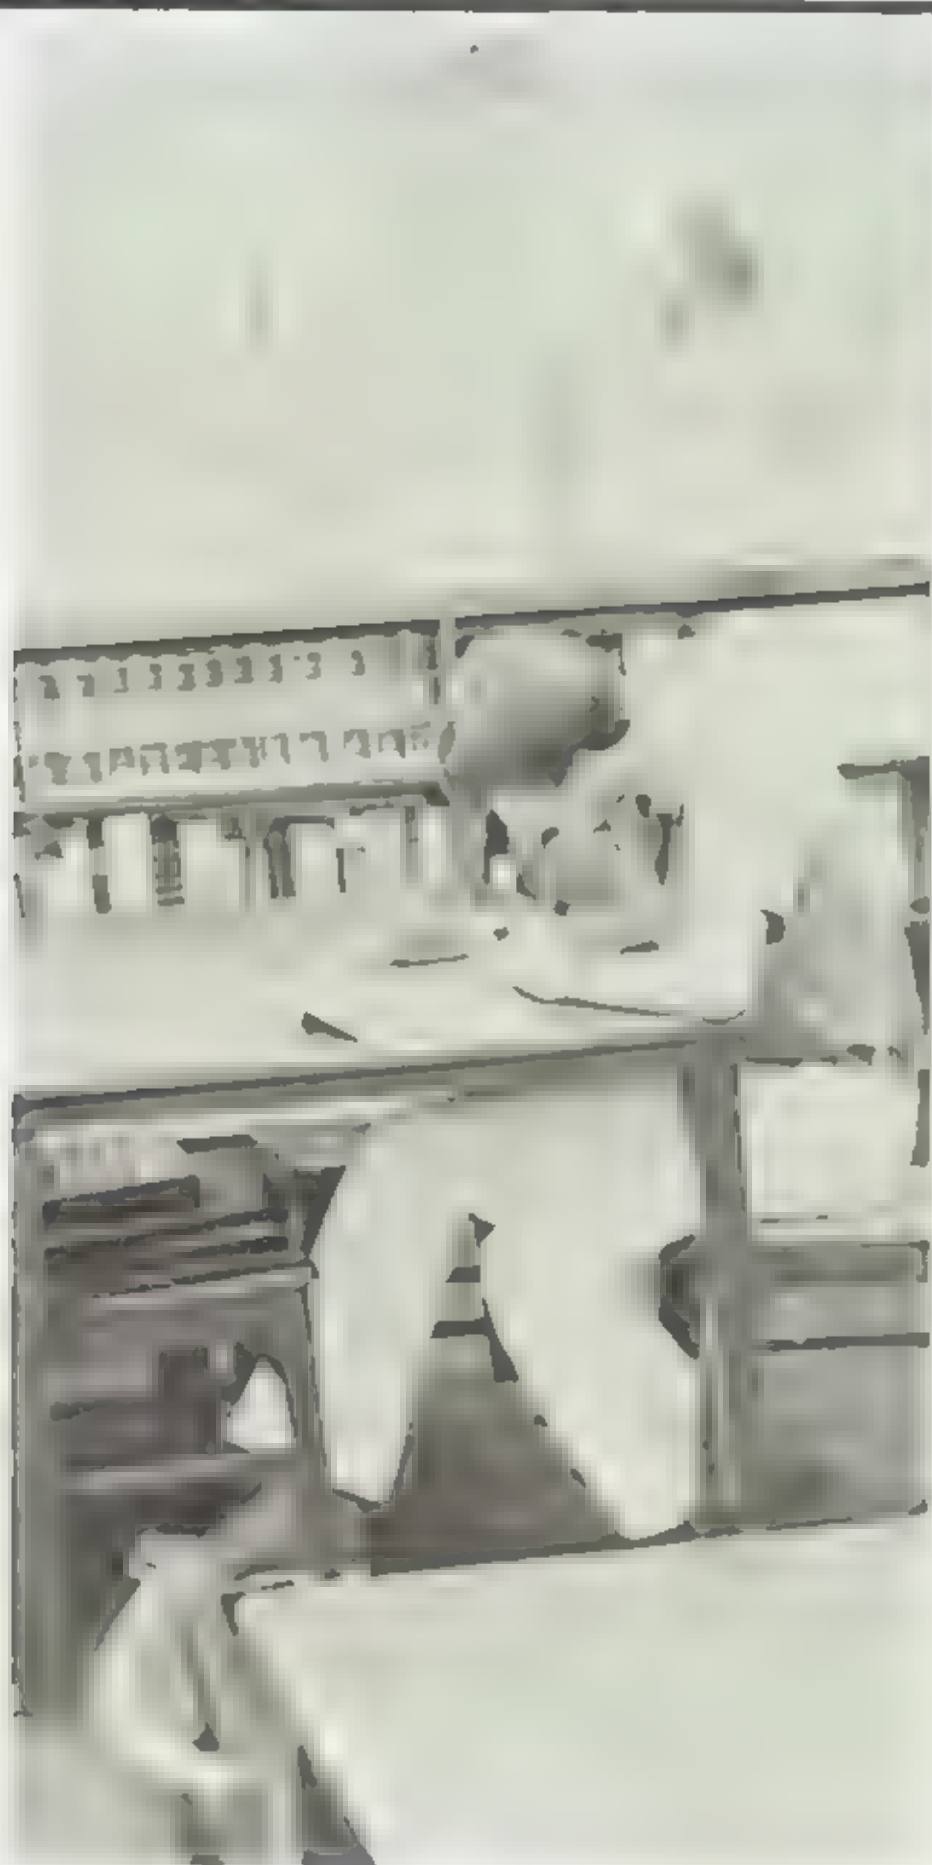

The IJS counselor, Mrs. Audrey Goldfine, was at GBS on Tuesdays and was kept quite busy on that day. She also worked at Glenbrook North on Thursdays, and for the other three days of the working week she is an employee at the IJS office in Evanston. She has confirmed placements of about four people so far with a dozen tentative placements (as of January).

"GBS is continuing to refine and improve career education for students. Major emphasis of the Guidance Department is on career education development and individual counseling with juniors and seniors for college plans," stated Mr. Emil Berzinski (assistant principal in charge of guidance).

MR. RAY RUKSTALES helps senior Linda Neumann with her career plans.

MATHEMATICS AT GBS can stymie even the most noble of students, including senior Pat McCarthy, who ponders his math book.

GBS cafeteria aims to please students

There is much more to the Glenbrook South cafeteria food than meets the eye

"All of the food is Grade A number one choice. The hamburgers are pure beef, and the milk shakes are made with whole milk. Nothing artificial is used, and everything is made from scratch," states cafeteria director Mrs. Eileen Samuels.

Mrs. Samuels has had plenty experience cooking. She has been a cook for the past 28 years. The last four of those years being at Glenbrook South. She has won several awards and has appeared on national television. Mrs. Samuels has received the Gold Plate award and was presented an award for a sandwich recipe.

"We try to please the students. I have talked many times with the Student Council. The students speak for the students

We decide on changes in the type of food to be served. We have added new foods, and the Student Council influenced us to serve milk shakes, among other things," added Mrs. Samuels.

Mrs. Samuels and her cooks have often cooked on Sundays. Sometimes they make stews and soups that require more than one day to prepare. They also help out on such events as Homecoming and the pizza dinner. Mrs. Samuels is very proud of her cooks. "My cooks are very good. They've never let me down. We work well together, and we are very proud of the kitchen."

"One of the changes brought out this year was the variety in the food. Almost every day, we offered two main dishes," added Mrs. Samuels. The cooks also prepared ethnic foods as they pertained to certain holidays.

Department adds psychological services

The Special Education Department has been "working hard" in all areas of our program," said Mrs. Ruby Allen, the acting instructional supervisor. It has added more psychological services and a sex education for EMH (Educably Mentally Handicapped) students.

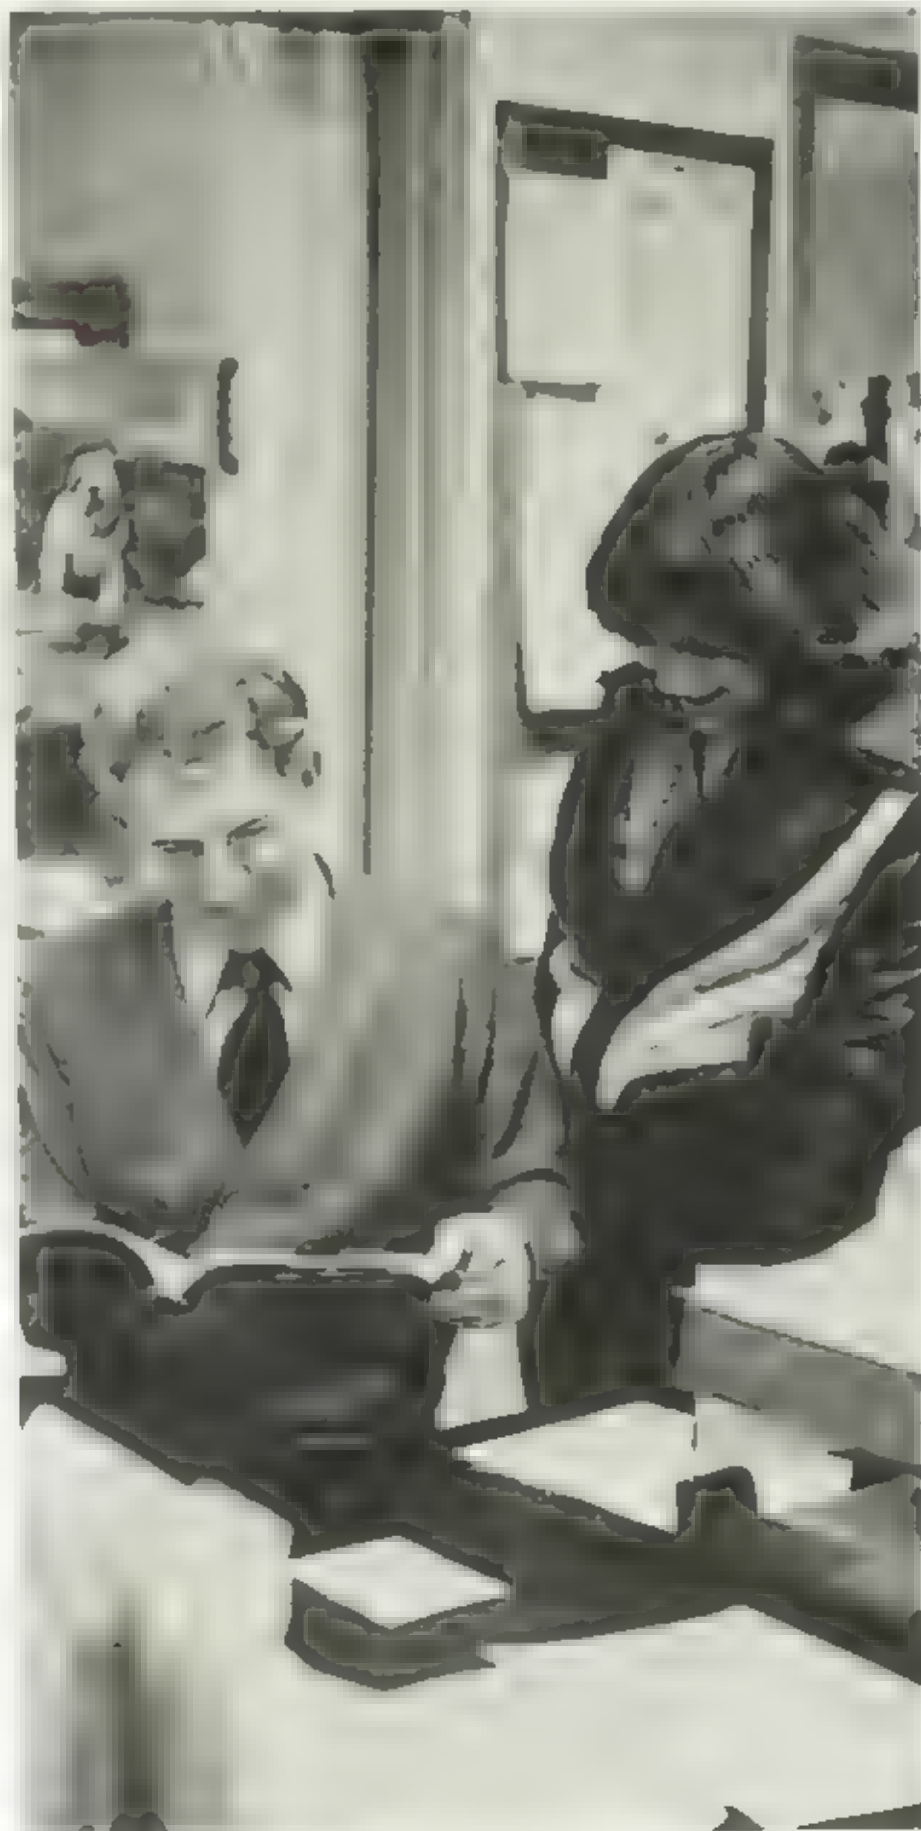

Mrs. Shirley Cowin has been named the new SWEP (Secondary Work Experience Program) coordinator. She teaches a class in which the students learn skills necessary for getting a job. She also works with agencies in the community in order to place students in this class in part time jobs.

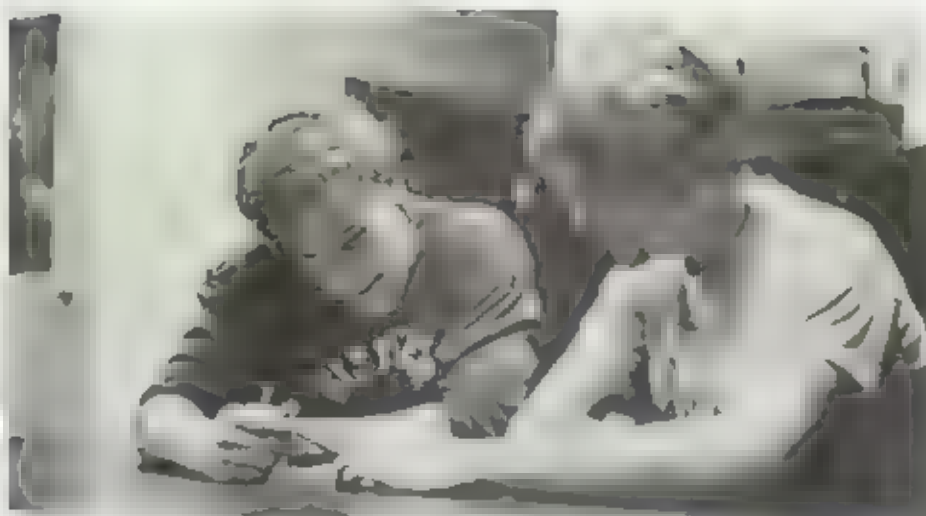

Mrs. Cowin states, "I help students get and hold jobs in order to become as independent as possible; this includes encouraging them to use public transportation."

In addition to these changes, Special Education has proposed a remediation program for credit. Presently students come in to get traditional help in various areas, but they receive no credit for it. Under the new program the teacher would set up specific guidelines for students.

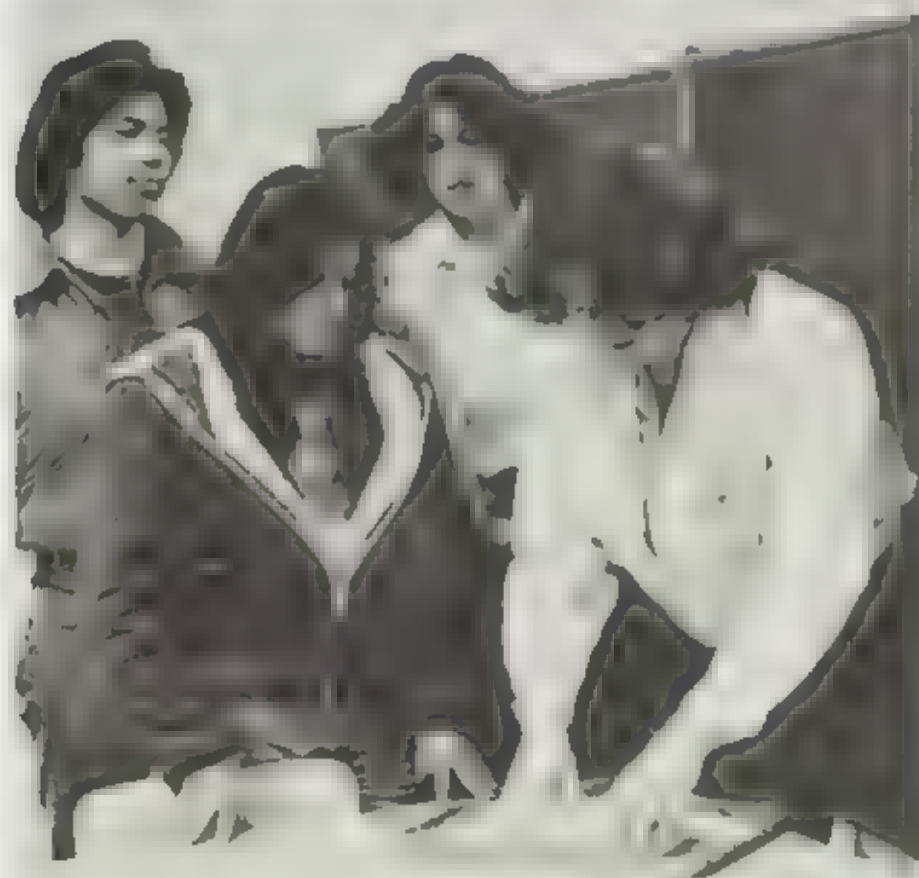

Ms. Allen was the acting instructional supervisor. She was appointed early in the year when Mrs. Linda Whitehouse went on maternity leave.

Test reminds students of 79-80 events

As the years overlap each other, so do the memories of the GBS alumni. Because of this fact, the Etruscan staff has designed this quiz so that in later years students may see what impressions 1979-1980 has left on them.

The following quiz will examine students' knowledge in various areas. It will also serve to jog one's memory in the years to come when alumni reflect on past years.

A scoring section is provided, and answers may be found on the next page.

People give South its personality

Bricks, cement, desks, blackboards, paint, very little glass, and silence make up Glenbrook South without the people.

With the people, GBS comes alive with filled desks, artwork hung on the cement and brick walls, chalked blackboards, vibrant colors of people and clothes, and, of course, noise.

What kind of school would Glenbrook South be without the people? How could it get national recognition for its national merit semi-finalists? How could it run properly without the excellent staff of teachers and administrators? It couldn't.

Glenbrook South isn't a school without its people.

50¢ Bet turns into Oly

Can you imagine going to the Olympics after making a silly little bet with some of your friends? That's exactly what Diane Kelley, physical education teacher and girls' gymnastics coach, did when she participated in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City after making a 50¢ bet with friends.

Kelley began her gymnastics career at two years old when she was enrolled in a ballet school. According to Kelley, during ballet she would be "flipping around the class." The ballet teacher suggested she go into gymnastics, and at four years old, Kelley began to practice gymnastics.

When she first became interested in the sport, Kelley practiced gymnastics once a week, but as she got older and more involved in the sport, her practicing increased to five and a half hours a day, seven days a week. Her typical five and a half hour practice day would begin in the mornings from 5:00 to 7:30 and end in the evenings from 6:00 to 9:00.

Kelley attributes her participation in the Olympics to her parents as well as her coach, Dick Mulvihill, who has trained seven U.S. Olympians and one Canadian Olympian. To get into the '68 games in Mexico City, Kelley had to take part in five preparatory meets from New York to California. She trained the entire summer from 8:00 in the morning to 6:00 in the evening, and at Long Beach, Cal., where the top 25 female gymnasts were selected, Kelley ranked 19th. In final trials at Long Beach, Kelley placed eighth among the top 11 girls chosen as potentials for the U.S. Girls' gymnastics team. With the Olympics only nine weeks away, she traveled to Lake Tahoe, Cal., the Olympic training camp chosen for high altitude testing. After four weeks of practicing, the top seven girls were selected for the U.S. girls' gymnastics team, and Kelley had managed to move up from eighth place to become a member of the team.

At the 1968 Olympics, Kelley performed in all the events included in gymnastics — the balance beam, uneven parallel bars, vault and floor exercise. Kelley did her best on floor exercise.

KELLEY DEMONSTRATES HER agility and poise as she practices at the Olympic training camp in Lake Tahoe.

Olympic reality

while in all four events she came in 35th

During her stay in Lake Tahoe and Mexico City, Kelley roomed with Cathy Rigby; yet she feels her most exciting experience was "being a part of the U.S. team and wearing the U.S. jacket (Olympic team jacket)"

Her least favorite part was "going back to school and making up homework, especially Algebra. I didn't know what to do with all my time, but I made up for lost time." Kelley was prepared for the 1972 Olympic games, coming in fourth in the second semifinals, but a knee injury held her back. Kelley went on to a college of fine and applied arts where she majored in dance. Later, she minored in physical education and got a job as a gym teach at Glenbrook South.

As a final reflection on the Olympics and scoring, Kelley stated, "There should never be any tens (in scoring). No one is perfect and no routine is really ever perfect. Gymnastics is an art."

History teacher develops boys' cross country team

Six coaches, one team member and mass confusion was the state of the West Leyden cross country team

The West Leyden cross country team was built up by both the teammates and himself. The runners on the cross country team ran every day in winter, spring, summer, and fall.

Even though the runners were tired and worn out, they all got along pretty good, said Pasquini. The West Leyden team also succeeded in winning five races in a row.

After Mr. Pasquini's hard work of getting the cross country team together, it seemed to him that the team was taken over by more than one coach. "If a coach offers to coach a team, it should be someone responsible, and someone who will stick to that team," said Mr. Pasquini.

According to Mr. Pasquini, Glenbrook South's team is a good team for many reasons.

The team has a lot of pride whether they win or lose, and nobody has quit because of the loss of a race.

Mr. Pasquini is not only a cross country coach, but he is also a history teacher. He teaches history because in the past 10 or 20 years, important events have occurred. "People should be aware of these things", he said. "History is a memory."

In comparing West Leyden to Glenbrook South, Pasquini says South is much bigger. West Leyden had only 370 students.

Since it was such a small population, everyone knew each other. "Glenbrook South has a more healthy environment, and people here do more traveling," he said.

Besides the difference in population, there really isn't much of a difference between West Leyden and Glenbrook South, according to Mr. Pasquini.

MR. DAVE PASQUINI exhorts his cross country team during a home meet.

"The Kotter Story" isn't just on ABC — It is also in GBS

Miss Deborah Caras, an alumna, is now a Spanish instructor in the Glenbrook South Foreign Language Department and loves her work "I enjoy meeting and working with different kinds of people," she said

From 1969 to 1973, Miss Caras was a student at GBS and was involved in several extra curricular activities, such as Orchestras Dance Club, Titanaires, A F S Club, Girls' Athletic Association, North South Musicals, Building Trades House, and Tri M, a music club for active students in music. She encourages students to participate in extra curricular activities because she feels that being in classes doesn't teach you enough. By joining activities, a student learns more and has fun doing it at the same time

Some teachers that remember Caras as a student are Mr. Leonard Barker, Miss Melsa Bobrich, Mr. Ralph Ganzer, and Mrs. Janet Rothwell. Barker commented, "She was just as persistent, intelligent, and as perceptive as she is now"

Mrs. Rothwell remarked, "I remember Debbie as a student at GBS, and she turned out exactly as I thought she would — intelligent, poised, and charming."

Her teachers weren't the only ones who thought she was "intelligent." Her students also think highly of her

Sean Murphy replied, "She's an extremely good teacher. She is well informed in her subject matter and is a very easy person to relate to. Most of the time she's a friend, instead of a teacher, and has a great sense of humor, but she won't tolerate misbehavior."

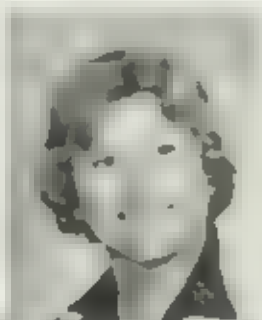

Welcome Back, Miss Caras, to GBS! Miss Caras feels that being a teacher now is so much different from being a student then. "I have different sets of responsibilities on my shoulders. I have to make sure that a student gets the best possible education a teacher can give, and make sure that what I am teaching is absorbed by the student."

One disadvantage of being a teacher, she said, "is the fact that some students do not appreciate the efforts that I exert in trying to convey what I want them to learn. But the best advantage of being a teacher is the fact that I get to work with high school students."

Teacher has variety of interests

What teacher at Glenbrook South enjoys reading history books, knitting mittens, solving history mysteries and traveling at the same time? The only person who could fit this variety of activities is Mrs. Catherine Deans-Barrett.

According to popular belief, teaching is not a format job, different subjects involve different techniques, and even the same subject requires a certain amount of variety. Mrs. Deans-Barrett shares the technique she uses to conduct her classes.

"It is important to make students interested. A teacher must like his students and the subject matter to make them interested," states Mrs. Deans-Barrett.

She feels strongly that "students should know history to be well-informed citizens and know enough to be able to vote."

Mrs. Deans-Barrett knows that History, in general, can be a very boring subject to students that don't have any interest in it. She tries to rouse the interest of the student that doesn't enjoy history. "History should be exciting not boring," she commented.

Deans-Barrett organizes her yearly schedule of US History by beginning the first semester with pre-twentieth century material. Later in the year she discusses the twentieth century in full, to teach her students about more modern history. "Modern history seems to interest students more than medieval times," she finds. "I feel students should be aware of their own time and be able to enjoy it."

Mrs. Deans-Barrett finds that her teaching technique is a result of her personality and the subject matter having developed during years of teaching, in addition to "being comfortable with what (she's) doing."

Trying to solve mysteries related to history and reading history books that make history come alive are two history-related hobbies that Mrs. Deans-Barrett finds fascinating. "I enjoy reading books that make history come alive, and I believe students should read them also because they make history exciting," she says.

Although Deans-Barrett has taught 13 years of history at GBS and four years in New Mexico, teaching is not her "hobby." It's the career she's chosen and she also enjoys reading, knitting sweaters, alghans, mittens and shawls and traveling to European countries as her hobbies.

Death of teacher brings sadness to GBS

Iast year Glenbrook South lost a distinguished veteran teacher. Leo Leathers came to Glenbrook South 13 years ago. He taught both horticulture and biology classes.

Most students will remember him for what he did with the greenhouse. Mr. Leathers, the greenhouse manager, had a major part in designing and planning the greenhouse, which is located at the southwest end of the school. Besides the greenhouse class, Mr. Leathers also taught regular and AP biology.

Anita Shah, senior, a former student of Mr. Leathers, said, "He was a very fair teacher. He would help individuals when they were having trouble, and he was very understanding."

Mr. Leathers graduated from Carthage College in 1950 and later went on to Illinois State University for his master's degree.

He started teaching in district 225 in 1957 at Glenbrook North. He came to South in 1966. While here, Mr. Leathers ran the Civil Defense Network, which deals with tornado warnings.

Leo Leathers devoted much of his time to the Mundelein Park District. He was the president of the organization at one time.

Each summer he would travel up to his summer home in Manawa, Wisconsin to fish and relax. It happened May 25, 1978. Mr. Leathers was on his way up to his summer home when he was suddenly struck with an aneurysm in his brain. The stroke killed him almost immediately.

According to Richard Goodspeed, head of the Science Department, "Many students considered Mr. Leathers their best teacher. He will be missed by all."

Veterans discuss changes at GBS

The aging of a high school is like the aging of a person. They both start out being new and shiny with everything to learn and nothing to lose.

GBS has finally come "of age" at 18 years old, and according to Dr. William Schnell, a former music instructional supervisor, has been teaching at GHS since it opened in 1962, "It (GBS) has grown in its ability to meet the needs of more students. There is more diversity in courses and extra-curricular activities. Teaching is better today."

In the beginning, many areas of GBS were different. There was a small number of electives, no unscheduled time, only half of a gym, only one pit and a small school concept. "We started out with a small school concept, which we abandoned after a few years," said Mr. Robert Wagner, a math teacher at GBS since it opened.

In fact, the first few years, Mr. Wagner knew three of every four students on a first name basis.

Even though GBS opened in 1962, its first graduating class was in 1965, with only 374 participating. Also, GBS's first homecoming queen was chosen in that same year.

Unlike most schools, GBS hardly experienced any radicalism in the 60's. "We had some students that expressed the rebellion. They would wear this and wear that not to conform, but these same people that didn't want to conform all did the same thing," reflected Wagner.

In 1971, the teachers at GBS had a strike. "There were some slight changes," stated Wagner. "Strikes aren't pleasant, but they are necessary from time to time."

"The strike created a division between the administrations and the teachers," added Schnell. "Prior to the strike the atmosphere here was much more congenial, more friendly."

Reflecting on the staff and students, both veteran teachers saw many changes: good and bad.

"The body has gotten much larger, and as a result, less personalized," said Schnell. "There is more of a variety of courses and activities now."

"There is also less school spirit now, but a greater commitment on the part of many student to activities in which they're particularly interested.

"The staff," feels Wagner, "is much more stable now. At one time the staff was 1/3 new every year."

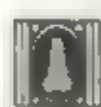

After 18 years of teaching at one school, both teachers reflected on why they have stayed. "It is nice when a student comes back and says, 'I learned a lot here; it helped me'."

"It's (GBS) a good place to work. The grass is not greener on the other side of the fence," said Schnell. "I like the student here, and I like my co-workers."

Wagner feels that being a student at GBS has and still is very special. "I would trade with any student. I would love to be a student at GBS because there are so many opportunities."

MISS MELSA BOBRICH, sponsor of the Titanaires is still hard at work. Inset: Miss. Bobrich rests on top of the bleachers after showing the Titanaires a routine in 1973.

fter a year at GBS the freshman class knows itself well. Each freshman knows which of his classmates are intelligent, athletic or freckled. In order to let everybody know just who's who, a survey has been taken, and here are the results.

TWO STUDENTS HELP study for a quiz during unscheduled time.

Just as businessmen, teachers, doctors, trapeze artists and runners need a break now and then, so do the students at GBS. The only time a student has off from studying during the day is his unscheduled time or lunch period.

Every day is different from the last, no matter how routine a student's course schedule is.
One day it may be sunny outside, thereby permitting any student to enjoy his or her free time outdoors if preferred. The next day it may be raining, so a student might choose to catch up on homework in the IMC.

Whatever is done during a student's unscheduled time or lunch period, be it throwing fris-bees to friends, building snowmen, writing notes to friends or reading books, most students seem to be more at ease, awake and enjoying the time away from schoolwork.

If a student has unscheduled time between classes, rather than at the beginning or end of the day, there is extra time to finish homework not completed the night before. This time has also been used as a rest period until the next class or simply as time to hear the latest gossip.

Many students use their free time wisely, if necessary. If all responsibilities have been taken care of before unscheduled time (for lunch) then free time is used recreationally.

A few activities that students participate in during their unscheduled time are receiving credit by becoming lab assistants for teachers, engaging in outdoor sports and game and joining peer group.

The most common places to find students during free time are the IMC, the courtyard, both cafeterias, all benches, student council office and the bus lobby.

Freshmen find South easy to adjust to GBS upperclassmen now are feeling reminiscent of their freshman year while freshmen are anticipating their senior year impatiently. Although this applies to many freshmen, it is also true that freshmen must learn to adjust to South before they can even begin thinking of becoming seniors.

Besides the obvious differences of a junior high school and a senior high school, there are feelings of adjustment to be dealt with. Some of these feelings are inferiority to upperclassmen, unfamiliarity with a large school, apprehensiveness to new acquaintances and fear of GBS initiation day.

As a result of the unfamiliarity with a large school feeling, many freshmen tend to take a long time to adjust to Glenbrook South.

Few students are as lucky as freshman Steve Day, who boasts "it took me about 20 minutes to adjust to Glenbrook South." Day feels this was because he attended Springman Junior High School, and, therefore, he knew a lot of students from that school.

Students who had to make two moves, one from junior high to a senior high, and the other from another district to a completely new one, had it rough. Freshman Jim Blondell recently moved into the area of District 225 and had a chance to meet people, before school started through football practice during the summer. "Being involved in football helped me get acquainted with the school and the teachers who were coaching us," said Blondell.

The homework is considerably multiplied when a student begins high school. "I have a lot more homework than I did at Maple Junior High, and I really have to pay attention here," admitted freshman Elise Hirsh.

Hirsh is not alone in feeling there is a lot of homework given at GBS. Freshman Sundee Eager feels "there's too much home work. It's a definite change from the amount I had at Springman(Jr. High) "

Although the switch from eighth grade into high school is often difficult for the majority of freshmen, soon everybody gets accustomed to their surroundings and aren't conscious of them. Glenbrook South does, in fact, have a unique building structure compared to other schools, but students eventually realize they will be attending GBS for four years so they learn to notice landmarks in case they get lost.

Frosh/senior duos discuss pros and cons

There is a large number of freshman who have the "dubious" honor of having brothers or sisters who are seniors, and vice-versa.

Freshmen, in general, find many advantages to this arrangement, while seniors are quick to point out the disadvantages.

Most freshmen agreed that having senior siblings was advantageous as far as homework transportation and school problems were concerned. Others such as Leah Lykouratzos, felt that "meeting his friends and talking to each other about problems" helped.

Other freshmen mentioned one disadvantage immediately: initiation. As Mark Chodash stated, "I got totally killed." This was the main disadvantage mentioned, but Elayna Chaplik also brought up another: "You get to be closer (in high school) because you're more alike, but then they (seniors) have to leave and you're lonely because they're gone."

Seniors either felt there were no advantages to having siblings who are frosh, or that the only advantage was bossing them around. The list of disadvantages, however, is a lengthy one. The main complaints were having one's younger brother or sister hanging around and waiting to be driven home and always having to help them. Senior Kathleen Haas summed up these points neatly. "No matter what they do they always look (and act) like frosh — they can't open the locker — they forget books they borrow — and they take 10,000 hours to get to the car after school!"

Students list pros, cons of wearing braces

Insel Teeth." "Railroad Tracks." "Metal Mouth." "Silver Streak." "Brace Face." Do these names sound familiar? To the 3.7 million American teenagers wearing braces on their teeth, these names can be heard constantly.

In the early seventies, when I got braces, he became somewhat of an outcast. He usually went from class to class with his mouth closed, not talking or smiling, for fear that someone would catch a glimpse of his sparkling teeth. Nowadays, though, when one walks through the halls at GBS, he will see more smiling, talkative people wearing those once loathed objects of discomfiture. One can even see many adults with braces on their teeth. As a matter of fact, people as old as 50 or 60 years old can still have braces, according to Dr. John son, an orthodontist in North brook. The youngest person he has ever worked on was a five year-old, although he didn't get braces, just an orthodontial ap pliance.

There are three different types of braces: the square braces that are cemented to the front of the tooth, the plastic style and the band-and-bar kind.

"The main problems of braces are that you can't close your mouth all the way, you can't drink through a straw easily, and there are some foods that you're not supposed to eat," explained freshman Sue Cousins.

Other things that high schoolers complain about are that people think that people with braces are younger than they really are, foods get caught in them, they hurt for a while when they're put on and each time that they're tightened, and that it's hard to talk for a while when the braces are first put on.

About two years (the average length of time that braces are worn) and anywhere from $1,500 to $3,000 later, the braces finally come off. Even though teens claim to suffer through the duration of their braces, most agree with the feel ing that everything is worth it. As freshman Jill Rosengard put it, "They (braces) were a pain because I had to go to the orth odontist all the time and get them tightened, but they're off now and it's great! It was all worth it!"

Frosh views Iranian situation

It happened in September of 1978. Riots and demonstrations in Iran spotted the news like a bottle of India ink tipped over. Total chaos lead up to the overthrowing of the Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, more commonly known as the Shah of Iran, in the end of January 1979.

The Shah left Iran in exile at the end of January and was replaced by the Ayatollah Khomeini, a religious leader, in the beginning of February. Under Khomeini's rule, bizarre occurrences began to take place. The most bizarre occurred when some Iranian students, backed by the government, captured the American Embassy in Iran and took 62 people as hostages.

Back in January 1979, coinciding with the Shah's exile, many families fled the country, too.

The Amin family, minus Mr. Amin, was among those which fled from Iran. After living in Iran for seven years, they returned to the United States because, according to the family, the government was ruining everything. Because of the political problems, the country was collapsing. When the family left, the police force had been replaced by teenagers, with guns, standing in the streets. Just a week after they left, Khomeini came into power. In June 1979, Mr. Amin joined his family.

Camron Amin, the older of the two children in the Amin family, is a freshman man at GBS. Although he is a United States citizen, he did have most of his primary schooling in a private, British school in Iran.

"The Shah's rule wasn't as bad as the Anti-Shah people lead the public to believe," declared Camron. "He tried to be fair and objective, and he got things done. The main differences," he continued, "between a democracy and a dictatorship are that you can be assigned to a position/job, rather than choosing one, and the people have no political clout, through voting or otherwise. There is one man with the absolute word."

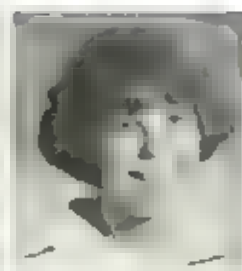

The social classes in Iran were very defined—upper and lower. The Amins, being in the upper class, heard nothing of the persecutions until the revolution began. At that point, they heard a lot about what had been happening.

The revolution, on the other hand, was as bad, if not worse than its portrayal in the United States. The actual riots were much more violent than the way that they had been reported to us, let alone the ones that weren't even reported, felt Camron.

Camron believed that President Carter handled the early stages of the U.S. Embassy hostage crisis properly. Camron ruled out the option of using military force but stated that the Americans had to deal with the situation firmly without resorting to violence.

Marauders arise! T-peeing pranks highlight nights

Tuesday night. The movie was great, but it was only 10:30 and the night was young. So what did people do to occupy their time for the rest of the night?

Pranks, dirty tricks, good 'ole American fun, or total destruction seemed to be the answer for many.

Teepeeing has become a classic, or at least a tradition, for many after school activities. For example, members of Senior Class Board "decorated" some of the varsity football players' houses for luck the night before the big North-South game.

For successful teepeeing, the proper attributes are needed: people with strong throwing arms, absolute quiet, and lots of toilet paper.

"Make sure there is lots of it high up on the tree so that it would be hard to take out, and it should look neat too," explained senior Michelle Kosik.

"One time we used four rolls to wrap all the way around the house, and then we tied a big bow right in front door," commented junior Deanna Carson.

Teepeeing isn't harmful, just annoying to the people on the receiving end who have to clean up the mess.

CAUGHT RED-HANDED by the photographer, Seniors Cathy M. and Sue Bohn and Clare Sente decorate the cafeteria windows.

TOILET PAPER ISN'T only good for houses, it's very handy for warming up seniors Cheryl Guthrie, Linda Peterson, Patti Johnson, Audrey Wadden, Shay Fisher, Sue Bohn, Laura Nesbitt and Lisa Mages during the windy Homecoming game.

Sophomores list best of the best

Which sophomore is the tallest? What sophomore is most intelligent?

In keeping up with the Etruscan's lists, sophomores were surveyed to find out which students they felt would fit into the above categories and others.

Some of their choices were obvious, and some were original, but, all in all, the results were interesting. They are as follows:

Tallest — Djin Sie

Most Likely To Succeed — John Spehlmann

Most Intelligent — Kevin Demaret

Shortest — Sharyn Rosenbaum

Biggest Blusher — Penny

Most Spirited — Arlene Cohen

Bashful — Donna Tuccy

Best Athlete — Maria Pearlstein/Mike McPhiliamy (tie)

Best Voice — Jenny Lays trom

Funniest — Peggy Frazer

Best Dancer — John Clonts

Best Smile — Hope Suss

Best Artist — Pam Osterkorn

Parents attend school with their children

Has it ever occurred to some students that their parents might be "spying" on them throughout the school day?

For the students at Glenbrook South High School who have parents teach at the same school, "spying" is the wrong word to use. They love having their parents "with them" in school. They feel fortunate compared to children who don't often see their working parents, days or nights.

"I get to see my father anytime of day, whereas other kids never see their fathers during the day or even at night," commented senior Jodi Stetson. "It's a great advantage, having a father as a coach for swimming. It may be tough at times, but you become stronger in helping your father by behaving and thereby making the other kids behave, too. It's fun."

Most of the students whose parents teach at GBS don't even see their parents enough during the day to cramp their style, so it doesn't bother them.

"I hardly see my father, and I act the same no matter what I think I cramp his style more than he does mine," remarked freshman Beth Sonnenberg.

The students had differing opinions when asked whether their teacher-parent made them work any harder in their classes.

Junior Ray Graham, who is in his mother's Spanish class, claims, "She gives me some extra work to do, and calls on me in class," but Janet Lucas says about her father's math class, "The fact is he tries not so much to be easier or harder, but he seems afraid even to say anything to me in class."

As for Dan Sanders, he has "never had the great fortune" to be in his father's chemistry class.

Despite the many pluses to attending school where one's parent is a teacher, a real disadvantage seems to be that if a child does well in his parent's class, he will be accused of cheating, or the teacher will be accused of favoritism. Janet Lucas insists this is true, and that she tends to work less in her parent's class simply to avoid the possibility of being accused of being "teacher's pet."

Another disadvantage is having to wait until 3:30 or later before their parents finish their work, but a considerable advantage is that students get rides to school instead of walking or taking the bus. "I have to wait after school until 3:30 or later before going home," said Ray Graham.

The Glenbrook South students that have parents as teachers at GBS are Ray Graham (jr.)-Yolanda Graham (foreign language); Alison Hunter (jr.)-Don Hunter (industrial education); Janet Lucas (soph.)-Ken Lucas (mathematics); Dan Sanders (jr.)-Irving Sanders (science); Beth Sonnenberg (fresh.)-Dan Sonnenberg (physical education); Jodi Stetson (sr.)-William Stetson (physical education).

MR. DAN SONNENBERG, physical education teacher, tries out his "physical" ability by lifting live month-old daughter Beth.

MR. WILLIAM STETSON, physical education teacher, discusses the swimming workout with daughter Jodi.

MR. KEN LUCAS, mathematics teacher, shows daughter Janet how a math problem is to be solved.

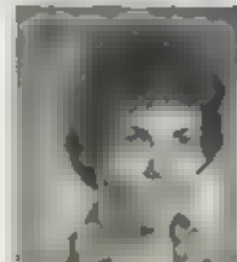

MRS. YOLANDA GRAHAM, Spanish teacher, assists son Ray with his Spanish homework.

Despite the fact that GBS offers a myriad of courses and activities virtually every student suffers from an attack of boredom sometime during the school day.

These students have devised a number of ways to spend their boring moments. When asked how they spend this time, students replies ranged from day-dreaming to doodling.

Sophomore Tim Cullitan said "I either doodle on scrap paper or sleep."

"I think about the good times I'd be having if I weren't at school," said sophomore Scott Kelley.

said, "when I get bored in class I usually write notes to my friends."

Sophomore Libby Ladd said "I do other homework from my different classes."

On your mark, get set, go were the words heard during the downstate cross country meet.

Sophomore Anne Attea was one out of seven girls to go downstate for cross country to represent GBS.

Going downstate was a thrill for Attea, because she felt it was a great honor and a lot of fun.

During training and the meet it was hard work because they had to practice in the cold.

Everyday Attea had to train for an hour and a half. The training consisted of sprints and distance running anywhere from two to five miles depending on the workout.

To qualify, she had to run with the rest of the team in a district meet in which they came in second. The next step was going to Detweiller Park in Peoria, where the state meet was held on November 10. Attea came in 102nd out of 220 other people from other schools who competed. While downstate she came in first among six GBS students who participated.

After coming back the sophomore runner said, "It was a great experience and we're looking forward to next year."

Attea is planning to continue with cross country through her junior and senior years. She enjoys cross country because she likes to run and the people are fun to be with.

Live reflections exist at GBS

What would it be like to have a sibling with the same birthdate, possibly the same interests, and the same required courses in the same school year?

The 15 sets of twins at GBS have this to "face" and generally find it to be an advantage

Advantages

The advantages of having a twin are that the relationship between the two is closer than it is with the other brothers and sisters, and that one twin is always there to share the happiness and loneliness that the other one has

"I like growing up with Mary because when we were little, someone was always there to play with, but as we were growing up, there was a little competition such as in school activities," commented sophomore Sue Carlborg

At times schoolwork is the number one advantage of having a twin because if one doesn't understand a problem, the other might know it. "Having Michele as a twin is nice because if I have a problem, Michele might know the answer," commented frosh Bev Hanks

Switch classes

For the identical twins, switching classes is a possibility. "During elementary school, Jim and I switched classes. The students knew, but teachers didn't have the slightest idea, which was pretty hilarious," stated frosh Jeff

Niemann. "But this was the only incident that we had encountered"

Speaking of switching classes, seniors Boyd and Brian Zander had a similar incident happen to them in high school. During the '78-79 school year, Brian's English class went to the IMC to do a research project. At the same time, Boyd's English class was in the IMC. Mr. Tony Laouras, Brian's English teacher, needed to talk to Brian about his present grades. Brian and a few friends were busy looking for books, so Mr. Laouras talked to Boyd about Brian's grades for 10 minutes, instead he was talking to Boyd, until Boyd's English teacher told him to get back to work

"I thought Brian was crying about his grades, so I pitied him, but Boyd had tears in his eyes because he wanted to burst out in laughter," commented Laouras

Disadvantages

There are also certain disadvantages to having a twin. An example of this is experienced by identical freshman twins, Ed and Joe Murphy. Ed stated, "Because of mistaken identity, I sometimes get blamed for what Joe does if he does something terrible"

Freshmen Peter and John Muckenhirn are also twins who have experienced certain disadvantages. Pete commented, "Sometimes a disadvantage is that he gets on my nerves, but I know his personality better and he's great to be around with"

A real disadvantage to having a twin is "first priority," stated junior Grace Gattone. "Phil always gets the first priority to the car and also the seniority of staying out late because he's older than me, and also he's a guy, and can take care of himself better"

There seem to be more advantages than disadvantages because the twins are close to each other in age and interest, so they always have a friend for life"

Twins at GBS class are as follows

Students list holiday presents

The holiday season is a time for gift giving. Some people have trouble choosing the "right" gift, while others find it an adventure.

Sophomore Marie Wikstrom said, "I like to give my friends presents that they will like."

Certain presents are always welcomed, while others are unusual. To determine which presents the students at Glenbrook South most like to give, the Etruscan surveyed random students.

Despite the fact that the Jewish celebrate Channukah, and people of Christian faiths celebrate Christmas, the choices didn't vary that much. The results are as follows:

Most Popular Gifts

1. Clothes
2. Jewelry
3. Records
4. Perfume
5. Clock radios

has its own advantages and disadvantages.
by Junior Brian Bartlett

A GBS LEFTY TRIES to play cards game at last year's Titan Open.

GBS lefties face disadvantages

It isn't easy being a left-handed student at GBS, it can present many problems.

Left handed people face certain disadvantages, as GBS students have discovered. Among the disadvantages are playing sports, eating meals and using desks when writing.

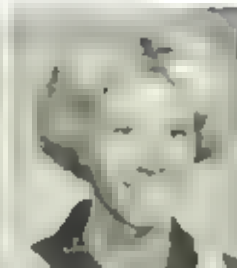

Sophomore Vicki Petersen said, "In gym the demonstrations are always for right-handed people, and it's confusing to learn them left handed."

Sophomore Tina Nolan said, "The desks are mostly made for right-handed people and so my writing isn't too good."

Sophomore Dean Okun said, "When I'm writing with a pen it smears all over. Also when I sit next to a right-handed person when I eat I bump elbows."

These are some of the problems the left handed students at GBS face. Most are not as fortunate as sophomore Alisa Lambert, who has learned to overcome the difficulties confronting southpaws by doing certain things with her right hand.

"I'm left-handed and right handed so whatever I can't do with my left hand I do with my right hand," she said.

Give me a T-"T"-I-"I"-T-T-A-A-N-N-S "S". What's that spell? "Titans!" Why Titans? Why not Spartans, Warriors, or some other name? How did the first Titans decide to become Titans, and for that matter where did Oracle, Etruscan and Calliope find their names?

Before South opened in 1962, the GBN'ers who were transferring to South spent many hours researching possibilities for a new name. Finally they voted and Titans won. "After seeing all the research those students did, I felt it [Titans] was a really appropriate selection," said Mr. Cliff Capp, associate principal.

Their research revealed that Titans were ancient mythological deities, the first born children of Uranus and Gaia. In Greece Titans were ultimately honored as the ancient ancestors of men, and attributed to them were the inventions of the arts and magic.

The GBS literary magazine writers chose Calliope for its name because Calliope was one of the muses, goddesses of memory and poetic inspiration.

According to the 1963 year book, "The first yearbook staff selected Etruscan for several reasons. To begin with, Etruscan is unusual but not trite, nor does it make a mockery of our school's nickname as Titan-ic might."

The Etruscans were people who inhabited the north central section of Italy from the eighth to the first century B.C. They were independent and highly civilized urbanites, interested in the full expression of their own potentials in many diverse fields — government, religion, the arts, commerce. Lastly, the Etruscans were a real people, and they represent a vital force which we all can become.

Oracle, "a divine communication or revelation," was used as the newspaper name. Unfortunately this is the only clue to the reason why the newspaper was labeled as such.

Students express themselves through fads

As feelings and preferences of Glenbrook South students have changed, so have the fads that they have come to enjoy. Everything from gold charm holders to braids in their hair have given students a chance to express themselves.

The hot fashions in jewelry this year center around gold. Fourteen karat gold charm holders have come to be a big fad, even though the price of gold continues to rise. Yet, charm holders are a good way to express oneself, with the wide variety of charms, any one can show the way one feels if a student is into skateboarding or tennis, there's bound to be a charm available.

Another fad that is helping students to express themselves is the comeback of rock and roll or new-wave rock. Steve Dahl from The Loop (WLUP) radio station has helped this trend with his anti-disco protests, as well as his renditions of "Do Ya Think I'm Disco" and "Ayatollah." One can see the affect he has had on students with all the Loop T-shirts that can be seen in school.

Styles of hair vary, but it doesn't matter whether it is long or short but how many braids one can get in her hair. French braiding has become popular this year as well as pony tails on the side of the head. Still, no matter where the hair is put it's up to the individual student to express herself.

New clothes' fashions include baggies and dickies, two new types of loose fitting pants. For the more bold and daring there are slit skirts, usually worn with cowboy boots and hats.

A GBS student feels that fads "express a person's personality, so fads are important to me."

Some people find it easy to speak three different languages, while others find it a wiz to figure out complicated math problems. Alexandra Mitchell, a junior at Glenbrook South, finds it a breeze to play nine different musical instruments.

Mitchell began her musical career at two years of age when her mother encouraged her to play the piano. Mitchell feels that her mom influenced her the most to play music, because her mom began to play the piano at age three. At six, Mitchell learned to play the violin which she has been playing for six years now. In her sophomore year of high school, she taught herself to play the flute after receiving one as a gift for Christmas.

The other instruments Mitchell plays include the organ, which she has been playing for five years in church related activities, the harpsichord, for two months for a concert, the trombone for three months; the recorder, a horizontal flute, for a year, French horn for one song and the guitar for two years. Once she figured out how to play the piano, she felt it was easy to learn the other instruments, because the notes are basically the same.

Mitchell uses her ability in school to participate in marching band, symphonic band, jazz band and Daybreak, as well as events like the variety show. She feels that playing this many instruments does not affect her social life, because her "social life is around music and I am with people who enjoy it."

Mitchell plans to use her knowledge of music to become a studio musician or possibly a concert performer. "I'm really into music and I get a kick out of it."

Girls attend Northwestern voice institute

What do most kids do in July — sleep until twelve, go to the beach, work, catch the rays in the back yard, cruise to parties?

Well, two girls, Linda Alexander and Cara Lukin, juniors, decided to go to college. They enrolled in the Northwestern University Summer High School Institute, held from July 8 to July 27.

Before the girls could attend the institute, they had to fill out an extensive application that asked them what type of music they studied, who their teachers were, and what accomplishments they had made in the musical field. Each student also had to submit a five-minute audition tape of classical songs.

There are many reasons why students attend voice camps — for improvement of vocal techniques, vocal styles, performing techniques, and just to have fun. "I went to improve my voice and performance abilities. I also thought it would help me decide if I would like singing to be my career choice, and I thought it would let me see the competition that is around," said Cara.

The girls attended classes and rehearsals everyday on campus, including opera workshop, vocal studies, jazz studies and voice lessons, held three times a week. They sang in a chorus and a swing choir. They studied and rehearsed pieces from operas, current pop tunes and classical songs. They were taught and coached by Northwestern professors, who stressed performance in addition to voice techniques.

They practiced daily. According to Lukin, she practiced an hour or two on her own a day. All the rehearsals and practices culminated in a concert held in Stager Auditorium.

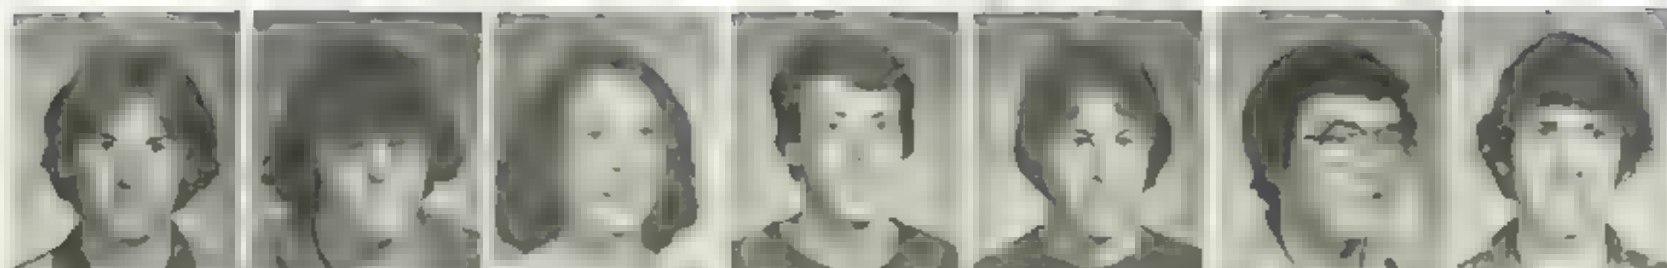

The institute was not easy. Cara found it challenging. "It was challenging; we weren't working for a grade — it was all our own motivation, so it was really as hard or as easy as you wanted to make it," she commented.

The institute was not all work. During their free hours, Cara said the students "went to the beach, hung around the dorms and goofed around with people — people from the acting and radio/TV institutes."

The camp was attended by students from all over the nation. "We met kids from all over the country, and that was very interesting," said Cara.

The girls also experienced campus life and "got a feeling of how it is to go to college and live on your own," Lukin added.

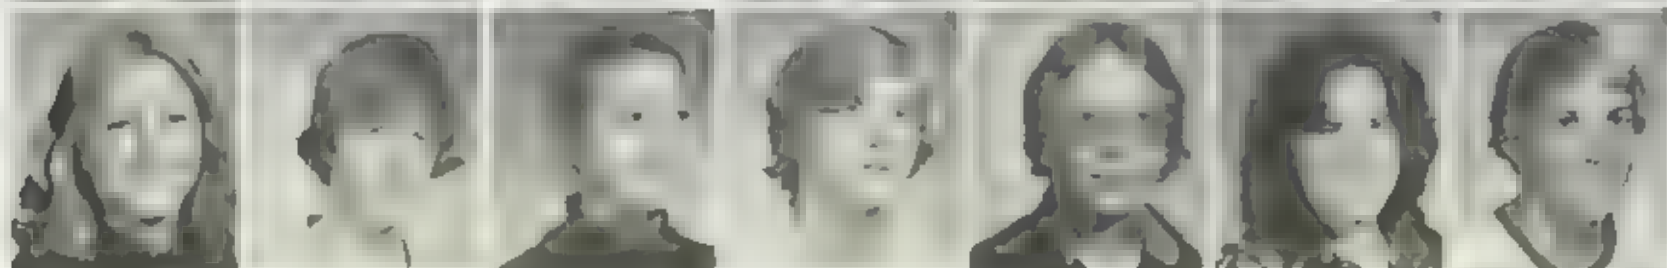

The girls encourage other students to attend a camp of this sort. Cara said, "It's a good experience, not only for the musical training, but because being in Glenview is very sheltered, and living on your own opens your mind up to the world and helps you mature."

Junior tours Israel, finds different lifestyles

Israel often seems to be a country far removed from the United States, a place seen in the news, in filmstrips, and read about in histories of ancient civilizations

However, for Shari Wolf, a junior, Israel has become a very real place. Shari spent most of last summer in Israel, traveling with the American Zionist Youth Foundation from July 11 to Aug. 20

Shari visited many places in Israel including Jerusalem, Naama, Arad, Massva, Tel Aviv, Gadna (an Israeli army camp) and Galil

Shari liked all the places she visited, but her favorite was Naama, a nature study center in the middle of the desert. "There was a lake a couple of miles away where we learned to snorkel. The lake was filled with beautiful fish and coral," explained Shari

The most interesting place for Shari was Gadna, an army training camp. "We learned how to shoot rifles we learned how to live like soldiers. We took midnight hikes of five to seven miles, and we learned to depend on the moon instead of flashlights. We carried only two canteens of water with us. We were up at 4:30 a.m. and went to sleep between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m.," said Shari

Shari lived with an Israeli family for a weekend. "The lifestyle is very different there. The people there aren't as interested in luxuries as we are. Their homes are nice but not overly luxurious," remarked Shari

The most enjoyable part of her trip was the people she was with. "I was with 40 kids from the U.S. (mostly N.Y.) and four guides, two Americans and two Israelis, all about 23 or 24 years old. The kids were all between the age of 16 and 17. Everyone became really close friends," said Shari Shari besides getting to know the people in her group came to know many Israeli people. "We came into very close contact with citizens. A few nights a week when nothing was planned we were allowed to 'go out on the town' "

When they were out they would go to outdoor cafes, popular in Israel. Shari said that cafes were "the place to go if you want to meet people."

Shari encourages anyone who has an opportunity to visit Israel. "You learn about the Jewish people, their past, present and future in Israel, and you also see one of the most beautiful countries in the World," she concluded

The seniors have been busy all year. After spending a rowdy freshman year, a long sophomore year, a hardworking junior year and a lazy senior year together, the seniors know each other very well. In fact, most seniors have a mental list of which of their peers have the best smile, the best personality, worst laugh, etc. Etruscan polled the seniors to see which senior fit in what category. The results are as follows:

Senior meets opera star

Opera isn't only for the elite. Senior Kim Kelley has discovered

Kelley has been a supernumerary (a supernumerary or super is someone who is on stage, but doesn't sing) in operas for eight years. She has performed in 13 operas and among them are Rigoletto, La Boheme, and Tosca. All of these are performed by The Lyric Opera of Chicago.

Kelley goes through a rigorous schedule before being picked for a part. First the supernumerary head of the opera calls her and she must go to the opera house and see if the director likes her appearance. If the director likes her, she is fitted for a costume and then receives the part.

Kelley has played everything from a whore to a lady of the court.

"There is little training involved," said Kelley, "and there are usually several blocking rehearsals, a piano run through, and a run through with the orchestra, as well as the dress rehearsal."

She became involved with the opera because she grew up with it. Her parents constantly played opera records and are both very involved in opera. They are on the executive board of the Guild Board of Directors, of The Lyric Opera of Chicago, and Mr. Kelley is a former President of the Guild Board. She also is involved in operas because she feels it's a lot of fun and a very educational experience.

While "supering" in the operas she has met such famous singers as Pavarotti, Domingo, Sutherland and Kraus.

Kelley said, "Pavarotti is just like a big, cheerful teddy bear."

Kelley plans to take a career in Communications and Theatre, and hopefully plans to attend Northwestern University.

"I feel that 'supering' in the opera has helped my confidence and will help me achieve my career goals," said Kelley.

College selection involves many considerations

For seniors at Glenbrook South and other high schools, choosing a college can be hectic and nerve wracking, but it can also be a very enlightening experience.

Two criteria which all future collegians consider are what they expect from a college and, conversely, what the college expects from them. Once a senior compiles a list of prospective colleges, the steps in the application process are seemingly endless. Application after application must be filed out. Included are applications for admission, applications for scholarships, and applications for financial aid. In addition, requests for educational records, ACT and SAT scores and residency contracts must also be honored. Sometimes the number of forms seems staggering.

ing for responses causes ulcers."

A college, most of all, has to impress the student. He must "check out" a campus which has a good location, people, social life, reputation, enthusiasm of the student body and alumni, professors, reasonable tuition, and fields of well rounded curriculum studies.

Students also have to decide what size college they prefer to attend. As for senior Barb Donisch, she stated, "I like the smaller colleges, and in that college which I'll attend I'll look for friendly people, a relaxed atmosphere and a good program in my major field of study. I want it to be my home away from home."

Choosing a major can also be a problem for some, but Donisch says, "you" really don't choose a major; it chooses "you."

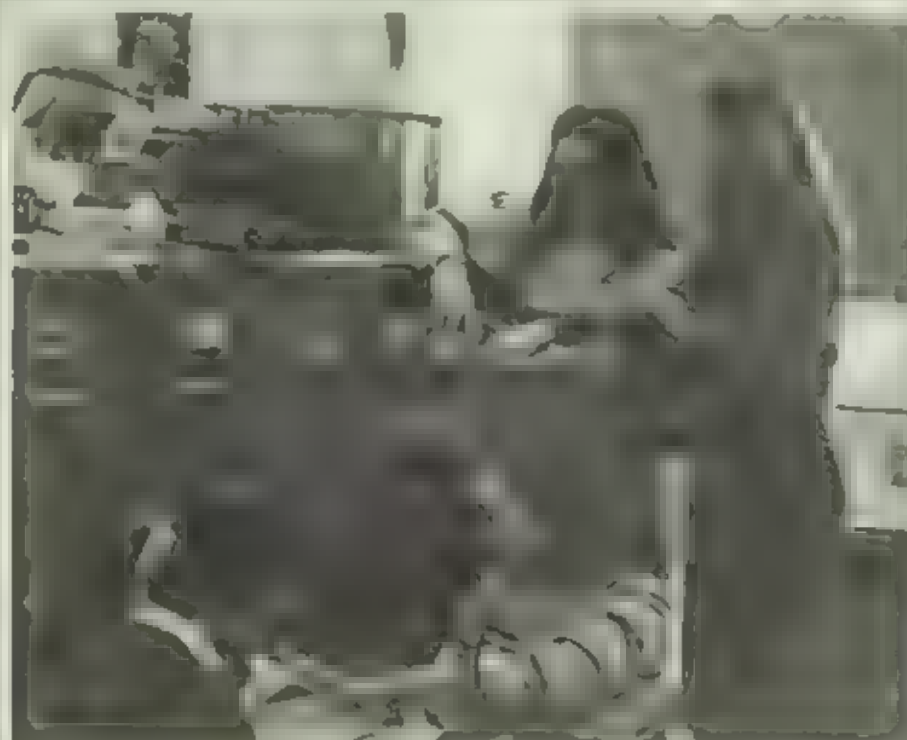

Some students "wrack their brains" thinking about what field to go into, and they don't come up with any answers. This is no problem for senior Ricky

Gaynor because she wants to go in the field of veterinary medicine, and as for senior Tom Coyl, he wants to study journal-

To find out what colleges are good for what majors, a student utilizes the career resource center at GBS and uses the computer. Pamphlets of the colleges, personal visitations, talking to college representatives, looking in the media, analyzing critiques of the school, and pondering advice by one's counselor are helpful in looking for a college.

"The Career Resource Center is helpful in looking for basic information on colleges and careers. But more extensive information is needed," said senior Ruth Huebner.

Sometimes a student's application to his chosen college is rejected. Some feel disappointed, but most have alternatives in mind. Senior Marc Puleo says, "Choose a couple and if one isn't right, the others are there to fall back on, and would do as well - there's plenty to choose from."

Student wins clothing contest

In this day and age it's hard to purchase clothes because the prices are so high, but this is no problem for senior Lisa Bielick because she makes a large portion of her wardrobe.

On Dec. 1, 1979, Bielick entered a "Make It With Wool" contest held at Macomb. Out of 21 contestants ranging from ages 17-24, she was one of the three first place winners and won three yards of wool.

"I was so surprised when they announced my name because everyone said 'don't expect too much, and don't get your hopes up.' I thought the other outfits were better. A girl had wished me luck in the state competition, and right after that the judge announced me as one of the winners. I was so shocked," stated Bielick.

Bielick chose to enter the competition because senior Linda Foote entered last year, and she told Lisa about it. Mrs. Janet Rothwell, I/S in home economics, also talked to Lisa and told her a little about it and also encouraged her, so she entered.

Because she won the district competition, Bielick qualified for the state competition held at Springfield on Jan. 4,5, 1980.

She felt that home economics courses that she took gave her an excellent background to win the contest.

After high school, she plans to go to Harper College and study fashion designing. Then she will go on to New York and study more in her field. "I like to become a fashion designer because I really enjoy doing it," stated Bielick.

LISA BIELICK, WINNER of the "Make It With Wool" contest, sews a dress out of the material she won for 1st prize.

Students occupy time with activities, work

It's 2:45. Where do the students go? "For whom the bell tolls?"

Well, one doesn't know how it struck Ernest Hemingway, but at GBS the 2:45 bell summons seniors to all sorts of endeavors.

For sports-oriented students, it is practice as usual, for the ambitious students it is work, for the theater students it is rehearsal after rehearsal, and for the many club members it is fund raising activities and meetings.

It is not unusual to find a student who is involved in more than one of these activities during the year.

To say you knew someone who rehearsed for the school play from 3:00 to 5:30, then ate dinner and did homework from 5:30 to 6:00, and then went to work from 6:00 to 11:00, was nothing to boast about.

"Often times my schedule conflicted between work and golf. My job was a source of income, as well as the beginning of a possible career. It would also help pay for my education. Golf, on the other hand, was something I enjoyed and was committed to," commented Steve Anderson, senior.

Many students believed in a combination of work, pleasure activities. "I was active as a member of the swim team. It was a lot of fun. I also worked. Through work and swimming many of my weekends were taken up," stated Jeff Dupuis, senior.

Though many students seemed to be very active, others wanted to do more. "Even though almost every one of my Saturday nights was taken up by my job, I would have liked to do more. If I were to go through high school again, I would have gotten involved in more activities," added Anderson.

The after school bell will always summon GBS'ers to many activities: working for Student Council, or going to football practice.

Senior Claudio Galvan is active in after school soccer.

In December, the yearbookers polled GBS students to find out their favorite presidential candidate for 1980. One hundred and twenty Seniors who will be 18 by the time of election took part in the poll.

These were the results:

|-----------------|----------|
| Jimmy Carter | 47 Votes |
| Teddy Kennedy | 31 Votes |
| Gerald Ford | 12 Votes |
| John Connally | 10 Votes |
| Ronald Reagan | 8 Votes |
| George McGovern | 8 Votes |
| George Bush | 6 Votes |
| John Anderson | 2 Votes |

Several issues concerning the future of this country will be tackled by the candidates. Among these issues are the energy crisis, inflation and foreign affairs.

The energy crisis is vast, and it may be the deciding factor of who our next president will be.

Nuclear energy is something many people are questioning. "The incident with Three Mile Island was tragic, but I feel nuclear energy can work more for us than against us. I'm all for it as long as it can be controlled," stated Kathy Wrobel, senior.

When the poll was taken, the major conflict facing Jimmy Carter was the crisis in Iran. Although the crisis was not yet resolved at the time, some people did express their feelings on the matter. "Because the Shah was a great ally for our country, I believe President Carter did the right thing by letting him into our country. I believe Carter has handled the entire situation well. I will not commit myself on this, but if the election were tomorrow, I would vote for Carter," commented Wrobel.

Naturally, there were mixed opinions about who to vote for. "I will either vote for John Connally or Ronald Reagan. They both proved themselves as governors, and I believe they would make good presidents," said Jeff Dupuis, senior. "In my opinion, Carter accomplished zero in his first three years as president."

As for those who have no idea of who they will vote for, Dupuis sums up his criteria perfectly. "I would like to see a president who can combat inflation, balance the nation's economy and build up our defenses. I would also like to see no governmental controls over the oil companies. The candidate that can best show these qualifications will receive my vote."

Senioritis strikes again!

Here's an epidemic that comes to Glenbrook South every year without fail. It occurs around April or any time when spring begins to break through the cold temperatures of winter. The characteristics of this disease are simple: anxiousness to get out of the classroom and into the sunshine, gossip of summer vacations and other plans, and many hopes of less homework each afternoon. The illness is, of course, senioritis.

In its beginning, senioritis was limited to high school seniors, where it derived its name. Graduation and other such senior-related activities led the class to forget about math and English and look into plans for the summer before college.

In recent years, senioritis has fallen on to the underclassmen. In their case, the disease comes from too much thought of math and English. Yet, for whomever the illness happens to fall upon, there is only one cure - the close of school.

Senior Karen Olenick stated, "Time has gone by quickly. I can't believe I'm a senior already! I'm going to miss my friends next year, but I'm looking forward to college."

In the end, when the epidemic is over and everyone is well, it's not too difficult for a student to look back over the year and all the good times that went with it and wish he had one more math or English assignment.

DIANE MARTH, DAVE Kaiser and Grant Peters show their enthusiasm for the end of senior year by throwing their books in the air.

One Friday, Frankie Freshman asked Suzy Sophomore, "Who are all those big people walking around in blue shirts?"

One hundred and eighty seniors purchased senior T-shirts. Starting a new trend, president of the Senior Class Jerry Scully, with the help of others, chose blue shirts with yellow writing instead of the traditional yellow with blue. "I didn't like the gold T-shirts, and when I asked other people's opinion, they agreed with me," he commented.

Scully drew up the design, and when he brought it to the printer they made changes to make them look better.

The t-shirts were, like anything new, liked, and disliked.

"I think they stink because the front should have our school mascot — the Titan — instead of a 'T' which doesn't symbolize our school," said Renee Baich.

"I agree with Renee," Pam Cernansky added, "I don't like the front, but I like the back."

Although mixed opinions were felt about the shirts, they still were worn on spirit days.

"Well, that explains the blue shirts, but tell me Suzy, why are there people guarding the halls all the time?"

Exchange student compares Australia to U.S.

Leaving one's home, family and friends for a year may sound very unappealing, but to some people it is very exciting.

Sharon Davenport, a Rotary Club exchange student left her family, friends and small town in Tasmania, Australia to come to the United States on Jan. 14, 1979.

During her stay in the United States, she has experienced such things as riding a bicycle from Glenview to Heston, Kan., being a member of the track team, participating in a short student exchange to northern Minnesota and waterskiing in northern Wisconsin.

Sheffield, the town in which she lives, has a population less than that of the population of Glenbrook South. Tasmania has many mountains, hills and beaches very near to each other and is like a very compact United States, Sharon stated.

During her year stay here, Sharon had lived with four families scattered around Glenview and attended Glenbrook South. She took such courses as AP English, AP Biology, Music Theory and American History.

"I had a fantastic time and learned a lot. One thing that constantly surprised me throughout my year was that even though Australia and America are geographically distant, they have a very similar way of life," she commented.

Sharon left Glenview and the United States on Jan. 3, 1980. When asked what she most looked forward to in Australia she replied, "My family, the ocean and the mountains."

DURING HER STAY in the U.S. Sharon Davenport spent much of her time talking about Australia and its location. Here Sharon talks about her homestead in a two room school house at Grand Portage, Minnesota.

Was I red ??? Memories we can't forget

Sounds familiar? How many memories never turned out into disasters they would rather forget? Well, they're not in any sort of minority, not by a long shot

According to seniors asked, most have been in rather novel situations that they would rather not remember, but here they are, not for the last time

Seniors name frequently used excuses

A student walks into class late or doesn't walk in at all. Although he may have a legitimate reason to throw at his teacher as she's filling out his detention, sometimes he does not. What does a student do when faced with this problem? He may be content to suffer the consequences he has brought upon himself, or, if he feels more daring, he may try to outsmart his teacher.

In the students' never-ending battle to outsmart his teachers, there arises a need for some kind of defense. Out of this need was invented "the excuse". The "excuse" is very handy and can be used in any form, anywhere from totally believable to absurdly outrageous, which is why its popularity increased. However, most of these excuses are made up in vain, but the effort is worth it just the same.

The Senior Class of 1980 was asked to list some of their most frequently used excuses. The results are as follows: 1 "My car wouldn't start" 2 "I had an ortho appointment" 3 "The teacher from my class before this kept me late" 4 "I got lost" 5 "My car blew up" 6 "I was in the bathroom" 7, "I was talking with my friends and they wouldn't let me go" 8 "I don't bother with excuses, I just forge passes" 9, "The Iranians were holding me hostage" 10. "I had a hangover"

Seniors choose Champaign

Around the beginning of his junior year, a student is faced with perhaps one of the most important decisions of his life—where will he go to college?

This year's senior class was questioned about their college choices and how they were made. Listed below are the 10 most popular colleges selected by the class of 1980.

- 1 University of Illinois (Champaign-Urbana)
- 2 Northern Illinois University
- 3 University of Notre Dame
- 4 Oakton Community College
- 5 DePaul University
- 6 University of Wisconsin
- 7 Indiana University
- 8 Northwestern University
- 9 University of Michigan
- 10 Illinois State University

Some seniors chose to attend a particular college because it opened the door to other colleges that specialized in their chosen fields. Senior Kim Kase said the reason she chose to attend the University of Florida was, "My chances of getting into the University of Miami med-school are improved if I go to a college in Florida."

Almost all the seniors chose their colleges because they had a good academic reputation and catered to the students' chosen fields as well. Jill Schaum, who plans to be a interior designer, chose to go to the University of Cincinnati. "They have a fantastic program in the area of interior design. One of the programs offered is a work/study course in Europe!"

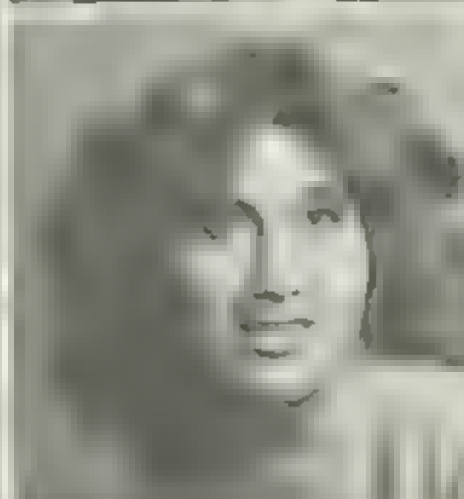

In these times of inflation, money also played an important role in choosing a college. Seniors wanted to get the best education they could for the least amount of money. "The business school at Champaign is currently rated sixth in the nation. However, the cost is not exceedingly high," said senior Jeff Berman, a future student at the University of Illinois.

Apparently some seniors are reluctant to break ties with home. Therefore, they want to go to college somewhere where they will still be close to family and friends. "I have family and friends who live in Dallas and attend SMU (Southern Methodist University)," said Steve Anderson about his decision to attend SMU.

Oddly enough, some seniors don't know why they chose to attend the college they did. When Jim Maundes was asked why he chose to attend the University of Illinois, he replied "Beats the heck out of me!"

Plans insure GBS's athletic future

If one examines the performance of GBS sports teams over the past season, it is easy to visualize how much practicing and other preparation must have gone on. The girls' cross country team obviously worked very hard this season because it competed in the IHSA cross country state meet held downstate. They placed 21st out of 25 teams. The team practiced between one and one and a half hours a day to prepare for the meet.

The swim team's hard work paid off as it took eighth place in state competition, which culminated a super season, according to Coach William Stetson. "We had our ups and downs in dual meets," said Stetson "and were a better big meet team than we were a dual meet team.

Support is always important for a team to have. This element was present according to Varsity basketball Coach Ed Young, who said "This year's team has been the best group yet because they were all pulling for each other." The team practiced from one to one and a half hours a day, which was pretty hard on the players, but excellence demands practice.

Compared to last year's season when GBS had one of its best football teams ever, with a record of 10-1, this year's football season, which concluded with a record of 4-5, was rather disappointing. Coach Bob Schoenwetter attributes this to the fact that the team mostly played "better teams than us." We still worked hard and played hard," concluded Schoenwetter.

Not only did the sports teams work hard, but also the sports coordinators worked hard to renovate the gym and its surroundings.

The total tentative athletic budget for this year was between $250,000 and $260,000. This included such things as the interscholastic budget, costing $57,595, transportation fees, equipment fees, coaches' salaries, training fees and game officials fees.

Some needed improvements, including having the East Gym floor refinished, putting additional lockers in the boys locker room and installing a new $50,000 lighting system, were accomplished this year. In addition, new mats and uneven parallel bars were purchased for gymnastics, the volleyball team got new uniforms and the boys' varsity basketball team got new warm ups.

In the best interests of the future GBS athletic program, new three-year outdoor renovation program has gotten under way. By the time this program is finished, GBS should have three baseball diamonds, three softball diamonds, four soccer fields, four football fields and one main game field, according to Hurlbut.

Community renovates house

Cashington may have its monument and South Dakota may have Mt. Rushmore, but Glenview has the Kennicott House.

In 1856 the Kennicotts constructed a new home in The Grove, which is now the center of its history interpretation programs. After restoration is completed, the home will appear as it did in 1856 and will be considered a living museum.

With the help of the Glenview Park District and the Grove Heritage Association, rebuilding will probably go on over the next two years.

According to Steve Swanson, director of The Grove, "There has been good public response. The Grove Heritage Association with its 500 members has been very active."

Dr. John Kennicott, the father of the family, was one of the first physicians in the northern Cook County area. Yet, he had many interests besides health and medicine. Kennicott operated the first fairly successful nursery in the Glenview area. He was also editor of the Prairie Farmer, a magazine which helped with legislation to make Illinois a fenced-in territory.

Kennicott did a large amount of work with colleges. He formed the first land grant colleges and backed the University of Illinois when it was built.

Kennicott's son, Robert, was a highly-regarded scientist. He made two expeditions to Alaska which, along with his recommendations, led to the purchase of Alaska, the 49th state. Unfortunately, he died on his second expedition, but before he did he was director of the Smithsonian Institute at only 20 years of age and was founder of the Chicago Academy of Science, where animals he collected and classified can still be seen today.

The Kennicott house (pictured above) is being renovated to look as it did in 1856. When finished, the house will be a national landmark.

US Navy settles in Glenview

he time: 1942

The place: Glenview, Ill.

The people: 9,000 aviation cadets being given their primary flight training, and over 15,000 Navy and Marine Corps pilots already qualified in carrier landings.

Primary training for the Naval and Marine Corps aviators took place in 1942 at what was then the Naval Reserve Aviation Base, Chicago, Glenview, and is now the Naval Air Station, Glenview, Ill.

This aviation base cost $125 million and was to be constructed from what was known in 1937 as the Curtiss Reynolds Airport.

The Naval Air Station covers almost 1,300 acres and was annexed to the Village of Glenview in June of 1971. Nearly 1,100 active duty Navy, Marine Corps, Army and Coast Guard personnel work there with 300 civilian employees, supporting some 3,000 Navy, Marine Corps and Army drilling reservists.

Many of the military personnel that reside on the A.R. base have children, some young, some old enough to attend GBs.

Sophomore Mike Shipman, who has lived on the base for three years, said "I've had to jump from school to school because of my dad's duties in the service, but it is interesting to live in so many different places." Shipman has lived in such states as California, Texas, Kansas, and Arkansas. "I enjoy the conveniences of military bases," he commented.

Many places are included in the description of the Naval Air Station as it is today. The base appears to be a city within a city, containing a general store, a bowling alley, a gymnasium, health clinics, service stations, post office, a bank and a theatre, among its various conveniences.

ANYONE REQUESTING ADMISSION to the Naval Air Station must first confer with the Military Policeman at the gate.

Glenview cops fight crime, guard citizens

The Glenview Police Department is a great deal more than issue tickets for speeding and parking violations. Murders, kidnappings, robberies and cases of vandalism all occur in Glenview. It's the job of the Glenview Police Department to solve these crimes and protect the citizens of Glenview.

The major offenses of Glenview residents according to Detective Kirk Filipowski of the Glenview Police Department are "vandalism and criminal damage. Thefts are fairly common but mostly there are crimes against property."

The Glenview Police Department has recently worked on some spectacular cases. "The Brach case was the one case with the most notoriety and the theft of Cy Frederick's jewelry store was a big case this year," said Filipowski. The Brach case involved the disappearance of an heiress who lived on Wagner Road, in Glenview. Mrs. Brach still has not been located, but the police are still working on the case. On many major cases the Glenview police work with the Cook County and Chicago police.

The Glenview Police Department has a computer service to help it control crime. According to Filipowski, "The computer is hooked up with the Secretary of State and NCIC (the National Crime Information Center), and can find the identity of criminals in a matter of minutes."

The focus of the Glenview Police Department is mainly local. The department takes a vital interest in the youth of Glenview. Filipowski said, "Ninety per cent of the kids in Glenview are very decent, but the police must view youth as a composite of aspects because we deal with some of the bad kids. The police mostly hold kids in high esteem."

Senior displays language versatility

Many people can say "no" in four different languages. They may even be able to say "yes." But senior Maria Spears can say "yes" and "no" and practically everything else. She is able to speak English, Spanish, French, and Greek fluently.

For Maria, speaking four languages is nothing new. "I've known Greek all my life, English since kindergarten, French for 3½ years, and Spanish for 5½ years," said Maria.

It was Maria's own decision to learn all the languages. "I wasn't encouraged by anyone to take four languages," said Maria. "When I took my first year of Spanish, my teacher told me that I had really good pronunciation, and I really caught on fast."

The languages also benefit Maria in many ways. "I'm really happy about knowing four languages," commented Maria. "It helps me out a lot when I travel, which I do a lot of."

In fact, Maria travels to Greece every year. "Every summer I go with my parents to Greece, and it really helps me communicate with people who don't know how to speak English," she said.

Maria's first language was Greek. "My parents were born in Greece and moved here," she said. "I know the Greek language so well because my parents are Greek and they taught me to speak it," said Maria.

Knowing four languages is going to be very useful to Maria. "After college I plan on moving to Europe and using different languages in a successful job," she concluded.

Maria Spears waits in the shadows off stage for her performance at a variety show rehearsal.

AFS'er thanks South

Clareview, 1980

Dear GBS people

Hi! I'm Claudio. I'm an Argentinean AFS student. I came to America on July 17, 1979.

I came from a family with a brother, Jose Luis 15, and two sisters, Gabriela 12 and Fernanda 9. My father's profession is advertising, and my mother has a radio and TV program.

My city, whose name is San Juan, has 400,000 inhabitants and is placed in the valley in the Andes Mountains. It is modern because in 1944 it was destroyed by an earthquake, and every building was reconstructed.

I really liked this year here, especially the people who tried to help me and communicated with me. When I first came I didn't speak any English. The first few days, I did everything by signals, and sometimes it was very funny.

The first most funniest and most embarrassing experience I had was when I stopped for breakfast (when I came from New York) in Chicago and a man tried to sell me LSD. It was embarrassing because I didn't understand anything he was saying and after asking twice very loudly, "What are you saying?", I then yelled in Spanish for some friends to come and translate. He thought I was pulling his leg and the next thing I knew, he was gone.

I really like the United States, and I also like the school system. I mean, the difference between Argentina's school and system and the US's school system are many. First of all, here you spend more time in school than we do. In the United States, the school is really your second house, and for some people it's their first home.

At home, I go to school in the afternoon. This way, I usually sleep in the morning, but not everybody in Argentina goes to school in the afternoon, some go in the morning. We have the choice.

Another difference is that we don't have the school activities or clubs as you do here. At GBS, I was in the AFS Club, but I also visited other club activities because they were new to me. This is one good and important thing to have clubs in the school — because you do the things that you like and you have it in the same school.

The differences that are in the system itself, in the way of teaching and the rules are noticeable. In Argentina, we don't choose subjects. Almost all schools require uniforms, and we have in the room the same companions all year. The teachers come to us, we don't go to them.

I also practiced sports at South. I was lucky to play soccer with a great bunch of guys with whom I had an excellent time, and we also had a good

I have no more space to tell my experiences, but I can say it was very positive, interesting and enlightening, and I would recommend the AFS experience for anyone.

I would like to take this opportunity to say thank you for your part in my time in the United States. I also extend this greeting to my teachers who were at any time ready to help me, like Mr. Zerfass, Mr. Baigenorth, Mr. Laouras, Mrs. Makas, Mrs. Pope, Dr. McConnell and Mr. Urban.

So, Adios Amigos y buena suerte!

Students gain teaching insights

Children in grammar school usually think teachers are non human. It's nearly impossible for grammar schoolers to believe that teachers have families of their own or even go to the bathroom. Luckily, these children grow up and realize that teachers are people too. Some even grow up wanting to teach grammar school themselves.

Some students at GBS have experienced this as part of the Child Development Program. These girls teach children for an hour every day. Once a month each is excused from school to teach the students for a day. "It definitely gives me a lot of confidence to be there when they need help and I can give it to them," said senior Cindy Cash.

This class is in a series of classes in the Child Development Program. The first year of Child Development class is spent reading and talking about the growth of children.

The second year is teaching nursery school for a week, and the third is teaching grammar school for a semester.

Most of the student-teachers enjoyed teaching because they like to be with little children. "Since I love working with little children, I'm lucky to have the chance to teach," said Cash.

Teaching the children is not only good for the grade schoolers but also good for the student-teachers. Self-confidence plays an important role. "I get a feeling of accomplishment after teaching little kids," commented Dorrie Friedman.

Roberta Dolins is another student-teacher at the school. Roberta teaches mainly because she loves little kids.

AS ONE OF the student teachers at Sunset Ridge Elementary school for the Child Development Program, senior Dorrie Friedman assists one of her pupils.

walking into the Eruscan office is like walking into a mini-insane asylum. Unfortunately, the school won't allow us to wear straight jackets — it is bad for the school's reputation.

"Where is your story for your page?" yells the assistant editor.

"Where is your lay-out?" screams the editor-in-chief.

"Why didn't you make out a photo assignment earlier than a day before the deadline?" whines the photographic coordinator, all at the same time.

Oh, what beautiful music the GBS yearbookers work to!

How do you distinguish which students are the yearbookers? Some of the more obvious signs are bald spots from ripping out hair, sore feet from running around the school trying to find coaches, teachers and students to interview; writers' cramp from writing and rewriting stories time and time again.

The common elements of a yearbook are pictures and copy(written material). Two words that are easier said than gotten. To schedule a photo and actually get it is a cause for celebration on the staff. Interviews are also a cause for celebrating, but, as you can see, we don't celebrate often.

But, alas, at the end of the year, when the book is published, the staff forgets all the trouble they had making it and just remembers what a great product they made.

ONE OF THE many duties of a photographer is to keep all the negatives in place. Senior Marc Pulso arranges the negatives in a photography notebook.

CONSTRUCTION BEGAN LAST spring on the Lake Avenue underpass, a long needed project. Train traffic across Lake Avenue during morning rush hours causes late arrivals for many GBS students and teachers and also creates problems for Glenbrook Hospital's new entrance.

GBS'ers, community go hand in hand

- Which GBS activities does the community involved in?
- A) Homecoming
 - B) Key Club
 - C) Advertisements
 - D) Working Students
 - E) All of the above
 - F) None of the above

The answer, of course, is "E".
Whether one realizes it or not,
GBS and the community inter-connect in many ways.
During Homecoming, the store owners allow the clubs to paint windows and the town allows the parade to travel down the main street in town, Glenview Road.
Key Club, an affiliate of Kiwanis, is a community club, although it is chartered through the school. Key Club members conduct a Thanksgiving dinner for a community nursing home, along with help from National Honor Society. They also arrange a Christmas party for the children at Glenkirk Center.

The community also helps support the clubs at GBS financially. The stores around town advertise in the student directory, the school newspaper and the school yearbook.
Outside school activities are also included. Many GBS'ers work at neighborhood stores, restaurants and offices.
Whether it is working outside of school or window painting, GBS'ers and the community go hand in hand.

THIS MONUMENT AT the corner of River Drive and Glenview Road pays tribute to Glenview residents who died in past wars. Glenview's Memorial Day parade concludes at this monument, where a memorial service is held to mark the occasion.

MANY GBS STUDENTS receive their pre-high school education at Our Lady of Perpetual Help on Glenview Road. In the foreground is Carrollton Hall, which houses 8th graders.

OPENED THREE YEARS ago this past spring, Glenbrook Hospital, adjacent to Glenbrook South High School, provides a much needed medical facility for Glenview and area residents.

Thanks, advertisers

ganizations who supported its efforts through the patron program

any of the GBS activities are sponsored through the generosity of the GBS Parents' Association. In addition to sponsoring a deserving senior each year, the organization also sponsors the annual homecoming pancake brunch and the Cum Laude Society's initiation. This year they introduced a pizza dinner, which was held during Holiday Week.

PAPPAGALLO: more than just shoes

A though most people know about A Shop for Pappagallo for their shoes, many people don't realize that the store carries more than just shoes. For example, while one is trying on a pair of shoes, he/she could be buying socks, a purse, or clothes, in addition to the shoes. But what he/she doesn't realize is that the store also carries luggage, frames art and hair accessories of all kinds which opened in October of 1978 was the first of many stores to open in Plaza del Prado. It is located in the west end of The Plaza. Mr and Mrs Jim Kidd, owners and proprietors of the shop, invite students to come in and look around. Their hours are as follows

Editor expresses gratitude

It always seemed that when I had to yell at a staff member for not having a story in on time or not assigning a photo until the last minute, I could always find an abundance of words to express myself, but now, when I need them, I can't find the words to express the gratitude I feel for those who made this yearbook possible.

I'd like to thank Cheri Libby for coming up with the most clever copy ideas and keeping the staff awake with her lively laughter on Saturday mornings; Anita Shah for managing the money, along with encouraging me when I needed it; Debbie Gordon for putting up with the photo assignments a day before the deadline; Mr. Dennis Eder, our yearbook representative for tolerating all the changes I made; Mr. David H. Smith for supplying many pictures in the social section; Ms. Robbin Mesner, Glenview Announcer, for her comments; Laura Nesbitt, Ms. Melissa Bobrich, Dr. John Reimer and Ms. Laura LaCursia for giving us many of the pictures we were in need of; Mr. Len Sider for supplying photographs when we were in dire need of them; Robert Gapp and Marc Puleo for laboring in the surreal world of chemicals and distorted time to send an ever improving photo flow into the staff's anxious hands; Mr. George Ricci for his photographic advice and assistance with the clubs, seniors and underclassmen pictures; Ms. Judy Adams, Dr. William Schell, and Mrs. Jean Makae for being very understanding during deadline weeks; Mrs. Vera Alamehah, Mrs. Donna Kline, and Mr. Allan Ruter for patiently opening the publication door when we couldn't find Mr. Heiser; Mr. Ted Heiser, our adviser, for giving us his constant devotion, for supplying us with a multitude of ideas for everything, and for putting up with an extremely strange staff of all kinds; and last, but not least, the rest of the Etruscan staff (named below), without whose humor and diligence I could not have survived those Saturday morning "jam sessions."

As appropriate, the list of the people to thank is endless, but I will stop here. For those of you who contributed on the yearbook and not mentioned above: THANKS!

Bella Nicolas

MARLENE NICOLAS, BRIAN BARTSCH, DANA DAVENPORT

BESIDES PRINTING AND taking pictures, photographers must also know how to correct problems with their equipment. Robert Gapp is the Etruscan photographer for a group picture.

A LOT OF planning and brainstorming must be done during and before yearbook production time. Cheri Libby and Bella Nicolas discuss some materials for the division pages.

I'll tell ya one thing, I couldn't have had a better time with anyone else! I really have felt so terrible! Because I have not called nor talked to you. I am really very sorry and you have every right to be mad! I have to admit one thing! I HATE TALKING ON THE PHONE. And that's not just an excuse!

I wish and hope we become closer to each other this year. I confess, I was to blame for this year! I just want ya to know I'll always like you, and care for ya! I even remember your #: 498-9095? is that right, if not let me know! please keep in touch, maybe this summer we'll get together and do something! See ya soon, Take care, Love always, Jamie L. Always!

o.s. Friends always!
(Karl tried man)

Dear Scott, I am really glad that I met you. Remember the summer at the plaza. Well, take care, your a super sweet +
I hope you ever change car! See ya get + change hair a great + change
mer. Love + change always Jamie

Dear Scott,
Although I only met you in dinner ed. I think that you a really swell guy to know. Good luck next year and have an excellent summer.
Love
Jamie

Scott,
 your a real drunk but your pretty and english was pretty boring and kind almost got a broken nose. I hope you have a great summer. I hope I see you over the summer. later Doug.

Scott,
 I was great getting to know you in Spanish class. Stay sober & cute and don't break to many hearts. Have a nice summer's hope to see you next year.
 Love

P.S.
 I love me!

Scott,
 I'm glad that you were in class with me, otherwise
 I wouldn't made through Spanish. It's just to bad that Debbie beasted you and not me when we talked. I will never forget the times you made a fool out of yourself when Deb made you out all by your self in the front of the room have a good time this summer but stay away from inorganic and organic materials and don't get hooked on anything.
 David Riebo

Scott,
 Its too bad we didn't have any classes together this year. It was fun for year. But there's always next year to have classes together. I didn't see you much, but you were was always nice to see I'm glad you still re membered me from last year & that we're still friends. You're a real sweet guy and I'm glad I get to know you. So lets stay friends for a long time & keep in touch over the summer
 so. Have a great summer (don't party too much) have an excellent year year. Hope - I see you alot more. You're a great person.
 Love
 Anna
